Israel agrees; Mideast truce signing today

By United Press International

Israel agreed Saturday to sign a truce agreement with Egypt today formally marking the end of the 1973 Middle East war. It will be the first agreement between the two enemies since the armistice that ended the Israeli war of independence a quarter century ago.

American diplomats said the signing would be followed, probably in a few weeks, by a Middle East peace conference, where Israel, Egypt and probably Syria would sit down for the first time to settle their differences peacefully instead of by war as they have done four times since 1948.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said the the signing ceremony, held under the auspices of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) overseeing the cease-fire, was scheduled for 1 p.m. (6 a.m. EST) today at the 101-kilometer marker on the road from Cairo to Damascus, where Israeli and Egyptian officers have sat together before to work out details of the current U.N. cease-fire.

Despite the agreement, the Israeli military command accused the Egyptians of five truce violations during the day, none of them considered major. The command also said the Syrians in the north committed two, one involving an artillery barrage that was answered with small arms fire.

The agreement, drafted by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during a week of intense personal diplomacy in five Arab capitals, provides for the exchange of all prisoners of war as soon as United Nations peace observers replace Israelis at supply checkpoints on the road to Suez City and to the encircled Egyptian 3rd army on the east bank of the Suez.

It also provides that the two sides will scrupulously observe the Middle East cease-fire and Israel agreed to let supplies through to Suez City and the Egyptian 3rd army.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir announced that Israel would sign the agreement just before she left for London to attend a Socialist convention. The signing was delayed by 24 hours until Israel received clarifications from the United States on several issues in the six-point document.

Israeli government sources said the two points were:

—A reference to negotiations to return to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines which Israel says are impossible to determine.

The architect of the plan, Kissinger, was hailed in Peking Saturday as a "Middle East cyclone" for his success in bringing the two sides together where a generation of statesmen have failed.

Apparently anticipating the next step in negotiations, Arab diplomats and politicians were on the move throughout the Arab world Saturday, consulting each other on Arab negotiating strategy.

The Soviet Union, which sat on the sidelines while Kissinger worked out the peace agreement, made its first official comment Saturday. The official Tass news agency noted "some rather substantial discrepancies" between the Washington and Cairo versions of the plan, but later killed that dispatch and replaced it with one which quoted only the Cairo version.

But Western diplomats in the Soviet capital said they expected the Soviet Union would support the cease-fire agreement and the expected peace negotiations to follow.

Human ear may be that of J. Paul Getty grandson

ROME (UPI)—A human ear sent to a Rome newspaper along with a renewed ransom demand from the purported kidnapers of J. Paul Getty III Saturday was tentatively identified by his mother as that of the missing grandson of the American oil billionaire, police sources said.

The sources said that the boy's mother made tentative identification of the the ear and lock of hair, although police said they could not be sure until Monday, when a medical examination should tell whether the ear was taken from a live person or a corpse.

The ear and hair wrapped in adhesive tape and bandages were mailed in a carton postmarked Oct. 22, according to the newspaper which received them.

"It is definitely a human ear although we won't know for sure if it is Getty's until we have completed medical examinations of it," Domenico Scali, chief of the Rome flying squad, said.

The ear, along with a lock of blond hair and a handwritten ransom note, was received by the Rome newspaper Messaggero in a package postmarked from Naples, Scali said.

The note, written in large two-inch letters with frequent spelling mistakes, said Getty's other ear would be cut off if his family did not pay a $5.1 million ransom within 10 days, he said. It was signed "the kidnapers of J. Paul Getty III."

Getty, 17 year-old grandson of oil billionare J. Paul Getty, disappeared from a Rome square last July 9th. Shortly afterwards, his mother received the first of several anonymous ransom demands.

Last Oct. 9, Messaggero reported receiving a note saying that one of Getty's ears would be sent to the paper if the family had not paid the ransom within 15 days.

The paper said the new note read: "We have kept our promise and have sent the ear. Make certain it is really Paul's because if we have not received the ransom within 10 days, we will send the other ear as well as other pieces of his anatomy."

Mrs. Gail Getty, the boy's mother, was not immediately available for comment. But Scali said she had been informed.

The alleged kidnapers first demanded a $17 million ransom, but lowered the figure to $5.1 million in negotiations with Mrs. Getty's lawyer, Giovanni Iacovoni, police said.

Iacovoni said the kidnapers had rejected a counter offer of $250,000, the most that Mrs. Getty and her former husband, J. Paul Jr., could raise.

The senior Getty, who lives in London, has said he would not pay "one cent" toward the ransom because it would encourage other kidnap attempts.

Police called off the official investigation into the case after Mrs. Getty reported the kidnapers had threatened to kill her son if it continued. At the time, Scali said he was still not certain whether the boy's disappearance was a genuine kidnaping or a hoax.

Train-auto and drag race

Accidents claim lives of 2 valley motorists

Listed in critical condition Saturday night at Pomona Valley Community Hospital was Vincent Glenn Chapman, 18, of 1373 Scoville Ave., Pomona, who was the driver of the automobile in which Rowe was killed.

The accident involving Rowe and Chapman occurred about 12:30 a.m. in the 1100 block of Price Street near Hersey Avenue, in Pomona as the result of a drag race, police said.

Police later arrested a La Verne youth who was allegedly involved in the drag race, and charged him with felony manslaughter. Due to his age, police did not identify the suspect.

Lewis suffered "grievious injuries" Saturday afternoon when he drove through a railroad crossing gate, and was struck by a Southern Pacific freight train traveling west at about 50 miles an hour, authorities said.

He was pronounced dead two hours later at Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina.

The mishap occurred at Valley and Puente Boulevards in Industry about 1 p.m.

According to police, Chapman and the other youths were racing down Price Street at high speed. As the cars finished the race, the other driver cut in front of Chapman's vehicle and forced him from the road.

The driver of the other car fled the scene, but was picked up by police about 6 a.m. in La Verne.

Police indicated that the drag race was staged by a local racing club.

In another accident early Saturday evening, Kenneth Brown, 22, of 406 N. San Dimas Ave., suffered a fractured left ankle and leg when a motorcycle he was driving collided with an auto driven by Jeanne B. Walker of Glendora.

Sheriff's officers said the woman apparently made a left turn from the southbound lanes of San Dimas Avenue to Gladstone Street in front of the motorcycle. The accident took place about 5:15 p.m.

Brown was taken to San Dimas Community Hospital. The woman was not injured.

Judge trims antitrust judgement

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) —Federal Judge A. Sherman Christensen Saturday trimmed $93 million from a mammoth antitrust judgment against International Business Machines, leaving damages awarded Telex Corp. at $259.5 million.

The senior federal judge left untouched a counterclaim award of $21.9 million which Telex, a Tulsa, Okla., computer maker, was ordered to pay IBM for industrial espionage.

Christensen originally awarded Telex $352.5 million in treble damages in a suit filed by Telex charging the computer giant with violating the Sherman Antitrust Act through its computer marketing methods.

The judge later announced he had made "substantial errors" in calculating the award.

The $259.5 million damage award announced Saturday was Christensen's final ruling in the complex case, which is expected to spend several years in federal appellate courts.

Immediately after the amended ruling was announced, IBM said it would appeal the judgment to the 10th Circuit Court in Denver.

"Although the court has reduced the damages by $93 million, and significantly modified the injunctive relief granted Telex, we continue to believe that the basic ruling against IBM is erroneous both in its theory of antitrust law and its interpretation of IBM marketing practices," said IBM Chairman Frank Cary in a statement released by the company.

"We intend to ask for a reversal of the antitrust decision in the appeals court on the basis that IBM has competed fairly and within the law.

Telex previously announced it would appeal the $21.9 million counterclaim award to IBM.

POMONA — A molotov cocktail thrown through a window Saturday night at Madison School resulted in a fire which destroyed a supply room in the building.

No injuries were reported in the blaze which started about 7:30 p.m., and consumed the school's resources room where tests and other academic papers were contained, authorities said.

The school is located on W. Phillips Boulevard.

The amount of the loss was not immediately known, although firemen said there was several thousand dollars damage to both the building and the contents in the room.

The incident is still under investigation.

Driver injured as car falls 40 feet

INDUSTRY — A Covina man suffered "serious" injuries Saturday evening when his car ploughed through a guardrail on Hacienda Boulevard and fell some 40 feet off an overpass, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department reported.

William E. Hampton, 24, was taken to Doctor's Hospital in La Puente at about 8:30 p.m. suffering from apparent head and chest injuries, an officer said.

Hampton's auto was southbound on Hacienda about a quarter-mile south of Valley Boulevard when it veered out of control.

Kissinger meeting with Chou

U. S., China to tie diplomatic knot?

By HELEN THOMAS

PEKING (UPI) —Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, dubbed "the Middle East cyclone" by a smiling Premier Chou En-lai, said Saturday the United States was determined to complete the process of normalizing relations with China as quickly as possible.

Kissinger's remark, made during a banquet toast at the Great Hall of the People shortly after his arrival at dusk for a three-day visit, immediately stirred speculation the two countries were on the verge of exchanging full diplomatic recognition.

American officials traveling with Kissinger on his sixth trip to Peking quickly discounted the possibility. "I think we'll leave here with relations as they are —amicable but in the same state," one official said.

Kissinger, who had just spent six grueling days of travel through the Middle East arranging an Israeli-Egyptin cease-fire agreement, exchanged joking banter with Chou at the evening banquet. Afterwards, the two began the first of a series of meetings which were expected to continue on Sunday.

Kissinger and Chou were believed exploring ways to expand diplomatic and cultural contacts set into motion during President Nixon's historic China visit in February, 1972. During Kissinger's last trip to Peking one year later, the United States and China agreed to establish diplomatic "liaison offices" in each other's capitals.

Another possible subject for discussion this time was the lingering conflict in Indochina, including the war in Cambodia.

Bundled in a topcoat against a chill wind, Kissinger smiled ebulliently and showed no signs of fatigue from his whirlwind Middle East peace mission when he stepped off his blue and white Boeing 707 jetliner after a 2,500-mile flight across the Himalayas from Pakistan.

Kissinger rode away in a long, black "Red Flag" limousine to the official government guest house on the outskirts of this ancient city, and less than two hours later was seated at the banquet given in his honor by Chi Peng-fei.

Sitting with his guest in overstuffed chairs, Chou said the Japanese used the term "cyclone" to describe Kissinger. "They say you were like a Middle East cyclone at this time," Chou said, smiling broadly.

The premier also congratulated Kissinger for his elevation to Cabinet rank since they last met in February.

"I get so many documents I can't do any thinking," Kissinger complained.

"I don't believe that," the premier replied through an interpreter. "I think you'll find the time because you're youthful and vigorous."

"One more trip through the Middle East and I'll be aged," said Kissinger, 50, who visited seven capitals in six days on his way to Peking.

At the banquet, Kissinger said the United States had made "good progress" toward normalizing relations with Peking, "but we are determined to do much more and to complete the process we started two years ago as quickly as possible."

Looking back on the 1972 Shanghai communique between Nixon and Chou, Kissinger said "we have learned that the Chinese are true to their words, and every promise made has been kept."

Kissinger's route to Peking from Islamad was the same he followed during his first, secret flight to China in early July, 1971, to make the first contacts that paved the way for Nixon's visit seven months later.

This time, Kissinger was accompanied by about 40 aides and 17 reporters and photographers. He is to leave Peking Wednesday morning for Japan en route home.

Vast energy reserves; but so are the problems

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States has huge natural resources whose development could meet the goal of an independent national energy position. But many problems remain to be solved to transform it into energy.

Coal

The U.S. Bureau of Mines estimates coal reserves in the United States measured down to more than a mile into the ground, total 3.2 trillion tons. The National Coal Association says perhaps only 800 billion tons of that could be brought out under present and nearfuture technology.

The National Petroleum Council projects production at 1 billion to 1.5 billion tons a year by the year 1985.

The most extreme estimate of production, then, would indicate the nation's coal could last for 500 years. At the production average of the past five years, it would last 1,000 years.

But technology is needed to clean coal up to meet clean-air air standards or find a way to convert it to clean-burning gas.

Coal gasification for gas of pipeline quality still is in a pilot plant stage. Some companies have contracted with a German company for a process for which each plant would cost $4.5 million.

Mining coal is expected to increase in cost to about $6.80 a ton in 1985, or about $1.50 a ton than now.

Gas

The Federal Power Commission (FPC) estimates the proven and potential reserves of natural gas in the United States at 1.15 quadrillion cubic feet, excluding Alaska, which is not yet producing. That is many times as much as has been consumed in the nation's entire history to date.

The FPC estimates 31.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas reserves in Alaska, plus 366 trillion cubic feet potentially. Getting Alaskan gas to the "lower 48" would take a pipeline and none is built yet.

Getting the other known reserves will require more exploration and deeper drilling and the industry says it needs more profit to do that.

Gas sells in interstate commerce for about 20 to 25 cents per thousand cubic feet at the point of production, and perhaps twice to three times that price when sold in the state of production. Industry spokesmen contend the interstate price should compete with intrastate rates, if the nation's potential is to to be realized.

Gas is the "clean resource" and demand is not expected to lag.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America estimates proven reserves of oil in the United States at 38 billion barrels. Estimates of the ultimately recoverable oil range up to 200 billion barrels. Thus the proven reserves represent approximately a nine-year supply, with somewhat less added to known reserves each year. But estimated reserves, if all were recoverable, would be nearly a 50-year supply.

Because most natural gas and oil are found in association with each other, the arguments over recovering the resources are similar. The industry wants a high price as incentive to find more proven reserves.

Deeper, more expensive drilling would also make more suspected reserves recoverable.

Oil shale

Oil locked up in shale rock is a massive resource. The Interior Department estimates "easily" recoverable shale oil at 80 billion barrels, and shale oil recoverable with intensive technology at 600 billion barrels. Total shale oil is estimated at 2 trillion barrels.

But none of that is being produced commercially yet: the federal government is still in a trial leasing program.

Nuclear Power

The Atomic Energy Commission estimates U.S. reserves of uranium oxide for nuclear power total 700,000 tons mineable without substantial cost increase, and more than twice that, if mining firms spent about twice the rate per ton to get it out.

If nuclear power generation switches from current techniques to the "fast breeder" reactor, the raw material becomes nearly inexhaustible because the "breeder" will create more fuel, in one form, than it consumes in another.

But nuclear energy has become a controversial subject in the age of ecology and many conservationists flatly oppose the construction of any more reactors at all. Consumer Activist Ralph Nader said recently that if plans go ahead for fast breeder reactors, "there is going to be the biggest environmental, legal, legislative, executive branch, citizen, consumer battle in the history of the country."

Hydroelectric power is generally fully developed in the United States because feasible sites are pretty well taken. Efficiency could increase somewhat with improved technology.

Energy production from the sun, tides, winds, underground steam, and underground superhot stone is still mostly in the research stage. Some energy is being produced from steam and there are some experimental buildings with solar heat converters.

Should solar energy be made cheaply available to the average American, it could replace most conventional sources of heating and air-conditioning and perhaps cooking.

U.S. health plan after '76, says Blue Cross

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Walter J. McNerney, president of the Blue Cross Association, predicted Saturday that Congress will enact some form of national health insurance but probably not until after 1976.

"Our corporate planning is built around the assumption that the earliest possible implementation date would be 1976," said McNerney, whose association coordinates 75 Blue Cross insurance plans in the United States and Puerto Rico for 102 million subscribers. Blue Cross is the nation's largest single health insurer.

"Anybody who has even the smallest scintilla of experience with administration (of health plans) thinks that 1976 is awfully close," he said in an interview. "I think that if the message hadn't been brought home, Medicare brought it home."

McNerney also asserted that the Nixon Administration was pressured by Congress into developing a more generous health insurance proposal than its 1971 plan. President Nixon promised last Sept. 10 to send a health insurance proposal to Congress next year.

The White House has received a draft proposal from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to guarantee that no family's out-of-pocket medical expenses during any year would exceed $1,500.

"There are some damn good ideas in this middle ground proposal, and it is only now under the intense competition of other ideas that it is fleshing out to have a larger social accountability," McNervey said.

Sharp pressure on the administration came from a bill introduced last month by Sens. Russell B. Long, D-La., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., to provide health insurance that would pay all medical costs above $2,000 a year for most Americans and cover all hospital bills incurred after 60 days of care, McNerney said.

CONSERVING FUEL?

These cars, viewed from the Sunset Boulevard overpass on the San Diego Freeway, are obediently cutting back on freeway speed, soon to possibly be reduced to 50 m.p.h. due to the energy crisis. Not that this bumper-to-bumper mess is their idea, but it sure cuts down on the speed.

W.H. mulling 30-40-cent gasoline tax?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House is considering a heavy tax on gasoline —as much as 30 to 40 cents per gllon —as a possible fuelsaving alternative to gas rationing, The Washington Post reported Saturday.

The Post quoted a "scurce close to the White House" as saying the tax would curb excessive gasoline consumption by discouraging driving, while producing revenues to help finance President Nixon's proposed five-year, $10 billion research program to find new energy sources.

The newspaper's source said low-income motorists and others whose business requires extensive driving, such as salesmen and clergymen, would be able to claim the tax as a legitimate income tax deduction.

"The tax would not hurt the little man," the sources said. "He could write off every bit of it when he made out his income tax return."

The Post said that although the White House has made no decision on either alternative, standby plans to institute gas rationing —possibly in time for spring —apparently are more advanced than the tax proposal.

Slow down!

Americans get the message

By United Press International

The message to American drivers Saturday was slow down.

The campaign to conserve gasoline, fuel oil and electricity reached every corner of the country, from announcements there would be cooler cars on New York's subways to suggestions that the way to solve the energy crisis is to stoke up and use coal.

Several states lowered speed limits on expressways. In Iowa, state troopers had orders to stop motorists driving faster than 50 mph—and give them a tip on saving fuel, We're hoping the people who comply with this will be a factor in getting others to comply," said Gov. Robert D. Ray.

Whether citizens will observe voluntary speed limits appeared doubtful, however.

A Los Angeles reporter who tried out the 50 mph limit on the Harbor Freeway toward San Pedro, Calif. reported that, "Several people who got behind me and then had to change lanes to pass looked at me like I was some kind of nut..."

In Kansas City, Mo., Saturday, Secretary of the Interior Rogers C.B. Morton said that the 49 major utilities in the nation could convert to coal as a power source within two months and save up to 430,000 barrels of oil a day.

"We can't get energy out of thin air," Morton said. "Ninety per cent of te fossil fuel reserve under the American flag is coal. It is in the public interest to convert to coal and we will do it as fast as possible."

A vice president of a leading coal producer said Friday that coal could be counted on as a substitute for oil —if the United States is willing to commit itself to using coal on a long term basis.

And that, said William Hartman of the Peabody Coal Co. in St. Louis means that President Nixon's energy messsage must be clarified to determine whether strict emission standards will be relaxed for only a year or for a longer period.

5,000 letters a day call for Nixon impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Letters are pouring into the offices of the House Judiciary Committee at the rate of 5,000 to 6,000 a day and running better than 35 to 1 in favor of the impeachment of President Nixon.

By Friday, the committee staff had tabulated all the letters, telegrams and petitions received through Nov. 5. The tally showed 76,834 persons favoring impeachment and 2,168 against impeachment and backing Nixon.

An aide to the committee, which has been investigating possible grounds for impeachment, said he was impressed that most of the communications appeared spontaneous and unsolicited, unlike the orchestrated letter campaigns which deluged the committee in the past on the busing issue and civil rights.

Most of the appeals were simple and direct like one from a Chicago woman who wrote: "Put impeachment as your first order of business."

Some persons sent newspaper clippings, full-page ads calling for impeachment and impeachment coupons clipped from underground newspapers. But very few of the letters read as if they were copied from a form suggested by some groups which have been organized to advocate or fight impeachment.

One aide who has been opening the letters said that less than one in 20 could be interpreted as part of an orchestrated campaign. He said the daily flow of letters into the office has remained fairly constant, ranging from a low of 5,000 to as many as 17,000, according to latest developments in the Watergate case.

Pole fires down lines, cut service

SAN DIMAS — Fog-dampened power line insulators erupted in flames early Saturday, causing two pole fires that downed lines and cut off some utility customers for up to five hours.

According to the Los Angeles County Consolidated Fire District office here, pole fires were caused at 8:46 a.m. in the alley south of Bonita Avenue and west of San Dimas Avenue, and directly across the street behind a Bank of America office.

A Southern California Edison Co. spokesman said the fire in the alley caused a pole to break, pulling down wires that touched ground at 217 S. San Dimas Ave. and at the intersection of Commercial Street and Drifton Avenue. Fire trucks were sent to all four locations.

Although some 2,000 customers who lost service as a result of the fires were restored to service 32 minutes later, the Edison spokesman said, about 35 or 40 were without power for 4½ to five hours.

Kissinger, the magician, pulls rabbit out of fez

BEIRUT (UPI)—U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said he had pulled "another rabbit out of the hat." The Chinese hailed him as a "Middle East cyclone." One Arab commentator said he accomplished "mission impossible."

In less than a week spent speeding from one Arab capital to another—five cities in all— U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger devised a formula for an Israeli-Egyptian truce agreement to be signed Sunday and in the process added to his legend as traveling peacemaker.

Before he left Washington on Monday, Arab commentators were frankly skeptical of Kissinger's chances of breaking the deadlock. Few Arab leaders believed an American secretary of state would back the Arabs to the extent of pressuring Israel to accept the backdown moves which the Arabs demanded.

Yet Saturday, after 24 hours of haggling with American officials, Israel agreed to sign an agreement worked out between Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat based, according to American sources, on talks between Kissinger and Golda Meir of Israel and Egypt's foreign minister in Washington the week before.

More important, American officials traveling with Kissinger said the machinery for a full-scale peace conference already had been set turning. Arabs and Israelis alike expressed optimism that a conference would begin by the end of the year.

'CYCLONE' AT REST

4 teen-agers held in shooting death of baby

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Four teen-age boys were in custody Saturday in connection with the death of a seven-month-old baby who was struck by two bullets as her mother wheeled her in a carriage in front of a high school.

Witnesses said that the shots were fired from a car as it passed the Long Beach Polytechnic High School Friday.

The infant, Tasha Lucas, died at St. Mary's Hospital shortly after the shooting. The mother, Diana Thorton, 16, was not injured.

Lawmaker calls for immediate rationing of gas

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI)— Rep. Michael McCormack, D-Wash. called Friday for mandatory allocation and rationing of petroleum products immediately.

McCormack, chairman of a House subcommittee on energy, told a fuel conservation conference here he was making his recommendation because of the cutoff of oil from Arab nations.

"We must have mandatory allocation and rationing of all petroleum products immediately," McCormack said. "A voluntary program just won't work. It will lead to nothing but chaos."

2 New Englanders tell Nixon set example, cut jet trips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two New Englanders suggested Saturday that President Nixon should stop flying his jet to vacation homes in Florida and California in order to conserve fuel.

Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., wrote the President asking him to forego the warm sunshine of Key Biscayne and San Clemente during this winter.

"If our people must shiver this winter, our public officials cannot be expected to do less," Cotter said.

William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester (N.H.) Union-Leader, sent the President a telegram asking "that you set a national example in fuel conservation by canceling all your trips to San Clemente or Key Biscayne until the energy crisis is over."

Loeb said flights to California use 20,000 gallons of fuel, while flights to Florida consume 7,000 gallons.

"Up here in the hills of New Hampshire," Loeb said, "we hear people say—and this is probably true in the rest of the country as well—why should we cut our speed to 50 miles an hour when President Nixon who asked us to make this reduction is himself wasting all that fuel flying around the country."

'Copter crashes in cemetery; 3 die

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Three crewmen were killed Saturday when a Navy helicopter lost its rotor and nosedived into a cemetery near Brookley Air Field.

Authorities said the helicopter was based at Ellyson Field in Florida.

A witness said she saw the helicopter lose its rotor and explode in the air before crashing and exploding again.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Nearly 75 persons, braving a 39-degree chill and occasional jeers from passing motorists and pedestrians, held a "Support Nixon" rally Saturday on the sidewalk in front of the White House.

The predominantly youthful demonstrators waved flags, carried signs and chanted as they marched in a circle alongside Pennsylvania Avenue, just beyond the White House fence. President Nixon was at his Camp David, Md., retreat for the weekend.

"It's time for silent America to speak," said Mike McClain, 17, of suburban Fairfax, Va. "A lot of concerned Americans feel the time has come to stand up for the President."

"He's no God and no saint," added Mrs. Frank Hancock, 45, of Dickerson, Md., "but I think he's being railroaded. Impeachment is a very serious thing. Had it been Mr. Johnson or Mr. Kennedy, I would have been down here, too."

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Darrell L. Cain, suspended Dallas policeman, goes on trial Monday on charges he fired a pistol shot into the skull of a 12-year-old Mexican-American burglary suspect handcuffed in the officer's patrol car last July 24.

State District Judge Ed Gossett will hear the case. He previously agreed to move it to Austin from Dallas because of news coverage.

Cain, 30, was indicted July 27, the day after hundreds of persons turned out for the funeral and burial of Santos Rodriguez who was being questioned about a neighborhood service station burglary the morning he was killed.

Rodriguez and his brother, David, 13, were taken from their home by Cain and a fellow officer according to police reports, to the scene of the burglary.

David told officers he and his brother told Cain and patrolman Roy Arnold they had no knowledge of the burglary. Fingerprint checks later failed to place either of the brothers at the scene.

David said he was in the front seat of the officers' car and Santos was in the rear, both youngsters handcuffed, when Cain put his .357 magnum revolver to Santos' head.

David told investigators Cain pulled the trigger, but the gun did not fire.

"The officer said, "This time it has a bullet in it,'" David related.

"He clicked it and it fired.

"The bullet went through my brother's head and blew the other side of his face off."

Cain was suspended immediately and charged with murder by police but released on $5,000 bail. His bail was later raised to $50,000.

The Rodriguez youth's death set off a downtown Dallas protest that evolved into a wild melee of bottle throwing, window breaking and fighting.

Santos' mother attended the boy's funeral on a temporary pass from the Huntsville State Prison where she is serving a five-year sentence for murder. Judge Gosset has denied two defense motions calling for dismissal of the mirder indictment against Cain.

U.S. arms aid secret in U.S. but Reds know

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Although the information is available to Communist nations, the Pentagon has refused to give American reporters details on arms supplied to South Vietnam since the January cease-fire.

All such arms aid can be inspected by the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS), which includes representatives of two Soviet bloc countries.

After questioning by reporters at Wednesday's news briefing, the Pentagon issued a typed statement saying, "Tabulations of supplies and equipment are not releasable in that they constitute information of intelligence value to the other side."

Pontiff opens holy year for Catholics

ROME (UPI)—Pope Paul VI opened the Roman Catholic Holy Year within the Diocese of Rome, a year ahead of the rest of the world, Saturday night and prayed for its success in promoting spiritual renewal and reconciliation.

The pontiff celebrated mass in the Basilica of St. John in Lateran, the parish church of popes, who also are the Bishops of Rome in Holy Year opening ceremony. The worldwide Holy Year begins on Christmas Eve 1974 and continues until Christmas, 1975.

"Omnipotent God, in this Holy Year which we have opened, allow us to walk your path without tiredness, to pursue with fervor your laws," the Pope prayed before the gold-canopied papal altar.

"Let us always be fond of your precepts so that we can fulfill the desire for conversion and reconciliation with which you today inspire us."

Solemn and unsmiling, the Pope walked into the basilica to loud applause. Nuns climbed on their chairs to get a better look but the cries of "Viva il Papa" (Long live the Pope) that punctuate Vatican general audiences were not uttered until the pontiff was leaving.

Holy Years, traditionally held every 25 years, are a time of pilgrimage for Roman Catholics to the Eternal City—Rome.

Posse hunts for more bodies

STOCKTON Calif. (UPI) —A mounted posse hunted along the rainswept California coast Saturday for two more possible victims of the two accused mass killers of nine persons in a country grocer's home.

Deputies said the suspects may have killed 16 persons in a two-state crime wave that began last month. The two accused killers, Willie L. Steelman, 28, and Douglas E. Gretzler, were arraigned Friday on murder and kidnaping charges.

A posse of 40 horsemen of the Sonoma County sheriff's office hunted the bodies of two men in an area more than 100 miles northwest of this central California city.

Sonoma County Sheriff Don Striepeke said deputies in Stockton told him the two bodies may be lying close to a road or in weeds between the coastal towns of Bodega Bay and Jenner, 15 miles apart.

The search was centered in the area where a van used by two missing Arizona men was found Oct. 21. Ken Unrein and Mike Adshade, both 21, were believed kidnaped by the murder suspects in Phoenix Oct. 16. The van belonged to Adshade.

The mass killing suspects forced the two men to point out a mobile home near Mesa, Ariz., where bodies of a young couple were later found trussed and shot, Arizona police said.

He found dividend in bag of bananas

Bocca returned the banknotes to fruitseller Salvatore Carciofolo who said he had absentmindedly put Boccas pound of bananas in the plastic sack in which he earlier had hidden his own bank deposit.

Something always cooking at Claremont High

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE—Claremont High sophomore Sandy Coffman checks the heat on her stove so that her scrambled eggs will be cooked just right for her "Hideway Cafe" customers. Sandy's class, taught by Miss Drue Lawler, meets Wednesdays and Thursdays.

POTENTIAL CHEFS — Rich Ornelas looks on as Jerry Cordt explains to classmate Tom Henzie that the bacon must not be cooked too much before it is turned. Students are taught how to prepare and serve a breakfast of bacon and eggs, muffins, orange juice and coffee of "Hideway Cafe," a small room next to the restaurant-type kitchen. Customers are limited by space and class time.

JUST A LITTLE MORE — Student Dave Allen warms up the coffee of a customer at "Hideway Cafe," where Breakfast Club enrollees at Claremont High School try out their cooking skills on teachers and administrators every Wednesday and Thursday morning from 8:30 to 9:30. "I wish it were served every morning," was the comment of Dr. Joseph Forcinelli, one customer able to take advantage of the service. Forcinelli said that his schedule kept him from enjoying Breakfast Club last year.

CLAREMONT — Children's books that are considered the best designed of their time are on display in the north corridor of Honnold Library at the Claremont Colleges.

The display will run through November.

The American Institute of Graphic Arts selected the books for their artistry. The 100 books in the collection were printed in 1971 and 1972. They range from an edition of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," illustrated by art work of elegant medieval scenes, to a book of Ionesco stories with gigantic illustrations by Etienne Delessert.

The exhibit was arraged in observance of National Children's Book Week next week. The sponsors are the library and Claremont Graduate School's George C. Stone Center for Children's Books.

Food price decline to reverse by spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The current decline in grocery prices will continue until early next year, predict Agriculture Department economists, but by spring they will begin rising moderately.

But the experts say that the predicted increase in food prices between January and June will not reach the record levels of the past August.

Per capita food consumption in 1973 will fall about 1.5 per cent below 1972 levels, the sharpest decline in 15 years, because consumers are getting into the habit of eating less to save money, officials said. Meat consumption will be off 6 per cent, the sharpest drop in 25 years, they said.

The "food situation" summary said prices for the last three months of 1973 will be "relatively stable" and probably a bit lower than last summer primarily because of a drop in meat and poultry prices.

One expert estimated the January-March increase would be 1 to 2 per cent as meat supplies decline temporarily and other prices continue to advance. But he described that as "rather moderate" compared to the 5.7 per cent increase during the same period this year.

The report said retail prices may level off again in April-June 1974, as meat and poultry supplies increase to offset higher prices for other foods. By June, the specialists said, prices may be about the same as this year's July-September quarter, which means they will be below the all-time peak reached last August.

Although the predicted increase next year was described as "moderate," the report said first quarter 1974 prices may average 13 per cent above the same period this year and second quarter prices may be 8 to 10 per cent above last spring.

Problem with woodpeckers

Syrians employ new secret weapon against Israelis?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As if it hasn't had enough trouble with the Syrian army lately, Israel is now having problems with the Syrian woodpecker, a report indicates.

The report, forwarded by an Israeli plants protection official, became available here in a recent issue of the Plant Protection Bulletin published by the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization.

The Syrian woodpecker, long a familiar sight in woods, parks, gardens and orchards in Israel, has generally been welcomed because it kills a number of insect pests. The bird is classed as a "protected species" by the Israeli government, and its population has increased rapidly, noted Y. Wolf of the Israel ministry of Agriculture.

In recent years, however, Israeli orchard operators have begun to make wide use of polyethylene plastic irrigation pipes, Wold said. The Syrian woodpecker, he added, has responded by pecking holes in the pipes. Losses due to wasted water, pipe repairs and disrupted irrigation schedules were estimated at $250,000 in 1972.

Wolf said Israeli scientists currently are trying to develop methods of coating the plastic pipe with bird repellents or developing a new plastic containing a chemical additive that would repel the Syrian woodpecker.

First pitch

The earliest reference to the use of pitch for water-proofing is in the Bible. The Good Book says Noah used pitch, a natural form of asphalt, to seal the seams of the ark before the deluge covered the earth.

Sierra Club clears its initial hurdle

By RICHARD M. HARNETT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Sierra Club believes it has won the first round in the battle to save the environment and is now approaching the "less glamorous" job of making the protective laws work.

"I think we will soon be through the initial phase of getting the control legislation in place, which means we have taken the 'first cut' at many of the environmental problems," Michael McCloskey, executive director of the club, said in an interview with UPI.

"The immediate and obvious things to do will be behind us," he said. "Then begins the difficult process of seeking that these programs are forcefully and faithfully carried out.

The club has played a leading role in recent years in killing the U.S. supersonic transport planes, expanding protected wilderness areas and barring forest areas to timber cutting.

The club is currently lined up against construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline, various strip mining programs and development of a Sierra Nevada resort by Walt Disney.

Increasingly, its work has involved efforts to incluence legislation growing out of the national concern over the environment.

For the Sierra Club itself, which went through a period of burgeoning growth along with the rise in national environmental concerns, the new focus will have an important impact, McCloskey said.

"We are a complex and much less glamorous activity," he said. "I think this changes the dynamics and tempo of the movement. In some ways it will be a much less exciting movement, in other ways a much more demanding one."

The Sierra Club was founded in 1892 by John Muir, primarily as a hiking organization. It had a membership of 15,000 in 1960, which zoomed to more than 140,000 in 1971. A "dropout" rate which reached 3,000 a month in 1972 has been reversed, and the club is near its peak membership again.

The club's budget, sent askew by the sudden end to its fantastic growth, is now "repaired," McCloskey said. This year the Sierra Club is spending $4 million on its widespread activities, with some additional funds being handled by the Sierra Club Foundation and the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund.

Club leaders feel they are now well-armed for the long-pull environmental debates on energy supply, air cleanup and resource preservation.

"We just organized our 50th state unit in Mississippi," McCloskey said. "The Sierra Club is now truly a national, an international organization. We have decentralized, and the regional organizations around the country make policy in their areas."

It had to be that way, McCloskey explains, because "the volume of environmental matters is simply staggering."

He said members now "feel burdened in trying to keep track," and would like to go back to "simple goals" of the past. But, he said, "we were the ones who said nature was a complex web."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

"Sea dogs" were experienced English sailors who plundered Spanish gold ships. Their new naval tactics aided in destroying the huge Spanish Armada in 1588 and saved England from invasion, The World Almanac says. This battle revealed that small, maneuverable ships using heavy guns at a distance could defeat larger ships which relied on close-range fighting and boarding tactics.

SCLC planning amnesty drive

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) announced a campaign today to seek amnesty for draft dodgers in the Vietnam war.

"We will speak to the conscience of the people in this nation by conducting massive nonviolent confrontations with the elected officials of our land, including President Richard M. Nixon," Ralph D. Abernathy, president of SCLC said.

Abernathy urged all interested persons to "join this movement so that the innocent will not have to suffer for crimes never committed."

He asked the Congressional Black Caucus to initiate legislation which would grant amnesty to all young men who registered as conscientious objectors.

PASADENA — An exhibition of works by pioneer photographer Adam Clark Vroman will be held Nov. 20-Dec. 31 at the Pasadena Museum of Modern Art.

Vroman, railroad man and bookdealer, linked together two great periods in Western photography. He carried forward the tradition of field work begun in the 1860s by Mathew Brady and Timothy O'Sullivan, and he also anticipated the clean, direct style of Edward Weston and the f-64 Group. His most famous work was a body of portraits of Hopi and Navajo Indians done between the years of 1895 and 1904.

The Vroman glass plate negatives were lost for many years and were discovered in a warehouse belonging to the Los Angeles County schools in 1954. Many of these negatives, later transferred to the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History, and another group of negatives from the collections of the Southwest Museum, were printed by Friends of Photography, Carmel, and published in a book entitled "Photographer of the Southwest."

Tiger Balm jade collection on display at L.A. museum

LOS ANGELES — "Jade: Stone of Heaven," an exhibition of works from the world-famous Tiger Balm Collection in Singapore, is on display through January at the county Natural History Museum, Exposition Park.

The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily except Monday. Admission and parking are free.

The Tiger Balm Collection, accumulated over half a century, is on loan from the House of Jade in Singapore, the first time the collection has ever been exhibited outside of that city. The loan was arranged by the museum staff and local collectors through Saul Mizrahie, a jade collector in the Far East.

More than two dozen Tiger Balm pieces are being shown, augmented by numerous jade items from local collectors. The Tiger Balm items are from the Ch'ien Lung period of the Ch'ing Dynasty, about 1750, when the quality of jade-carving reached its peak.

Among the pieces on exhibit are Foo lions, vases, snuff bottles, bowls and plates, a three-tier pagoda, and a Kuan-Yin statue. Local jade collectors and authorities who assisted in assembling jade pieces to supplement the Tiger Balm loan were George Terran and Sidney Ashkenazie of the Art Spectrum, in Beverly Hills.

The celebrated Tiger Balm Collection belongs to the family of the late philanthropists and millionaries Aw Boon Par and Aw Boon Haw, widely known as the founders of the Tiger Balm company. Tiger Balm is a cosmetic sold extensively in the Far East.

The quality of a jade piece is determined by its color, size and the carving. Among the exhibited pieces is a vase with a cap fastened to the vase by a chain. It was carved from one piece, and remains as a single unit. The intricate three-tier pagoda has eight bells which swing freely. There is also a lapis lazuli carving of a blue mountain which, on one side, has houses, trees and people, and on the other a poem and two signatures.

In the Orient jade has a unique significance which is associated with religious beliefs. It is referred to as the "Stone of Heaven," and is the only stone upon which the mythical Phoenix bird will land in times of peace.

BIRD OF JADE — Elizabeth Chen looks over the white jade Phoenix bird loaned from Singapore's famous Tiger Balm Collection for exhibit at the County Natural History Museum, Exposition Park, Los Angeles. The mythical bird is believed to assure prosperity and fertility. This is the first-ever exhibit of the works outside of Singapore.

Schoolmaster tells staff to quit jobs

HOUNSLOW, England (UPI) —The head teacher at an 800 pupil comprehensive school has advised his teachers to get another job—as bus conductors.

Scott said trainee teachers could expect to begin teaching at $45 a week under the governments anti-inflation program.

"They'd be better off working as bus conductors—they'd get double their present income," Hugh Scott, headmaster of Heston School, Hounslow said at the school Speech Day.

Scott, who is chairman of the Hounslow National Union of Teachers (NUT) action subcommittee, said: "The situation has reached crisis point because teachers have been undervalued. They don't want charity, hostels or council homes. They want a decent living wage for giving their expertise."

Drought won't quit in Pacific Northwest

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The great Pacific Northwest, land of rain forests and ice cream cone mountain peaks, has been parched for more than a year by a drought that won't quit.

Wheat fields have withered, evergreen forests have turned tinder and streams, including that mighty artery, the Columbia River, have dwindled so drastically that a brownout is imminent if strict conservation practices are no observed.

The lack of moisture is evident throughout Oregon, Washington, northern Idaho and in parts of British Columbia and Northern California, but A. L. Zimmerman, meteorologist in charge of the Seattle National Weather Service office, described the drought as "severe to extreme" east of the Cascade Mountains and "moderate to severe" on the west side.

How long will it last? Zimmerman said that can't be predicted with any degree of accuracy.

"But we do know this," he added, "after an extended very dry period such as we have experienced, it will take more than just a few wet storms to really break the drought."

Many ways

Just what constitutes a drought? Zimmerman says there are many ways to define the phenomenon, but nearly all include a requirement for an adverse effect on the economy of a large area. Of course, another major ingredient in any definition is the deficiency of precipitation received over a period of time —several months or several years.

Explaining the latter, Zimmerman pointed out that if 10 inches of rain fell on Las Vegas over a 12-month period, it would be classified as a wet year for the Nevada city. But only 10 inches of rain in Spokane, Wash., represents extreme drouth conditions there.

During the 12 months ending last Aug. 31, Spokane measured only 9.67 inches of precipitation —less than 60 per cent of the annual average—and that is why the Palouse Country, which spreads out over the high plateau south of Spokane, is just about as dry as the ranchers have ever seen it. Consequently, wheat crops are taking a beating.

The spring wheat harvest this year averaged only 19 bushels per acre. Normally the yield would be 34 bushels.

"Some growers just decided it wasn't worth the effort and they disced their plantings back in," said James M. Kitterman, crop reporting specialist in Seattle. "But with wheat selling at $5 a bushel, most of the ranchers found it pretty hard not to get what they could."

It is the winter crop in the ground right now that is at the mercy of the weather, he said.

"If we get some decent rains and sufficient snowpack this winter, we could come out pretty good next fall," Kitterman said.

He said the lack of moisture had reduced the lentil and pea pack by 10 to 15 per cent. More peas are grown in Washington than in any other state in the union. A reduction here would drastically affect the supply and price of peas throughout the nation.

Rains the last week of September and during October brought at least temporary relief to the extremely dry soil conditions in most agricultural areas and in the mountains. The forest fire hazard also was reduced somewhat.

Little snow

But the lack of snow in the mountains last winter and a death of normal rains left the rivers in a critical state. The Columbia at one point reached its lowest level since man began taking measurements of that stream 95 years ago.

Hay production was so low in the northeastern corner of Washington that ranchers there for the first time had to look outside for forage for their stock. And of course the price of hay will increase the cost of beef to the housewife down the line.

The water supplies of most large cities were not endangered, but little settlements, especially those in the high desert country, were experiencing difficulties.

Ranchers around Union, Ore., for example, temporarily gave up their water rights so the town would not dry up. And in these parts, ranchers hold water rights more dearly even than their branding irons.

The Silvies River at Burns, Ore., shrank to three cubic feet per second, which, as one gnarled old buckaroo put it, was "hardly enough to keep a rattlesnake cool." The John Day and Pudding Rivers in Oregon were "barely alive," according to watermaster reports in September.

Rimrock and Bumping Lakes in Yakima County, Wash., lost numerous fish, especially Kokanee, a landlocked salmon highly prized by sports firshermen for its fighting ability.

Some small streams were bone dry and several larger ones were so shallow that fish could not get up them to spawn.

Irrigation water requirements caused several large lakes in the Yakima River basin to dip far below normal levels.

But one good thing has come out of the dry spell. Defur, Ore., has a new well. The city fathers saw the light when the town almost ran out of potable water and they gave the go-ahead to a long-delayed well - digging project, and cool, clear water flows in Defur these days.

There's an ad in the Personal column of the Saturday Review-World that I'd like to call to your attention.

"To all users of Denture Sticktite: We regret that our product exceeded our most optimistic expectations. Our chemists are working around the clock to develop a tasty and effective release solvent. In the meantime, we ask our friends to be patient."

In today's world of shoddy workmanship and unfulfilled promises, that ad is like a beacon of light. New products anymore barely exceed anyone's pessimism . . . let alone optimism.

It's the American way. We expect compromise. Everyone knows the life of a TV picture tube is two hours after the warranty runs out. That giving a kid a toy stamped "Child Proof" is like giving an orange crate to a Kung Fu fanatic. That the label marked "Moth Proof" is the first thing a moth eats. And a lifetime guarantee doesn't refer to your lifetime, but the founder of the store who died three years ago, God rest his soul.

I've always been a skeptic about promises and claims. The fountain pen that writes under water, opens beer cans, and is strapped to an ice skate doesn't seem to be able to write on a cold check. And I have always believed in my heart that if I fell into a pit of snakes and flipped the switch on my flashlight, my battieries wouldn' light up the sky because one of the kids stole them for his electric football game.

I wonder if the users of Denture Sticktite had doubts. Or did Sam Fox come home one afternoon and call, "Hey, Mildred, where are you?"

"I'm here in the dining room in a high chair eating baby food, why?"

"I've heard that one before, Sam."

"So what have you got to lose?"

How delighted and surprised they must have been when they discovered they could eat candy apples and corn on the cob . . without hands.

And that wonderful day when Mildred was getting a hatbox down from the shelf, slipped and caught a coathanger in her teeth to break the fall. As she hung suspended twirling like a circus performer, Sam probably shouted, "It works. We've finally found a denture adhesive that did what it said it would do."

Young lawyer owes his success to many

HONOLULU (UPI) — When Terrance Tom was sworn in as a lawyer, a lot of people shared his triumph.

Without them, he couldn't have made it.

Tom, who insists his accomplishments are "no big thing," became the first person in the United States to take the bar examination in Braille.

The 25-year-old attorney of Chinese ancestry, who has been blind since birth, attributes his feat to a team effort.

During his first year at the University of San Francisco law school, Tom didn't have books in Braille using a special typewriter.

"Law school is usually rough, but this method made it even rougher," Tom said. "It was so slow."

Then in his second year, Tom contacted the Braille Transcribing Service for the Blind in Hawaii, and Helen Nawaa agreed to send parts of the law books to several hundred volunteer transcribers all over the country.

"This had never been done before on such a large scale basis," Tom said. The Braille transcriptions were stacked in Tom's closets and on counters until they reached the ceiling. Each semester he sent 20 boxes of books home.

Tom developed a test-taking method of putting the answers in Braille, reading them into a dictaphone after the test and having office secretaries transcribe them into print.

"Sometimes I got all tired out," he said. "It took all my energy just to prepare to keep up with the other students. Sometimes I said, 'I just can't do it!' "

"But my wife, Penny, was a real inspiration to me," Tom said. "She wouldn't say, 'Poor dear,' but 'Look how many people you owe your success to. They're all behind you. You can't let them down.'"

Last June Tom received his law degree after three years and was immediately plunged into the anxiety of preparation for the bar exam in Hawaii, his home.

Tom wanted to take the exam in Braille, not orally or by tapes as have been done with the blind in the past. He started corresponding with the Bar Examining Committee more than a year in advance of the test to arrange for it to be given and taken in Braille.

Helping Tom take the exam in Braille was no easy matter.

First, a bar review course involving 17 different outlines had to be Brailled for Tom to study before the examination.

After many meetings of the committee, it was decided that Tom should have a written examination in Braille on the same day as the other examinees and should be able to answer in Braille.

On each of the four days of the exam, the Braillists from the transcribing service arrived at the law library as soon as the exams were made available. They immediately began brailling and were able to hand over the first portion of the exam to Tom when he arrived an hour later.

Since it was necessary that Tom's answers be in a form that would not identify who wrote the exam, he wrote them in Braille and then dictated to court reporters who reproduced the answers into the unidentifiable form that was given to the examination administration.

After passing the exam this fall, Tom went to work in the city prosecuting attorney's office and plans to specialize in criminal law.

"I hope this will inspire others who are handicapped to do what they want to do and not just what society places on them," he said.

Tom hasn't found his blindness hampering him in the courtroom. "The only difference is that I use different methods to do my work," he said. "I use Braille and an Opticon, a machine that transmits vibrations in the form of a printed letter, to do research."

Admitting that he feels special pressure to succeed, Tom said, "If others fail, that's accepted. But if a blind person fails, he hurts others who are handicapped."

"I think my work is just beginning now,' he said. "But I have so many people to thank, who came to my call when I needed them.

"I couldn't have done it on my own."

Dash to wreckage of mate's car is fatal

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) —Margaret Bowers, 56, saw the wreckage of her husband's milk truck and raced 150 yards to the policeman at the accident scene. There she collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack, police said.

Some additives harmful to humans

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Georgetown University study in collaboration with the National Institutes of Health shows that some chemical compounds used to preserve beverages and canned and frozen foods are found to be harmful to human cells.

The laboratory study showed that some food additives commonly used to prevent food spoilage caused by bacteria and other microbes capable of producing disease, act just as strongly against human and animal cells as they do against bacteria.

Experts affirm fish navigate by heavens

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: When I was a boy — and that's a while back — an old fisherman told me that salmon found their way home from the sea and up their native stream by navigating by the stars. I didn't believe him then but I just read something about that maybe being true. What can you tell me about salmon migration? — R. C.

Dear R. C.: Agreed, there was nothing wrong with that original fish story. Experts today believe that salmon and other pelagic (sea-roving) fish navigate by the light of the moon, stars and sun. A salmon's ability to return to its home stream is related to a chemical imprinting of the odor of its home water. The salmon find their home stream by its characteristic (to them) odor.

Concerning cat carriers

What type to buy? It depends upon its intended use, whether it be primarily a shipping crate or part-time cat home when traveling by car. Materials used vary from wicker, wood, plastic and chrome to velvet (with zipper). Over-all size should be adequate but not so large that it is hard to haul the combined weight of cat and carrier (or store the carrier when it is not in use). The door should be big enough so you can get the cat out as well as squeeze it in.

Ventilation, not as critical at this time of year, becomes vital in the hot summer months. Cleanability is an important consideration. In the final analysis, the best cat carrier for use as a hospital transporter, are probably the common, sturdy cardboard carriers available for a couple of dollars from pet shop or veterinarian. They are adequate in size for the purpose and may be thrown away without financial disaster should they become contaminated by disease.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Blast-off, my young rooster, has been acting kind of strange lately. We have been wondering if he might have worms? — W. D.

Dear W. D.: Possibly. More than 50 species of worms may be found in chickens (in this country). Still, Blast-off's behavorial peculiarities could be due to innumerable types of disease. On the other hand, it may be primarily a psychological problem ranging from passion to paranoia. Certainly I wouldn't recommend you treat Blast-off with an anthelmintic (worm medicine) unless he has been checked out and found actually to have a primarily parasitic problem.

Pomona council to discuss reopening mall to traffic

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will discuss the possibility of allowing vehicular traffic on the downtown Pomona Mall.

Members of the Central Business District have asked that two-way vehicular traffic be permitted on the entire length of the mall, from Park Avenue to Linden Street, on a trial basis.

At a special meeting Oct. 31, the Pomona Mall Commission concerned with the CBD's proposal, saying that if the mall were opened to vehicles, the city should consider using police foot patrols.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce reviewed the proposal with Public Works Director Ronald Kranzer, Police Chief F. P. Wallick and City Planner Sanford Sorensen.

In a letter to the council, Gonce took note of the number of businesses that have left the mall but takes the position that vehicle traffic would do more harm than good.

"The staff and I firmly believe that to re-institute traffic on the mall would certainly sound the death knell to it," Gonce said.

"We do not have a long-term solution for the businessman nor for the city but we do feel that the mall should be retained in its present condition and that rather than attempt to solve the problem by treating a symptom, we dedicate ourselves to determining a solution to the total disease."

The council will not hold an afternoon session. Other matters scheduled for the 8 p.m. meeting include:

—A report by City Atty. Patrick Sampson on fees charged massage technicians.

—Reading of a Redevelopment Week proclamation, a showing of slides on redevelopment and a verbal presentation by Charles Stillinger, chairman of the Community Redevelopment Commission.

—Hearing, continued from Sept. 4 and 17, on the appeal of a Planning Commission resolution granting a conditional use permit to develop an automatic car wash and gasoline service station at 1805 Indian Hill Blvd.

—Hearing on the notice to abate the nuisance of a substandard dwelling at 854 W. Monterey Ave.

—First reading of an ordinance providing for the voiding of conditional use permits.

—Resolution authorizing an agreement with James R. Chadwick for the option to purchase three parcels of land for the Park Avenue Towers condominium project.

—Request of Pomona Elks Lodge 789 for permission to use city-owned public address system and portable stage for flag disposal ceremonies Nov. 17.

—Resignation of Richard L. Babineau from the Merit System Commission.

Claremont teacher in the running for state title

CLAREMONT — "We need to make schools humane places for kids," said Miss Virginia Jacobson, attractive resource center teacher at Vista del Valle School and one of 10 Los Angeles County public school teachers vying for 1974 California Teacher of the Year honors. The county has at least 30,000 teachers alone.

Miss Jacobson, born in Minnesota, was a student in a different school each year from the sixth grade on. She became aware early of difficulties a child meets in schools in different parts of the country, she hopes to dispel such difficulties at Vista.

She lived in Minnesota, moved to New York, then to San Francisco, east to Missouri, and finally back to New York, where she was living when she applied for a scholarship at Scripps College.

Miss Jacobson is excited with her new role as resource center teacher. She explained that children from kindergarten through grade six spend half their day in the center where they can participate in the performing arts, play chess or checkers, learn to play the piano, or many other things devised by the 43 Cal Poly students who earn credits by helping in the four resource centers at Vista School.

Space and funds

Because of a declining enrollment, Vista has classroom space to spare. The resource centers were set up with federal funds for educationally disadvantaged children and with funds of the state's new Early Childhood Education program for children in kindergarten through grade three. In past years the federal funds had been moved from Sycamore to Oakmont and then to Vista.

"I think children should feel successful, happy and confident in school," she said. "A child can feel he is a success if he can do a single rollover on the mat."

Miss Jacobson said she has great faith in Early Childhood Education, and that it restructures education for each school and its students.

She first became aware of Claremont when she spent $100 and applied to 21 different colleges for a scholarship. She received and accepted the Evelyn Starr Thacker scholarship at Scripps College.

She received a B.A. degree in child development at Scripps and an M.A. degree in education at the Claremont Graduate School.

For her master's thesis, Miss Jacobson produced a color movie on 8 mm film, complete with sound, on motor development of children. She has presented it at various conferences, and recalls how she would teach her class, and at the same time operate the lights and the camera, hold out the microphone and hope to get the response she desired.

Started in 1960

"Ginny," as her friends call her, came to Claremont School District during the 1960-61 school year and taught school in a Vista bungalow.

She was at Vista for five years before she moved to Scripps College where she taught child development and nursery school procedures.

She was back at Vista a year later as an educationally-handicapped student teacher. She recalled that at that time (1967-68) Vista was trying to break out of classroom structures.

Two years later Miss Jacobson moved to a new school, Danbury, built for orthopedically handicapped students from several districts.

The district decided to integrate regular first through third graders with them, and the open-space school was created with 100 children and three teachers in one huge room. She served as team teacher in the new program. She also has served as a special reading teacher.

Small classes

The Early Childhood Education program puts students and teacher on an 8 to 1 basis, and, Miss Jacobson thinks, "ensures a more personal and more effective relationship in reading, writing and arithmetic skills."

"The classroom should stimulate the child," she said. She explained that this year, for the first time, youngsters are coming to school early so they can participate in the many resource center activities.

In her spare time Miss Jacobson enjoys creative dancing. One year she received a scholarship to Steamboat Springs, Colo., for a summer course in theatre arts.

At other times she has tried her luck at tennis, swimming, and, since she lives at Mt. Baldy Village, she is near to her newest interest—cross-country skiing.

She said she doesn't mind driving the 20 minutes "down the hill" in the morning or the flight back up the hill each evening.

"It gives me plenty of time to get organized or to unwind," she said.

As to her chances of winning the Teacher of the Year award, she said modestly, "It would be quite an honor."

Foothill Fwy. crash kills S.B. woman

SAN DIMAS — A San Bernardino woman was killed early Saturday when thrown from her car as it tumbled down a dirt embankment of the Foothill Freeway.

Ruby Joe Roney, 44, was taken to Glendora Community Hospital following the 2 a.m. accident. She died at the hospital about an hour later.

Highway patrolmen said the woman's car ran off the roadway for no apparent reason as she approached Allen Avenue. The car went down a dirt embankment, then skidded across the Allen Avenue freeway on-ramp, and then down another embankment.

The car rolled over as it came to the bottom of the hill and the driver was ejected.

In another accident near the same location at 3 a.m., a Chino woman, Lillian Marguerite Roberts, 27, of 12346 Oleander Ave., was injured when her car hit the freeway's center divider in heavy fog. She was treated for lacerations and abrasions at Glendora Community Hospital.

Specialist says turkeys will cost more but still good buy

RIVERSIDE — Food shoppers can be thankful for one season item this Thanksgiving. The traditional turkey isn't going to be as costly as it might have been.

"Turkey meat will be a best buy in spite of higher prices resulting from production cost increases," said Dr. Milo Swanson, poultry specialist at UC Riverside.

The principal cost item in raising birds is feed, and feed costs have gone up 50 per cent or more over last year.

"Therefore, consumers must expect higher turkey prices," Swanson said.

"The range of prices in markets will be considerable. Many supermarkets, as usual, will offer turkeys as an advertising special."

Turkey prices, however, will vary according to the bird's size, sex, age, and degree of preprocessing (self-basting or stuffed).

"Prices of 70 cents a pound or less will not be unusual for heavier birds," he predicted. "To get the lowest price, shoppers should buy a frozen young tom in the 16 to 20 pound weight range."

No loan refusal appeal is provided by SBA

My wife and I began preparing an application for a business loan last March. We submitted it to the U.S. Small Business Administration.

In the first week of October an SBA representative paid a brief visit to our store.

In the interim our application, numbering about 40 pages, had been passed around from one office to another, returned for minor corrections, copied, printed and assembled into the form desired by the SBA.

While we were waiting for procedures to be completed, we saw an opportunity to lease larger quarters and expand our business. We took the opportunity and, in the process of expanding to four times our original size, spent practically all the profits we earned from our business. We now have a going business that is doing remarkably well.

The SBA representative pointed out to us that our profit and loss statement showed that we had made very little net profit even though we had done $20,000 in sales in the past six months.

Our response concerned our expansion and our expenses attendant with our growth. He said he was interested in the final figure on our profit and loss statement and nothing else.

He asked me if I would be interested in withdrawing our application and resubmitting it at some later date. I replied that I wanted a conclusion to this long drawn-out procedure.

A few days ago we received a letter informing us that our application for a loan had been turned down.

Apparently we have been penalized for hard work and ambition enough to plow our profits back into our business to provide a store that many people like very much.

Can you tell me how I can go about making an appeal from this rejection?—A. Q., Pomona.

No formal appeal procedure exists in the Small Business Administration, we are told by H. F. Clay, supervisory loan officer.

However, if you can build a better case by sending in additional information or even corrected information within six months of the date your application was declined, the application will be reconsidered.

If you wait until after the six-month period, a new application must be considered.

Clay said the SBA is primarily concerned with the applicant's ability to pay the loan, in the best interest of both the applicant and the agency.

Do you know the name of the antique shop in the Oak Glen area that displays old items?

I have an item to sell and would like to contact the place. I have called several places in our phone book but no one seems to have the information I need. — Mrs. G. W. Montclair.

Mary Remillard, women's editor of the Progress-Bulletin, had the names of four Oak Glen area antique stores in her files.

They are Phyllis Cook Antiques, Anderton's Farm House Antiques, Los Rios Ranchos and Rug and Rocker. She provided you with phone numbers for three out of the four.

We hope the store you want is among these. Until now we thought Oak Glen was primarily noted for apples.

Focus on people, environment

S.D. will air its plan for future

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — The city has gone to a great deal of expense and staff hours to try to get the public to attend the series of public hearings on the new general plan that will start Tuesday at 7 p.m. at city hall.

David Celestin, director of planning and community development, said his staff put in 72 man hours and spent $900 preparing property owners to notify them of the approaching public hearings on the general plan. Recommendations include underground railroad tracks.

Marshall Linn, consultant from Lampman and Associates, will explain the general plan and all of its elements at the hearing Tuesday. Instead of holding the hearings a week or two apart, the Planning Commission will hold consecutive meetings this week to conclude the hearings.

Wednesday night, the land use elements of the general plan will be discussed in detail. Meetings will continue Thursday and Friday if there is sufficient public interest.

Celestin said he hopes that citizens won't wait until Wednesday or Thursday and will attend the Tuesday night meeting when the plan will be fully discussed by the consultants.

The plan cost the city $40,000 and represents months of study not only by the consulting firm but by a citizens committee of local residents who worked along with the consultant.

Linn said the plan is a "people's plan" with positive, profound contributions from citizens.

He said it isn't the ultimate plan for the community but a compromise. "It is a good workable plan and one that San Dimas can implement at a reasonable cost."

The consultant said the plan gives particular attention to the environment and tries to fulfill the desire for a quality city and a quality of life people want.

He said 45 per cent of the total property in the city will have open space and park and recreation uses. This includes 2,154 acres of parks, and open area and a proposal to acquire 60 additional acres for park use.

The plan calls for an ultimate population of 45,000 to 50,000 people but Linn pointed out that consultants don't use cyrstal balls and said the city can decelerate or decrease the growth pattern.

One aspect of the general plan that is sure to please residents of the Via Verde area is the recommendation for one to four dwelling units per acre there.

Linn said he has also recommended in the general plan that the hillside areas remain in natural form. "I don't recommend that the hillside areas be cut up. Once the land is scarred, it's there permanently."

The consultant said he doesn't doubt that some of the recommendations such as low density might be upsetting to developers.

The lowest density recommended in the general plan is for one-half unit per acre for 675 acres in the Los Angeles Forest area property in the foothills.

Low density and cluster housing is recommended in this area because of particular land planning problems caused by the several earthquake faults that run through this area of the community.

Linn suggests the city put its railroad tracks underground from San Dimas Canyon Road to its western boundaries and said state funds might be available for such a project.

The plan calls for 234 acres of commercial property, 60 acres of professional and office use, 300 acres of industrial use, 264 acres in high density development (seven units or more), and 444 acres in a special planned area that will be reserved for future study of its use.

Opinion

Spirit of optimism starts to catch on

A new air of optimism surrounds the city's program of redeveloping the downtown business district. Promised projects have started to materialize, creating a new feeling of such great expectations that four of the organizations connected with the program believe the time is ripe to share the good news with everyone.

That way of sharing the new enthusiasm comes in the form of a Pomona Redevelopment Week which starts with a Civic Unity Day, a day of prayer and a day of Thanksgiving throughout the city's churches.

Activities during the week will include seminars, talks, luncheons and other events, all dealing with redevelopment and thus designed to let everyone feel they are part of the new confidence.

The revitalized outlook of the week's sponsors—the Pomona Redevelopment Agency, Pomona Redevelopment Commission, Pomona Chamber of Commerce, and Pomona Central Business District—is spurred on with the soon-to-start first phase in the construction of an $8 million office financial center, a significant boost for the redevelopment program.

It's been a long way since the mid-1950's when the city rejected the federal urban renewal program as the best approach to take in revitalizing the city's central core.

The city's approach then and now is to have local government and private enterprise work as partners in a bootstraps operation that has produced a Civic Center and Courthouse complex of which the community can be justly proud. The Speidel building since then has been an expression of private enterprise's faith and confidence in the future of downtown pomona.

Now comes the financial center, starting with the Bank of California building which will rise on the old city hall site. Within a few months ground will be broken for the United California Bank building and the Bank of America's regional center.

To those familiar with the months of planning with the program of reconstruction, there were times when it seemed the program would never really get off the ground. Those times appear to be behind us now. Redevelopment prospects have never been better. Pomona is off and running again. In the right direction—forward.

Vietnam's costs: forget the money

The Indochina war will have cost American taxpayers a total of $676 billion by the time we finish paying for it.

So claims Thomas Riddell, a Bucknell University economist, whose study of the economic effects of the Vietnam conflict has been published in The Progressive magazine.

Ridell's figure includes not only the actual wartime outlay for weapons and material and expected future expenditures for Vietnam veterans and their dependents, which will go on well into the next century. He expands it by including U.S. support of the French effort in Southeast Asia, beginning in 1950, as well as his estimate of "human resources" costs.

The latter include wage losses suffered by draftees, the dollar price to society of drug addiction among veterans and the value of lifetime production lost to the economy because of casualties.

But while it is not easy to minimize the costs of this terrible war, neither is it difficult to exaggerate them to prove a point. Riddell, for example, does not offset the wage losses of draftees — which cannot really be known — with an estimate of the increased earning power of other veterans who may possibly have acquired skills and trades useful in civilian life.

In any event, it is hopeless to try to pin down a final figure for something that has to be spoken of in terms of hundreds of billions of dollars, by any reckoning. Forget the money. Consider the other costs of the Vietnam war, which Riddell also mentions:

More than 56,000 men killed and more than 303,000 injured; almost 23,000 double amputees; more than 2,500 duadraplegics and paraplegics; about 260,700 veterans receiving disability payments; more than 1,300 Americans still listed as missing in action.

Showing more faith

Quite a few people are fed up with environmental horror stories and would prefer to hear something about the progress that is being made toward correcting pollution problems. Our nation has licked tough problems in the past by releasing a broadside of initiative, research and development — things that have been rich attributes of the American character . . . . we should . . . . show . . . . more faith in this character.

Did Nixon make deal with Wallace

WASHINGTON — The new special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, has inherited a number of unfinished investigations that could embarrass the man who appointed him.

The task force left behind by the ousted Archibald Cox has been prying into everything from President Nixon's personal finances to the $100,000 cash offering from billionaire Howard Hughes.

There have been other awkward inquiries not mentioned in the press. The special prosecutors were questioning witnesses, for example, about a whispered deal between the President and Alabama's Gov. George Wallace.

It's known that Nixon was eager to keep Wallace from running as a third-party candidate in the 1972 presidential campaign For Wallace was a spoiler who, as an independent, would hurt Nixon but, as a Democrat, would throw the Democratic race into turmoil.

Plane deal?

In May 1971, the President invited Wallace to join him on a flight from Mobile to Birmingham. No known witnesses overheard what the two men said to one another during the plane ride.

But not long afterward, the Justice Department suddenly dropped a tax investigation of Wallace's brother, Gerald, and the governor announced he would run for President as a Democrat, not as an independent.

The special prosecutors cannot prove that Nixon killed the tax case in return for a pledge from Wallace to keep off a third-party ticket. But the prosecutors have established that the White House showed a curious interest in Gerald Wallace's tax troubles before the May 1971 plane ride.

Clark Mollenhoff, the tough investigative reporter who served briefly on the White House staff, has told the prosecutors that he was asked by then presidential staff chief H. R. Haldeman for a report on the Gerald Wallace tax investigation.

Mollenhoff obtained a summary of the investigation from the Internal Revenue Service, he said, and delivered it to Haldeman.

Income omitted

The audit division had found that Gerald Wallace allegedly had omitted legal-fee income from his tax returns in 1967 and 1968. After deducting large losses from his cattle farm, he reported a total taxable income of $109.944 in 1967 and $65.980 in 1968.

The case was referred on January 20, 1970, to Internal Revenue's crack intelligence division, which handles criminal investigations. A group of agents from various Southern offices, assigned to the case, reported allegations that the Wallace brothers had used their law firm to receive political kickbacks and that Gerald had failed to report all the income that came to him through the law firm.

The White House had all this information before President Nixon met with George Wallace in the spring of 1971. Not long afterward, the case against Gerald was suppressed.

KISSINGER'S SPENDING: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last month threw a whingding, which has State Department officials whistling at the extravagance.

When the invoices came in, according to internal documents in our possession, fiscal officer Richard Murray called international conferences director Murray Jackson to express his astonishment.

The bash was held at New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art, where the black-tied diplomats were seated around the Fountain of the Muses. The pool was adorned with garlands of greenery and large baskets of flowers. The flower bill alone cost the taxpayers an eyebrow-raising $7,983.

The guests dined elegantly on smoked trout, roast filet of veal, bouquet of vegetables, mixed green and avocado salad, Brie cheese and lemon mousse with three California wines. The taxpayers shelled out $24,385.50 just for the catering.

"Wines and Spirits" cost $3,422.11; printing costs ran $587.35. To record the bash for posterity, $222.60 was spent on photography.

A State Department spokesman told us the dinner was an annual tradition. Before the festivities, however, the striped-pants set was heralding the event as "totally without precedent."

COLON'S COUP: It has been published that former White House aide Charles Colson tried to pull strings inside the Securities and Exchange Commission, which regulates the corporate world. We can now add another jigsaw piece to the puzzle.

Last January, aide Fred Malek was preparing recommendations for President Nixon for the SEC chairmanship. Colson shot off a memo to Malek, dated January 8, 1973, urging:

"When you are putting together a position paper for the President, would you please record me as favoring Brad Cook. Even though he is young, he is well experienced in politics, he knows the Commission and would be able to move immediately on some of the very sensitive problems the Commission has. I think he would also be totally responsive here . . . "

Cook got the job and Colson went into private practice. Not long afterward, Colson wanted Charles L. M. Mallory appointed to an SEC post. This was urged by Colson's law partner, Charles Morin, who pleaded in an internal memo: "In short, let's get this guy in that job or Cook may turn into a disaster for us."

Morin urged that Cook "ought to be reminded of how he got the job and how he almost did not get the job."

An indignant Mallory announced he wasn't "going to dance to anyone's tune." Cook resigned under fire on May 16th.

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon prefers non-political types

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — When President Nixon was about to trigger his shuddering crisis two weeks ago, he consulted the two senior aides with the poorest credentials for forecasting the mood of Congress or the public: chief of staff Alexander Haig and press secretary Ron Ziegler.

Haig, Ziegler and the President's three lawyers handling Watergate legal affairs were the only advisers sought out by Mr. Nixon. Sage political practitioners on the White House staff, some brought in at the President's pleading after the Watergate crisis broke last spring, were ignored.

Thus, in today's bad times as in yesterday's good times, Mr. Nixon's aversion to seeking counsel from Republican politicians remains undimmed. He prefers non-political technicians whose loyalty he trusts and whose disagreement he considers unlikely. This tendency, persisting as he still confronts Congress over the Watergate prosecution, helps build Republican pessimism that Mr. Nixon will not rehabilitate himself politically.

The adviser held by Republicans to be most responsible for Mr. Nixon's disastrous course is Prof. Charles Alan Wright, the constitutional lawyer from the University of Texas who for months has led the President's Watergate defense. Besides Wright, assistant White House counsel Fred Buzhardt and, to a lesser extent, counsel Leonard Garment consulted with the President in devising a strategy on the surreptitious tape recordings which was found to force out Archibald Cox as special prosecutor.

Political experience limited

The only non-lawyers at the White House consulted by Mr. Nixon were the two men who have jointly replaced the departed H. R. Haldeman as Mr. Nixon's most trusted aide: career Army officer Haig and advertising junior executive Ziegler.

Political experience is scarce among these five. Haig and Wright, each with a brilliant record in his own field, are total neophytes politically. Garment and Ziegler have been involved in politics only as Nixon campaign aides. Buzhardt, a West Point graduate-turned-lawyer, has a background in conservative politics in South Carolina, but other White House staffers consider him a blunderer in national politics whose miscalculations have deepened the President's Watergate problems.

Some "war-gaming" — that is, forecasting likely implications — of Cox's dismissal was done by the President with Haig and Ziegler. But there was no systematic calculation of what would follow. Failing to perceive the probable impact in the Justice Department, Congress and the nation, Mr. Nixon had to retreat in disorder by surrendering the tapes.

What makes this bumbling so unnecessary is the abundance of political wisdom at the doorstep of the Oval Office. Presidential counselors Melvin R. Laird and Bryce Harlow, importuned to return to government by Mr. Nixon last spring so he could avoid future blunders, were not consulted. Nor was William Timmons, his unsung but sensible and experienced chief congressional lobbyist.

Nixon's fateful course

Laird had long held privately that it would be politically lethal for the President to resolve the tapes issue by firing Cox. But Laird, Harlow and Timmons were not informed of what was happening by Haig until Friday, Oct. 19 — the day before the Saturday massacre. By then, it was too late to wargame the consequences of the President's fateful course.

If the President scorns such resident politicians, he naturally has not consulted Republicans outside the White House. For example, Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, set to replace Gerald Ford as House Republican leader, never sees the President alone. Accordingly he was not asked his views in advance two weeks ago.

The iron ring around the President has not been breached since Haldeman's fall. William Ruckelshaus, a proven Nixon loyalist until forced out by Cox's dismissal, never consulted with the President from the time he became acting FBI director April 30 until he was fired as deputy attorney general Sept. 20.

Nor have the latest convulsions changed anything. In the crisis atmosphere of last week, political wise man Laird was off on a previously scheduled speaking tour — far from the President's side. Congressional party leaders remained locked out. It follows that Mr. Nixon underestimated the congressional and public demand for a truly independent special prosecutor.

Whereas Republican politicians last spring were demanding that the doors of the White House be opened and the President exposed to expert political advice, their hope has shriveled. Facing the worst trouble of any President in a century, Mr. Nixon insists on his isolation from professional — and perhaps uncongenial — political advice. If he survives, he will do it without such valuable help.

Gossip for today

The Committee for Economic Development recently recommended that college tuition rates be more than doubled. Well, although some may complain, I do not find that at all surprising in view of what colleges and universities are being forced to offer today to meet the ever increasing demands on higher education. To enumerate just a few of the additional services our institutions of higher learning are now providing:

Because of the shortage of beef, which has resulted in a rash of cattle rustling throughout the state, the California Department of Agriculture is now offering a college course on how to combat such depredations.

At Staten Island's Wagner College, in New York, a course in witchcraft and the occult is now available.

At Ursinus College, in Pennsylvania, extra funds were required to clean up the premises after students topped off a dinner with a 600 foot banana split.

All of which, as someone once aptly remarked, would seem to prove that: "Education appears to be the thing that enables a man to get along without the use of his intelligence." — And for a benefit like that one should never object to paying whatever seems to be a reasonable cost.

Ecology prof stresses harmony, not conflict

End of exploitation of nature urged

Shepard, now Avery professor of natural philosophy and human ecology at Pitzer College and Claremont Graduate School, would like to see large-scale farming totally abandoned.

Cash-crop farming, he believes, far from being a boon, has fostered war, aggression and slavery. More importantly, it has helped to shape an exploitive attitude toward nature thus separating man from his natural self.

"We couldn't just go out and abandon all of agriculture today, but we can begin to liberate some of the earth's surface and some of those animals of which we've made slaves from that kind of bondage. This would enable us to do both: to feed humanity and to have some part of the earth remain as wilderness," he says.

As an alternative he advocates microbial farming, "laboratory farming which can be done in relatively small spaces. This would allow large areas of the earth's surface to continue to be occupied by nonhuman life, rather than gradually be exterminated, which is what we're now doing.

"I don't think we would easily take to microbial foods and fibers, but they're certainly available. We know now that we can use these creatures. They provide all the amino acids and essential proteins and other substances we need. They can be fed directly from petroleum; they can be fed directly from human sewage."

He concedes, however, that just changing agricultural methods won't make any great changes in the exploitive attitude that has caused men to lose "this feeling of partnership toward their environment.

"I see the environmental crisis of recent years not so much as a matter of poor management of resources, but as a matter of misunderstanding of who we are as members of a natural community of life. And so I think we need a rather deep change in our perception of what man is as a creature, what his limitations are and what his dependence on other life is."

Shepard believes he's found a key to making the necessary change in attitude in the study of primitive hunter and gathering peoples.

In his book, "The Tender Carnivore and the Sacred Game," he has brought together many of the ideas he's culled from his readings in anthropology and psychology.

Hunter-gatherers, he has found, are really very different from the traditional brutal cave men image. "In fact," he says, "in many ways we're finding these people who do remain as hunters and gatherers today to be exceedingly sophisticated and interesting people whose natural biology seems more fulfilled in some ways than our own does.

"And so I think we can learn from these people, not by going back to becoming cave men, but we can learn ways that can help us to shape how we use our technology how we organize our cities and how we use the other creatures around us."

If the lessons could be learned, Shepard envisions the development of a civilization closer to needs. Some of the hallmarks of such a civilization would include a reduced population, a different attention to the education of adolescents in which religious and natural education develop at the same time, and cities of a very different design.

Cities should be more compact, he says, "so that more of the earth can return to a natural state. Cities should be designed to facilitate the small group of no more than 25 to 30 people. This kind of extended family or communal group could be much more deliberately built into the structure of our lives."

Another key feature would be the liberation of domestic animals, and "attention to the rights of their existence and the important roles they have to play in our perceptions of who we are. They can't play that role if they don't exist."

Extending the idea, he would like to see the abolition of zoos and pets. Animals, he says, "shouldn't be made into surrogate children, or substitute mothers and fathers.

Shepard is hopeful that a "world in which we more clearly separate those things that are man-made and those things which are natural" can be achieved.

"I've never been a doomsday type. Although things may get worse before they get better, I have too much faith in us as a biological species with connections to natural environments. I think we will keep these age-old connections."

Rowland School District

Teacher pay talks will resume

ROWLAND HEIGHTS — Dr. Edward M. Jones, assistant superintendent of personnel in the Rowland Unified School District will meet Tuesday with Norman E. McClellan, chairman of the Certificated Employes Council, in an attempt to reach an agreement on a Dec. 1 salary increase for teachers.

The teachers received a 5 per cent increase in pay Sept. 1. The district has offered an additional 1.1 per cent effective Dec. 1, and it has been rejected by the teachers.

The teachers claim that a 4 per cent increase on Dec. 1 still would leave them 4 per cent behind in the cost-of-living jump from last year.

Jones said he anticipates McClellan, a teacher, will be prepared to make a counter offer Tuesday, "and we're prepared to work all night to reach a settlement," he said.

At Thursday night's school board meeting, the administration was authorized to proceed with the sale of the Canyon View School Site.

It is one of five district-owned sites which have been declared surplus. Two additional sites are earmarked for [illegible] development.

The Canyon View site is located on Brea Canyon Cutoff north of the Christian Chapel and south of Colima Road. [illegible] are suggesting that a minimum price of $261,750 be asked.

Nutritionist raps diet for athletes

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Marjorie Stevenson doesn't write football game plans and says she wishes coaches wouldn't prescribe diets.

Mrs. Stevenson, a nutrition specialist with the school of home economics at the University of Nevada, Reno, said, "while a coach may be handing out great winning game plans, his diet planning is often a nutritional loser."

She said research by the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation shows most coaches base their training diets on what they ate as athletes, and many do their athletes more damage than good. She said few coaches ever consult a nutritionist or dietitian.

"Most mothers who plan and serve family meals and who are interested in nutrition at all, could give better advice than the average athletic coach," Mrs. Stevenson said. She said an athlete's dietary habits "in ninth and tenth grade can affect them 10 years later."

Making weight

She said she is especially concerned about boxers, wrestlers and some football players who "starve or bemydgate their bodies to 'make weight.' Excess weight prior to football season is needed, not unwanted, both because of the extra calories used during strenous practice and as an extra protection for internal organs," she said.

Boxers and wrestlers in particular often stop drinking water for several days to lose the last few pounds to make their desired weight category.

"Excessive losses of water due to sweating in hot weather or restricting water so the scales show lower weight can lead to fatigue, lower efficiency and an increase in accidents — surely just the opposite of what a top-notch athlete wants during an athletic endeavor," she said.

She condemned this and other crash diets which she said "can cause extra stress on the cariovascular system and may even cause long-term metabolic effects."

Mrs. Stevenson also attacked "old wives tales" that protein is a primary source of energy and that athletes should cut out all fats, oils and dried foods. Fats or carbohydrates provide more energy than protein, and eliminating fats from a diet deprives the body of essential fatty acids, fat soluble vitamins and a "concentrated source of energy and saitety value found in fats," she said.

As for what's a good diet, Mrs. Stevenson said the athlete should eat the same foods everybody should eat, only more. She said basically, the athlete needs more calories — especially those in endurance sports such as football.

Water loss cited

Where a normal adult may require from 2,000 to 3,000 calories, she said athletes often need up to 5,000 celories a day, especially while practicing and training "which uses a tremendous amount of energy."

"It is also important to replace losses of water and salt from the body," she said.

Before a contest, she said, athletes should avoid heavy meals and eat foods that will digest rapidly —high in carbohydrates. She said protein and fatty foods take longer to digest and use energy needed for the contest.

She said quick energy foods are another fallacy: "The only energy for an athletic performance comes from the glycogen stored in the body." She said quick energy foods just before or during a contest help replace energy used from body stores, but do not get into the system in time to help an athlete during that game.

WHAT ENERGY CRISIS? — Dr. A. Cowan Collins, 33, a psychiatrist, and his wife, Harriet, ride their bikes in Machias, Maine, where he works for a counseling center. They traveled from New Mexico to the East covering more than 5,000 miles by bicycle. They traveled through 12 states and five provinces of Canada on the way.

Cockfight wound fatal to handler

They said the cock planted its spurs into Lim's leg in the backyard of his home. Lim waited two days before he sought treatment and the wounds became infected. He died after being admitted to the hospital for treatment.

Pair takes christianity as ad client

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) -- An ex-alcoholic bartender-bouncer of 32 and a veteran advertising agency operator of 27, both artists, decided early this year that God needed an ad agency and they were the men for the job.

The result is a series of cartoon greeting cards ("Christianity is contagious—infect someone"), several pamphlets on the wisdom of Solomon ("Solomon's wisdom for wise wives—as Solomon had vast experience with wives his wisdom on this subject is most profound") and a comic strip titled "Pilgrim," which will be syndicated weekly beginning in January.

Louis Cassels, senior editor and religion writer for UPI, described "Pilgrim" as "delightfully witty and in many instances theologically insightful."

Success has come faster than the two young men ever dreamed. "We figured it would take us five years to get our own publishing house," said Kirk Luehrs. "It took eight months."

Luehrs, who labels himself "the religious fanatic" of the pair, is also the ex-alcoholic. He and Stephen Graham, who has operated Graham Advertising here for seven years since before he finished art school, met while both were students at an advertising art school here.

Luehrs worked with Graham in the agency, which concentrates on displays and art production, for a time but the two parted company after two years and Luehrs went to California.

Last December the two "decided to give it another try" but found themselves bogged down in what they feel is the lack of "the creative element in local accounts."

"Rather than give it all up," said Graham, "we decided it was just as easy to work for $10,000 as for $1,000. We set our goals high and decided to take an advertising account no one has ever done and create a whole new identity through the communications medium."

The account turned out to be Christianity. "We didn't know until a brainstorming session how primitive the church publications and advertising were," said Graham.

Within three days after their decision they had 67 finished roughs of their greeting cards, a dozen of which are being distributed through 3,400 Christian bookstores in the nation.

The cards carry such messages as "the trouble with the world today is ...when the Good Shepherd called...they said 'bash,' " or "If someone tells you they've had religion up to here (cartoon character indicates his neck)...tell them to try a little lower and to the left."

Twelve more cards will go on the market soon.

Couple bikes from N. Mexico to Maine

By ARTHUR FREDERICK

The trip turned into a roundabout tour of more than 5,000 miles that took the 33year-old psychiatrist and his wife through 12 states and five Canadian provinces. They arrived in Maine in October after more than three months on the road.

"I guess I decided to follow my own advice," Collins said. "A vigorous active life of doing things you want is important for health. I had time for a vacation and I'm interested in the feasibility of using bicycles for traveling and commuting.

"It worked beautifully."

Collins said the trip took them further west than San Diego and further north than Newfoundland. He said he wasn't sure how many miles they had pedaled.

"It would have been 5,044 miles if we'd stayed on the main roads," he said. "But we wiggled around on the little roads to avoid the traffic."

He said there were no major setbacks along the way. Mechanical problems were mostly flat tires. The weather was good and the last 1,500 miles of the trip were trouble-free.

"We had some rain and snow," he said. "The coldest time was in Alberta in August. It got down to 22 one night."

Collins said a long bike trip requires no special strength or training. He said the trip was the first time he and his wife had taken so much as an overnight trip.

"I started out three years ago," he said, "when they had that National Ecology week. I bought a bike and started commuting then. It worked out so well I just kept on doing it.

"The experience was fantastic. Things like camping out by a glacier, trying to get past a bear on the road, waking up with elk grazing in the meadow, coming up on a moose. But we had no hair-raising experiences

Collins will work in Machias for the counseling center, which provides counseling to persons in eastern Maine.

Quiet community in Idaho surrenders to progress

GREENLEAF, Idaho (UPI) —This quiet community is surrounded by patchwork farm lands and its unzoned boundaries allow cows and goats to graze in front yards along Main Street.

Those who live in this small Quaker town talk slowly and attentively. They look forward to going to the only grocery store, for it is there they always will run into someone they know.

There is no smog hanging between the town and the blue skies above. The 600 residents cannot recall the last major crime and when they read about the plight of large cities they tell each other how great it is in Greenleaf.

But in spite of its peaceful and pastoral setting, federal regulations designed to protect the environment may change that.

Several months ago the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the State Health Department more or less forced this town, located 30 miles west of Boise, into becoming a city.

"The health department takes a dim view on running raw sewage directly into the creek," acting Mayor Lloyd Puntenney said as he sifted through an unwelcome pile of proposed ordinances from the last city council meeting.

At present, the city runs all its overflow sewage through a large pipe which empties into Pipe Bulch —eventually finding its way to the Boise River. Puntenney fears if the town does not get a treatment plant and the drainage pipe is closed off, some residents could be forced to move.

He said they cannot afford to set up drainage fields for their septic tanks.

So there was nothing else we could do," he said. "We needed a sewer plant and the only way we could get it was to turn this quiet, bedroom community into a city.

"The only way we could finance a treatment plant was first to incorporate and then apply for an Environmental Protection Agency grant," he said, shaking his head with sad reflection.

Residents of Greenleaf have fought incorporation for years, he said. They felt making the town into a city might attract undesirables.

But when they were told the sewage line would have to be capped and they needed a $300,000 sewage treatment plant, they buried their dreams of the pastoral life and faced the environmental realities of the 1970s.

Puntenney and others gathered 170 signatures and went to the Canyon County commissioners with an incorporation petition. Last June sleepy little Greenleaf became a city.

And with it have come the myraid problems that go with a city —budgets, employes, council meetings, candidates, special meetings and more meetings. So many, in fact, that few worry about the sewage problem any more.

Just the other day, Puntenney opened the city's first checking account.

"It was only $51, but that's a start," he said. "It cost us $13 to get a city seal."

But money is only a minor problem compared to the more pressing one of civic apathy.

"People just don't have much interest in city government," the 48-year-old reluctant mayor said, shuffling papers around his desk where he also works as the city's postmaster.

He stalked the town looking for candidates to run for city council and for mayor. He especially was interested in finding candidates for mayor. He doesn't want the job.

He waited until the last day for filing petitions to see if at least two persons would come forth to run for the city's highest office. When none appeared he filed his petition of nomination. Later, he found out another resident had filed for the office.

"I'm just too busy and the mayor's job takes a lot of time and it doesn't pay a salary," Puntenney said, "But I believe that all positions in city government should be contested."

So far, the new City of Greenleaf has managed to avoid the undesirables many residents feared incorporation might bring. Should that element appear, however, Puntenney may have an answer.

"You know," he said, "just the other day I had a call from a Los Angeles detective who is retiring. He wants to be chief of police. I told him we didn't have any money for a salary. He said that was all right.

Children of plenty—the limits of economic growth

Editor's Note: This is the seventh of 20 essays by leading men in the world's academic community. The writer of this essay is Seymour H. Knox professor of economics at Yale University. Herein he tells why, in his opinion, economic growth has become a menace.

By HENRY C. WALLICH

Economic growth has become a meance. Pollution of air and water, overcrowding of cities and highways testify to the emerging dangers. Ecologists, physicists, and economists are working to remedy the consequences of past growth.

They are asking whether further growth can take place without magnifying these consequences and running into far more dire results, such as shortages of food, raw materials, and energy.

It seems only yesterday that economic growth was praised as the genie that would solve our social problems. Growth was to lift the poor out of their penuries. Growth was to give us the resources to beautify our country. Growth was to move developing countries along the path toward more human living standards. How is it that the genie has so suddenly turned into a monster?

The answer depends very much on whom you talk to. Ten years ago, when the economy was not nearly so rich as it is today, the economists were at bat. Dissatisfied with the state of affairs, they chose growth as their favorite strategy to combat the ills of the day.

The economy grew by over 50 per cent, but dissatisfaction, instead of diminishing, grew even faster. Today the ecologists have their innings. They stress the environmental damage already done, warn of much more serious blight yet to come, and demand that drastic action be taken.

Halt all growth

Many of them say that not only population growth, but also all economic growth must be halted. Else, they say, the pollution and the shortages will eventually bring on colapse.

This time, however, the flags are being raised over a wider front. It is not food only, but all natural resources including energy supplies, air, and water that are declared in danger. Some of the evidence is obvius: foul air, unsanitary water, crowded streets, and endless traffic jams. After having cried "wolf" many times in error, we finally seem to be within sight of the animal.

But though all this is true, does it mean that we must drop and stop everything in order to save ourselves? Some people talk of stopping growth as if it were something like stopping a habit of smoking or overeating.

For some people who are comfortably off it may indeed amount to not much more than that. A middle-aged man with a good job, a comfortable home, well set in his habits of working, playing, and vacationing may not care much whether or not he makes still more money, so long as others don't get ahead of him. But to stop growth and start giving up hope and plans for the future looks very different for people in lower income brackets.

Recently, at a hearing before the public service commission in a New England town, environmentalists attacked the local power company for its plan to string transmission line across the local scenery. The critics wanted the line put underground, although this would have trebled the cost and raised the price of electricity. Then an alderman from a black section of the town argued simply: "My people don't care whether you string that line above ground, above water, or below.

"There is just one thing we do care about: we don't want our electric bills to go up." That argument won the day.

Poor on the spot

A confrontation is in the making between the environmentalists and the poor. Even if growth continues, the poor will have to pay for the coming clean-up along with everybody else, as power bills rise, gasoline becomes more expensive, automobiles become less efficient, and all the rest. Continued growth of the economy, raising their income steadily, would help them to bear these costs with something left over. An end to growth means freezing them into their present position, unless the government drastically redistributes income through heavy taxes on the rich and gifts to the poor.

Without growth, there would be little to justify the prevailing inequality of income. At present, inequality serves a purpose:

It gives people an incentive to be efficient, and it enables people with good incomes to save money that can be invested productively, thus contributing to futher growth. It also gives the poor some hope that gradually they will work out of their condition. Without growth, there is no need for incentives or investment, and no promise to relieve poverty. Redistribution of the existing incomes becomes the only hope of betterment.

Thus income redistribution is a logical consequence of stopping economic growth. One may argue that an evening-up of the rewards from economic activity is in order in any event and should not wait for a decision to stop growth. But the man with the good job and comfortable home should not talk about an end of growth without realizing that it also means the end of his style of life.

We face an even more dramatic confrontation as we look at the developing countries.

Among countries, they are the world's poor. If they keep increasing their populations and raising their living standards as they are trying to do, stopping economic growth in the United States would accomplish little in improving the environment. Such sacrifice would simply be a drop in the bucket. But how can we persuade the developing countries, set on speeding up their growth, to reverse gears and stop growing?

New Imperialism

That confrontation was evident at last year's conference on the environment held by the United Nations at Stockholm. Many of the developing countries took the position that the environmental issue was simply a new form of imperialism and exploitation by the industrial countries. Spokesmen for the Zero Population Growth movement and for the environment caved in before the onslaught of representatives of the developing countries who declared that whatever the United States might do, they would go on multiplying, growing, and polluting.

America and the future

In the face of all these consequences of trying to stop growth, it clearly takes an enormous decision to go that way. We had better be completely sure that the environmentalists are right before we follow their advice. There are some very good reasons for thinking that they vastly exaggerate. Consequently, it would be unwise to take drastic measures that may turn out not to have been necessary. Equally, however, it would be unwise to ignore warnings that may turn out to be true. Is there a way to protect ourselves against resource shortages, starvation, and pollution without going to the extreme of stopping economic growth?

There is indeed. Obviously we cannot go on as heretofore, disregarding pollution and exhaustion of resources. We must do what is necessary to clean up and to provide for the future. But why not turn the resources provided by economic growth to doing those jobs?

It would mean diverting some of our growing output from its principal use, which is to raise consumption. But we would then have a clean environment, assured supplies for the future, livable cities, and most of what the environmentalists fear growth will destroy.

This will of course cost a lot of money. But if growth continues, that money will be available. As production and incomes grow, some fraction of the gain can be used to protect and improve the environment. Conceivably, the cost of doing so might become so high that nothing was left over after a thorough clean-up job. At that point, clearly, growth would have to come to a halt. To continue it would add nothing to consumable output. But at the present time it looks very unlikely that this impasse would be reached soon.

Calculations for moderately clean air and water put the price tag by 1980 at an annual $40 billion.

If we wanted them very clean, the cost might be more than twice as much. But consider the gains growth would have brought by 1980. At the normal growth rate of the American economy, Gross National Product will have advanced, in constant prices, from about $1,150 billion in 1972 to over $1,600 billion in 1980. The gain of about $450 billion will be more than sufficient to meet the cost of keeping air and water clean, with plenty to spare to take care of our growing population and of the normal demands of people for "more."

Consider the consequences if we were to slow down economic growth drastically or even bring it to a halt. There would still be more mouths to feed and people demanding "more." There would still be some air and water pollution to be cleaned up, although not as urgently as if growth were to continue. But there would be little or no additional money. What priorities then are likely to develop?

Would we take resources away from consumption in order to devote them to the clean-up? Or are we more likely to ignore the clean-up job in order to meet the importunities of the consumer? In my judgment, the environment would run a poor second to consumer demands. In either case, obviously there would be a bitter political struggle fraught with great risks. We can avoid this by continuing to grow, keeping the environment in better shape than we have done.

Someday, the time might come when we no longer could do this. The cost of cleaning up, and the cost of digging and drilling ever deeper for ever scarcer minerals and oil, might exceed the gains from growth. That would indeed be the time to stop. The political difficulties of readjusting society to such a condition are enormous. But at least we would have gained time to make these adjustments.

Meanwhile, we would have reached a standard of living at which such changes could be made more easily than is possible today.

Desert community searches for doctor

MOJAVE, Calif. (UPI) —This high desert Kern County community is looking for a Marcus Welby or a Doc Elliott, but will settle for a good general practitioner.

It has been 10 months now since this town of 3,500 has had a doctor. The former lone doctor moved to the Los Angeles area and residents must travel 20-65 miles to Tehachapi, Lancaster or Bakersfield if they wish treatment —and can get a appointment.

A new $50,000 medical center built with community funds is empty and despite a letterwriting campaign the Mojave Medical Center board has gone fruitless in its search for a permanent physician. The reasons are numerous.

"First of all, its a boondock area," Admits Carl Stone, Mojave's only pharmacist and chairman of the committee seeking a new doctor.

"And doctors tend to try and congregate within larger communities for reasons of being near other doctors. And the wife and family often likes a city area," he adds.

Stone says the commuity would ideally like an independent individualist with at least 10 years experience in general practice who isn't afraid of working alone.

"All the decisions are his own, he has to make them and live with them," says Stone of the small town doctor.

The problems created by lack of a nearby doctor are obvious.

Lt. Leonard Kahl, commander of the California Highway Patrol office at Mojave, says serious traffic accidents are common in the area and moderate injuries can become critical because of the distance to a doctor.

On July 5 of this year, six persons were killed and two seriously injured in a crash three miles from Mojave. The ambulance had to carry the victims 35 miles to Lancaster, and Kahl says at least one of the fatally injured victims may have lived if a doctor had been nearby in Mojave.

One lure the commuity is offering is temporary free rent in the new medical center which includes an emergency operating room, a laboratory, X-ray room, spaces for two doctors' private offices and examination rooms and a general office area.

Once the new doctor is established, Stone said rent ranging from $100-$300—cheap by big city standards—would be applied.

Stone said a big obstacle in attracting a doctor is that Mojave is unable to offer the doctor a guaranteed salary.

But he says 83 per cent of the Mojave population has hospital insurance and 58 per cent has health insurance, and the community should easily be able to support the services of a doctor.

So the search goes on. Stone says one San Francisco doctor representing a group offered to provide weekend medical service at $1,200 for a 60-hour weekend, but the community found the proposal too expensive and inadequate.

Stone says he is currently talking with two doctors who have expressed some interest.

Japanese spike toilet paper shortage fears

TOKYO (UPI) —Scare buying of toilet paper in Japan came to an end Tuesday after the government and the paper industry convinced the public that rumors of an impending shortage were unfounded.

For the last week crowds had thronged daily around the front doors of supermarkets, waiting for opening time, when they would rush to the shelves and buy every low-priced roll of toilet paper in sight. Only the most expensive brands were exempt from the panic.

Eimei Yanashita, the viceminister of international trade and industry, called a news conference to assure the suspicious public that Japan indeed produced 123,800 tons of toilet paper during the first eight months of the year, a 23 per cent increase over the January-August period of 1972.

Trojans stage incredible comeback

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

Harmon leads Bruins, 27-7

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Mark Harmon scored two touchdowns and directed eighth-ranked UCLA one step closer to the Rose Bowl Saturday with a 27-7 Pac-8 victory over Oregon.

The win kept UCLA tied at the top of the conference standings with Southern California which scored a 27-26 squeaker over Stanford. UCLA, with five wins and no losses, have Oregon State and the Trojans left, while Troy meets Washington before the showdown with the Bruins.

Harmon, son of former Michigan great Tom Harmon, got his first score on a diving keeper from the four to culminate an 88 yard drive in 13 plays with 21 seconds left in the second period. That gave the Bruins a 6-0 halftime lead.

The first and only major Oregon penalty of the game, on a clip, nullified Maurice Anderson's 103 yard kickoff return for Oregon at the start of the second half. The miscue seemed to take the heart out of the Ducks.

Two fumbles recovered by Fred McNeill and Kent Pearce were converted into third period UCLA touchdown drives of 32 and 29 yards, with Harmon scoring from the three and James McAlister from the two to give the Bruins a 20-0 third period lead.

UCLA workhorse fullback Charlie Schuhmann scored from the one four minutes into the final period to culminate a 75-yard Bruin drive led by Harmon and Kermit Johnson, the Pac-8's leading rusher.

Johnson, who played but three quarters, had 152 yards in 20 carries, to push his season rushing total to 979 yards in nine games for a 108.7 yard a contest average.

Singleton had directed Oregon on a sustained march from the Ducks 20 midway through the first period to the UCLA 26, wrere the Bruin defense stiffened. Bob Palm's 42 yard field goal fell short.

The Bruins' vaunted ground attack, which leads the nation with a 419 yards per game average, generated 355 yards on the waterlogged astro turf. UCLA's scoring average also will drop from 46.8 a game, which had led the nation going into the Oregon contest.

MAGIC TOE

Limahelu's FG gives USC 27-26 victory

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — God wore an USC uniform Saturday afternoon.

There is no other way to explain how the Trojans kept their Rose Bowl hopes alive by edging Stanford, 27-26, on Chris Limahelu's last-second field goal.

It will go down as one of the greatest victories in Trojan history and a giant heartbreak for the Cardinals, who came into the game as big underdogs.

Stanford enjoyed a 23-13 lead entering the fourth quarter and had a comfortable 26-17 margin with three minutes left in the game.

His second field goal overshadows the accomplishments of Stanford's Rod Garcia, who booted four to set some records.

Garcia's first three-pointer was a sensational 59-yarder to break the Coliseum, Pacific-8 and Stanford records while the four FGs established Garcia as college football's all-time kicker. He has booted 39 in his career to surpass the record of 37 held by Wyoming's Bob Jacobs.

For his record-breaking performance, Garcia was voted the Offensive Player of the Game. But Limahelu has consolation in that USC is still in the Rose Bowl race.

It's now official. The USC-UCLA battle in two weeks will determine the host berth at Pasadena against Ohio State or Michigan.

But USC's Rose Bowl hopes looked practically dead for most of Saturday afternoon. A Stanford win would have created a strong possibility for a three-way tie if the Trojans defeated UCLA. In that case, UCLA would have earned the berth because of a stronger overall record.

After Garcia's fourth field goal made it 26-17 with 3:10 on the clock, it looked grim for Troy.

Ted Roberson returned Garcia's kickoff to the Trojan 46. On the next play, Stanford's Jim Kaffen, who had made two key interceptions, was charged with pass interference on Lynn Swann, giving Troy a first down on the Stanford 12.

The next two plays netted only two yards but Trojan quarterback Pat Haden ran 10 yards around his right end for the touchdown. Limahelu's kick made it 26-24 with only 2:10 on the clock.

USC elected not to try an onsides kick as Stanford took over on its 20. After Scott Laidlow ran for a first down, it didn't appear the Trojans would have enough time to pull out the win.

But the Trojan defense held as USC used all its time outs to get the ball back on the Trojan 30 with 33 seconds on the clock.

Taylor bombs 'Pack, 27-21

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

AZUSA — Steve Taylor, the All-league quarterback from Pomona High, came up with what can only be described as a definite All-League performance Saturday night at Citrus College as the Red Devil senior passed Pomona over Claremont, 27-21 and at the same time passed Upland and Chino into a four way tie for the San Antonio League lead with Pomona and Claremont.

Taylor was simply magnificent as he connected on 24 of 33 passes against the Wolfpack defense, good for 330 yares. Besides throwing for one touchdown, Taylor scored once himself as the Red Devils ate up the Claremont defense which hadn't allowed more than 14 points in a game all season.

But coach Mike Clifton and the Red Devil staff outsmarted their opponents this time as Taylor continually hit Ron Haley, Jerome Holliman or Jim Middleton on little hook patterns over the middle for good yardage.

Taylor threw every kind of pass imaginable, quick look-ins, deep curls, short hooks, and some while he was almost flat on his back. In fact he only had one bad toss all evening. Three passes were dropped and five were batted down at the line of scrimmage by the tall Pack defense.

Claremont got on the board first, taking advantage of a recovered fumble at the Pomona 20-yard line. Six running plays later, Joe Hillstock bulled over from the four. Dan Thomas added the extra point.

The Red Devils came right back as Taylor directed a 69 yard drive, hitting Holliman from the 20 for the score early in the second period. A bad snap from center caused Jim Price's point attempt to be blocked and the teams entered the lockers at half one point apart.

But when the final 24 minutes started, Pomona came out firing with all its guns fully loaded.

First there was a 67 yard scoring drive with Taylor sweeping right end from the four for the touchdown. This was the only running play all night that gained more than four yards for Pomona as the Devils had a minus 24 yards rushing.

Next came the big break of the game when Claremont's Dean Erickson couldn't handle an errant pitch from QB Kent Stalwick on the ensuing drive and Pomona's Freddie Turner, number 00, scooped it up at the 18 and raced untouched into the end zone.

The Pomona fans, as well as those from Upland and Chino, were going wild—but it was soon Claremont's turn to yell.

Two minutes later, at the start of the final period, Stalwick fired his first completion of the game to Tony Janusz for a 19-yard touchdown and Claremont trailed only 20-13 when Thomas' extra point attempt was blocked by Steve Herrera.

Probably the biggest series of downs came next when Darrell Anderson fumbled the Claremont kick-off and Janusz recovered on the Devil 34. But with all the momentum going its way, Claremont was stopped at this key juncture by the Pomona defense and gave the ball up on downs.

Pomona then marched 70 yards on Taylor passes with Price crashing over from one yard out to give Pomona a 27-13 lead.

But Claremont didn't give up. Not at all. In fact, Stalwick hit two passes of 34 and 46 yards.

Sabres defeat Kings by 5-3

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Left wing Craig Ramsay scored one goal on a breakaway and set up the game decider on a pass to Steve Atkinson early in the third period Saturday night as the Buffalo Sabres defeated the Los Angeles Kings, 5-3.

Ramsay fired home his fifth goal of the season on a rush down the ice to snap a 2-2 tie at the 6:40 mark of the second period. After beating Kings' defenseman Bob Murdoch badly, Ramsay made a good head fake on goalie Rogie Vachon and then easily put in a six-foot shot.

The Buffalo forward passed to Atkinson from behind the net to set up a tie-breaking goal with 3:53 gone in the final period. Atkinson's third goal of the season broke a 3-3 deadlock and carried the Sabres into third place in the NHL East.

Gibby now shares Open lead with Allen Miller

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Wisecracking Allen Miller, wearing borrowed longjohns and a rainsuit to ward off the freezing morning cold, warmed up enough to shoot a one-over-par 72 Saturday and move into a tie with Gibby Gilbert at 210 for the third-round lead in the $500,000 World Open Golf Championship.

Gilbert, who virtually destroyed the legend of Pinehurst's invincibility with an opening-round 62 to enjoy a five-stroke advantage over the field on Thursday, suffered putting miseries Saturday as he missed putts of one, two, five and six feet en route to his second straight 74.

Three shots behind Miller and Gilbert was Jerry Heard, who matched par of 71 although he said "my hands were so cold I couldn't make a putt." Another stroke farther back at 214 was Gay Brewer, following a 73, and in a group at 215 were Bobby Mitchell, with a 70, Miller Barber with a 73 and young Tom Kite with a 74.

With the leaders of this marathon, eight-round tournament starting off early in the morning when the temperature was in the upper 20s, the scores were generally high and only Mitchell was able to break par among the top players, all of whom played course No. 4.

However, one notable scoring feat was accomplished when tour sophomore Lanny Wadkins fired the first hole-in-one of his life. Wadkins, who went to school at Wake Forest, just 70 miles north of here, and already has earned more than $300,000 during his brief pro career, got the ace on the 172-yard, par-three 13th hole.

"The ball ran into the hole on one hop," said Wadkins, who had a 71 for a 216 total. "My caddy got real excited but there wasn't anyone else around to enjoy it."

The freezing weather left the No. 2 and 4 courses covered with frost and the start of play was delayed a half-hour to allow thawing. Many of the golfers had to wear heavy clothing and some wore stocking caps.

"It was really too cold out there," said Wadkins, whose group at 216 included George Archer, who had his third consecutive 72, and Rick Rhoads, who had a 74. "There were icy greens, icy fairways and icy traps. It's too late in the year to be here.

"I figured with these conditions if I shot a 68 or a 70 today I'd pass the world."

Miller, still seeking his first victory since turning pro two years ago, borrowed the longjohns of a friend's wife to start the day, later discarding them when it got uncomfortable. Staring on the back side in the same threesome as Gilbert, Miller bogeyed two of his first four holes the 461-yard, par-four 10th when his drive carried into the woods on the left and he two-putted, and the same 13th that Wadkins aced as his tee shot hit the green.

New Orleans can ruin Rams today

LOS ANGELES — Division leads can disappear in a hurry. The Rams found that out last year, and unless they can rebound against surprising New Orleans today in the Coliseum, they run the risk of having it happen again.

After eight weeks of 1972 the Rams were 5-2-1 and 1½ games ahead of the 4-4 Atlanta Falcons; two full games in front of the 3-4-1 San Francisco 49ers, who later rallied to win their third consecutive NFC West title.

The situation is similar this fall. After routing opponents over six straight weeks the Rams have leveled off to 6-2 following losses by a total of three points to Minnesota (10-9) and Atlanta (15-13).

The Falcons have improved to 5-3, just a game back with six weeks remaining. The 49ers are 3-5, riding in last place, thanks to the resurgence of the 4-4 Saints behind the leadership of new head coach John North.

Assuming his present duties after the fourth week of the pre-season, North has the Saints playing the best football of their eight-year history. They have won four of their last five, including the club's first-ever shutout, a 13-0 triumph over Buffalo and O. J. Simpson last week.

So, while Archie Manning continues to show he's one of the finest young quarterbacks in the NFL, the Saints are complementing his work with a suddenly strong defense that also held the NFC East-leading Washington Redskins to just 24 yards on the ground in a 19-3 New Orleans win two weeks ago.

A victory for Atlanta would pull it within a game of first place, a peak never before achieved on Bourbon Street. Kickoff time in the Coliseum is 1:05 p.m. with a crowd of 65,000 expected to attend.

Rams' head coach Chuck Knox, will be meeting an old friend in North. The two were on the same staff at Kentucky under Blanton Collier in the early 1960s and they spent the last six seasons working in concert at Detroit where Knox was the offensive line coach of the Lions and North handled the receivers.

"We know each other pretty well," said Knox, who calls North "a fine coach who has the ability to get his players to respond."

Respond they have. Those who have been with the club, like Manning and linebacker Joe Federspiel, are playing winning football, and their performance has been supplemented by a number of new faces.

Defensive end Billy Newsome, for example, was acquired from Baltimore for a handsome price, a first draft choice, but Newsome is proving his worth, including an effort last Sunday that earned him an NFL defensive player of the week award.

Another new Saint is running back Jess Phillips, a talented runner acquired from Cincinnati who leads the team in rushing with 424 yards on 116 trips. His backfield partner is tough Bill Butler, a second-year man from Kansas State who is also the leading Saint receiver.

Of course, the key to the Saints offense is Manning, already a star in just his third year. Manning, who has beaten the Rams twice in his last four starts against them, has completed 50.6 per cent of his passes (81 of 160 for 987 yards, four touchdowns and eight interceptions).

The most impressive figures in the league are still owned by the Rams' John Hadl, who has led the NFL in passing each of the first eight weeks. Hadl enters the New Orleans game with 76 completions in 132 attempts for 1155 yards, 13 touchdowns and five interceptions.

His backfield will consist of Jim Bertelsen (531 yards) and Lawrence McCutcheon (436), who returned to the lineup last week after missing two games with a hamstring pull.

McCutcheon's injury was one of the few the Rams have had this season. There were several bumps and bruises incurred in the Falcon game, but all hands are expected to be ready for the Saints with the possible exception of reserve linebacker Bob Stein, who has a sprained ankle.

For the Saints, two defenders are also question marks; linebacker Willie Hall, second-year man from USC who did not play last week because of a groin pull, and safety Johnny Fuller, who suffered a shoulder injury against Buffalo.

It's the first of two consecutive home games for the Rams, who have not lost in the Coliseum in three appearances. A week from Sunday the opponent is San Francisco before the Rams hit the road against New Orleans and Chicago.

'Fortunate to win' claims USC's McKay

LOS ANGELES — "We were fortunate to win the game," said a relieved John McKay after Saturday's narrow 27-26 win over Stanford.

"Sure, I watched (Chris) Limahelu's kick," the Trojan coach said about the winning field goal. "Yes, he's on scholarship. I was sure he could make it because he is on scholarship."

Limahelu, a product of South Hills High and Citrus College, said he was nervous.

"Everybody was yelling on the sidelines in the last minute and I just went off by myself to get away from it because the pressure was mounting," he said. "I think I lost 10 pounds today."

The Trojan hero was born in Indonesia and learned to kick in Holland. He isn't even included in USC's press book because McKay wasn't counting on him this season, figuring Anthony Davis would handle the place kicking.

"On the last catch I looked up field and saw that I couldn't run for a touchdown so I ran for the sidelines," tight end Jim Obradovich said about the catch which set-up the field goal. "Those two catches in that last drive as definitely the biggest of my life."

"It was a hell of a game," admitted Jack Christiansen, the coach of the dejected Cardinals. "We had no particular breakdown at the end. We just didn't tackle the men inbounds and keep the clock going. That was the difference."

Asked how this game compares to other memorable moments, McKay immediately thought of a similar game in 1969 when Roy Ayala's last-second field goal beat Stanford.

"This one is now in a tie with the Ayala game," McKay said. "It's very similar. Our tight end then (Gerry Mullins) made a catch near the end to set up a field goal in that one."

"He never misses against us," the Trojan mentor added. "Anytime Stanford could get two first downs, they could get three points."

A-P winner over Loyola

TORRANCE — Azusa-Pacific got a school record 238-yard performance from running back Jim Farmer as the Cougars rolled to a 37-7 triumph over Loyola Saturday night at El Camino College.

Farmer's heroics coupled with a fine game by quarterback John Tully overwhelmed Loyola after the Lions had held the Cougars to a 14-7 halftime lead.

Azusa-Pacific ran up a school mark of 453 yards rushing and added 66 more through the air to subdue an unexpectedly tough Loyola squad. After Farmer had scored a first quarter score, the Lions got a 66-yard touchdown run from Tony Taylor to tie things up.

Cal Poly drops into cellar, 20-7

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

NORTHRIDGE — It was a beautiful Saturday afternoon. A great day for playing tackle football with the boys. But not for Cal Poly.

In a California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) contest that meant no more than staying out of the cellar, Poly dropped a 20-7 decision to Cal State Northridge at Devonshire Downs.

The Broncos entered the contest with a 2-5-1 overall record and 0-2 in league play. CSN figured to be even worse. The Matadors started the day with a 1-7 seasonal record and 0-3 in CCAA play.

To say Cal Poly played a poor game would be an understatement. In fact, the Broncs looked as if they had been cast for a remake of "The Longest Day."

The Matadors pushed and sidestepped past the Bronco defense for 429 yards total offense. Quarterback Don Gray was responsible for most of the damage. He passed for 118 yards, completing 10 of 20, and rushed for another 126 yards on 25 carries. CSN ended the day with 311 yards rushing as Greg Watson added another 68 yards on 18 rushes.

The Broncos struggled for 222 yards total as QB Jim Zorn, the total offensive leader in the nation, flung the ball around for 178 yards passing, mis-connecting on 19 of 31 attempts (12 completed). He rushed for a minus one yard on 15 totes.

But Zorn had company in his misery. At least 10 passes were dropped by his no-hand receivers, with the exception of Joe Fabian who dove, stole and scrapped for five catches totaling 93 yards.

His yardage output gives him a new school record for most yards in a season receiving. Fabian's 48 catches on the season gives him 909 yards, surpassing John Gabriel's 1967 mark of 855 yards.

The Matadors reeled off 260 yards total offensive for 17 points. The Broncos only generated 64 yards and four first downs in a scoreless first half.

CSN ran off huge chunks of yardage from its pro-set and shotgun formation. While credit should be given to the Matador offensive line, most of the credit goes to Poly's arm-tackling defense.

CSN took the opening kickoff and marched 90 yards on 19 carries, eating up seven minutes, with Willie Hall capping the drive on a one-yard TD run. Jose Ballina's extra point gave CSN a 7-0 lead.

Ballina added a 34-yard field goal prior to intermission and a 50-yarder in the fourth period to complete the Matador scoring.

Mounties fall again, 21-19

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — In a season which has turned into perhaps the most frustrating campaign of head coach Mal Eaton's 20 year career, Mt. San Antonio College dropped its fourth game in a row Saturday night, 21-19, to San Diego Mesa.

The difference on the scoreboard was a pair of missed conversions. The first was a blocked kick by a determined Mesa defense, and the second was a deflected pass that could have tied it up.

As close as MSAC was to gaining a tie, it was beaten thoroughly by a team which wanted the victory more. Mesa, like the Mounties, went into the game 0-3 in South Coast Conference play. Now 1-3 and 4-4 overall, the Olympians escaped the South Coast cellar.

MSAC, 0-4 and 4-4 overall, is mired firmly in last place. In other games No. 1 Fullerton beat Santa Ana, 19-0 and Orange Coast stopped Cerritos, 13-10.

Mesa's stout defense stopped the Mounties on 21 yards rushing, and was able to contain the passing of quarterback Steve Myer, who nonetheless had his best night this season by completing 20 of 38 for 250 yards and a touchdown to surpass the 1,000-yard mark with 1182 yards for the season. He was intercepted three times, however, Gil Stewart caught eight passes for 137 yards. Stewart has 33 for the season.

Mesa jumped out to a 21-7 lead in the third period, using a rushing attack that netted 246 for the game. Fullback Rick Sesma gained 51 yards and the first score of the evening on a one-yard plunge in the first period.

Running mate Steve Fitch picked up an additional 86 yards and scored in the third quarter on a three-yard sweep. Mike Young got the third TD earlier in the period on a one-yard back. He rushed for 74 yards.

MSAC scored first to open the second half after Mesa took a 7-0 lead to the dressing room.

Mayer hit John McIntyre for 17 yards and a key first down in the drive, before he handed it to Tony Rubio who busted off-tackle for the touchdown. Tom McKenzie kicked the extra point to tie it briefly.

Trailing 21-7 going into the fourth period, the Mounties drove 64 yards as Myer completed four passes in a row including a 21-yard TD strike to McIntyre in the end zone.

MacKenzie's kick of the point was blocked. It was an omen of things to come.

MSAC got the break it needed to score again as Bruce Alley's punt was fumbled by Eddie Jackson, and Tom Rutten covered it for the Mounties at Mesa's 32. The Mounties took four plays to score, John Houston carting it across on a five-yard sweep.

Walnut stunned by Dons, 14-12

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Correspondent

LA PUENTE — Eight weeks ago defending Hacienda League football champion was being highly touted as a likely successor to itself in the 1973 title chase.

Eight weeks later the Mustangs are standing precariously near a losing season.

Walnut saw its chance to assure itself of an above .500 season slip away Saturday night at the hands of an upset-minded Sierra Vista squad as an eleventh-hour 20-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jess Long to Tom Atkins from the 20 earned the Dons a 14-12 victory Nogales High.

The loss reduces the Mustangs' overall record to 4-4, and all the way down to 2-4 for league competition.

Long's dramatic TD toss, coming with 28 seconds left in the game, capped a drive begun on the Dons' 23 with less than two minutes showing. Passes of 17 and 14 yards to Dave Kerkhoff and one of 22 to Atkins got Sierra Vista to the Walnut 20.

The play was especially crushing to Mustang partisan since quarterback Lance Parrish had seemingly returned Walnut to life with a one-yard touchdown plunge only moments before.

The Dons spent the first half bottled up by the Walnut defense, but the running game came to life at the start of the second half and led to a 16-yard score by Keith Smith.

Walnut, meanwhile, had claimed the only score of a sluggish first half when Doug McDermott took a two-yarder across.

Webb's title bid fails, 35-8

Webb School's shot at the Arrowhead League title went down the drain Saturday afternoon at Big Bear High. The Gauls, who were coming into the game unbeaten in league play against the unbeaten Big Bear Bears, dropped a 35-8 decision to the hosts and fell to second place in the Arrowhead.

In other local high school scores Saturday, Baldwin Park tripped Charter Oak in Montview League play, 35-19, and Lutheran downed Ontario Christian in Olympic League action, 20-6.

Mark Dobis, the All-CIF running back from Big Bear, ran Webb into the ground with four touchdowns and five extra points during the game. Dobis rushed for 204 yards in 30 carries in Big Bear's winning effort.

Webb's Gary Zakem, who scored the Gauls's only touchdown of the day, rushed for 84 yards on 16 carries and made 14 tackles while also playing linebacker on defense.

John Hattabaugh completed 11 of 16 passes and scored three touchdowns while throwing for one more to pace Baldwin Park over Charter Oak. Hattabaugh finished the evening with 140 yards in the air.

Nick Howard, the bullish running back for Charter Oak, rushed for 114 yards on 25 carries and scored one touchdown. Altogether Charter Oak rushed for 219 yards and made another 107 yards through the air.

Charter Oak is now 3-3 in league play, while Baldwin Park upped its Montview record to 4-2.

HAYNES' HASH — Claremont-Mudd defensive end Naaman Haynes sacks Redlands' quarterback Steve Vento. It was one of three sacks by Haynes who spent much of the afternoon in the Bulldogs' backfield. Unfortunately, Vento still completed six of 12 passes as Redlands won 28-7.

Turnovers stymie Stags

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — In the past, coaches have joked about "being even until kickoff." Saturday at Stags Field, it was no joke.

In fact it became a nightmare reality for Claremont-Mudd coach John Zinda as he saw his team fumble the opening kickoff which eventually turned into a Redlands touchdown.

Before the afternoon was out the Stags fumbled four more times losing the ball on three of them. The Bulldogs also intercepted four C-M passes enroute to a 28-7 victory.

The eight turnovers took away any chance C-M had of beating the league leaders. Redlands now is 4-0 in conference play and 7-1 overall. Claremont-Mudd is 2-2 and 3-4.

"Too many turnovers," Zinda said quietly. "With that many turnovers, it would be impossible for a Pop Warner team to win."

Steve Schaumleffel took the Redlands kickoff and had a nice return until hit hard by a host of Bulldog tacklers. When the officials untangled the mess, Redlands had the ball at the Stag 34 yard line.

Naaman Haynes sacked Bulldog quarterback Steve Vento on the first play from scrimmage for a loss of six yards. But the freshman signal caller, making only his third start, drove the Bulldogs 40 yards in six plays passing three yards to Tim Streeter for the touchdown.

Redlands scored again the next time it got the ball. Vento drove his team 62 yards in seven plays with fullback Don Alvarez plunging over from the one.

In the second quarter, the Bulldogs went 33 yards in six plays after tackle Rick McGowan intercepted Hank Christman's pass. Streeter scored his second touchdown on a one yard run and the score was 21-0, Redlands.

C-M scored its only touchdown with 51 seconds left in the half when Christman passed to Billy Nash at the Redlands 30 and Nash sprinted down the left sidelines to complete a 62-yard touchdown play.

USC wins 27-26 thriller

Haden, who came through in the clutch after many frustrating minutes earlier in the day, completed a 24-yard pass to tight end Jim Obradovich on the Stanford 46. On the next play, Haden connected for four yards to Anthony Davis, who promptly went out-of-bounds to stop the clock at 15 seconds.

Obradovich was the target again as he caught Haden's pass on the 17 and raced to the sidelines to stop the clock with seven seconds remaining to set the stage for Limahelu.

USC made numerous mistakes to help Stanford. The Trojans were guilty of nine penalties for 100 yards with several of them proving costly.

USC also lost four fumbles and two passes intercepted. Stanford took advantage of the six turnovers to score two touchdowns and two field goals.

The Trojans gained 440 yards to Stanford's 283 and rolled up a 21-9 first down advantage. USC used balance with 295 rushing yards and 159 through the air as Haden completed 15 of 24 for 159 yards.

As expected, Stanford went to quarterback Mike Boryla for its yards. The senior completed 17 of 30 for 187 yards. But the Cards managed only 96 yards on the ground.

The Cardinals struck paydirt when Boryla passed four yards to tight end Brad Williams in the end zone five plays after Kaffen intercepted a Haden pass.

USC caught up at 10-10 on Davis' three-yard run three plays after Lynn Swann returned a punt 54 yards to the Stanford 24.

Bonita High's Allen Carter fumbled on the second half kickoff to give Stanford the ball on the SC 18. Boryla passed five yards to Eric Test in the end zone. It quickly became 23-10 when Garcia kicked a 52-yarder after the Cards recovered a Davis fumble.

USC came back when Haden completed a 26-yard TD pass to Swann on the second play of the fourth quarter to cut the margin to 23-17.

But the Trojans couldn't do anything offensively as an interception and fumble killed two opportunities.

It appeared all hope was gone when Davis dropped a lateral from Haden with Stanford's Randy Poltl recovering on the Trojan 15.

Hopper leads Owls, SDCC edges Chaffey

Citrus College got another fine performance from workhorse running back Doug Hopper and went on to defeat Riverside City College 16-14 Saturday night at Riverside.

Hopper carried the ball 27 times for 190 yards to surpass the 1,000 mark for the season. The freshman from Monrovia now has 1,127 yards after nine games.

It was Hopper's 47-yard touchdown run in the final quarter that got the Owls the win. Riverside had cashed in on two early Citrus fumbles to pick up a couple quick first quarter TDs, but the Owls battled back to post the triumph.

In another Mission Conference contest, Chaffey gave San Diego City College a battle before losing 18-16 at San Diego. Mark Tundis tossed two touchdown passes for the Panthers, but SDCC clinched at least a tie for the conference crown with the win.

Citrus now stands at 4-3 in conference action and holds a 5-4 season mark. Final game for the Owls will be next Saturday at San Bernardino Valley College. Chaffey now sports a 1-6 conference slate and falls to 2-7 overall.

Ohio St., Michigan victors

By United Press International

Top-ranked Ohio State posted its third straight shutout Saturday, beating Michigan State 35-0, and the No. 3, 4, 5 and 6 teams also remained undefeated.

The Buckeyes, led by safety Neal Colzie who ran a punt back 43 yards for one touchdown and set up another with a 46-yard return, made Michigan State their eighth straight victim, leaving only Iowa left before their showdown finale with Michigan.

The No. 4 Wolverines also kept on the all-winning side of the ledger, but had some problems with stubborn Illinois. Gil Chapman went 33 yards for one Michigan TD on a fourth down play and tight end Paul Seal caught a freak 20-yard scoring pass as the Wolverines emerged victorious 21-6.

In the only face-to-face matchup of top-ranked teams, No. 3 Oklahoma looked very much to be the best of the Big Eight by crushing Missouri 31-3 at Columbia, Mo. The Sooners, who cannot go to a Bowl because of an NCAA probation, took a firm hold on the Big Eight lead, getting two touchdowns from tailback Joe Washington. The stingy Oklahoma defense also held Missouri to just six first downs.

Fifth-ranked Notre Dame all but solidified its expected Sugar Bowl bid by capitalizing on three key turnovers to subdue Pittsburgh, 31-10. Wayne Bullock scored four TDs for the Irish, three of them coming on Panther miscues. About the only real bright spot for Pittsburgh was the performance of their sensational freshman running back Tony Dorsett who rolled up 209 yards — the most ever against a Notre Dame team—to keep his Heisman Trophy hopes alive.

Another Heisman Trophy candidate, John Cappelletti of Penn State ran 27 yards for his third touchdown of the game with 8:38 remaining as the Nittany Lions escaped with a 35-29 win over North Carolina State. Cappelletti, who also scored on runs of 34 and eight, became the first Penn State back in history to rush over 1,000 yards in consecutive seasons.

Eleventh ranked Nebraska, the only hurdle in Oklahoma's way for the big Eight title, rode a three-touchdown performance by David Humm to down Iowa State, 31-7. Humm threw a pair of TD passes to his favorite receiver Frosty Anderson, one for 25 yards and the other for 67 and the junior quarterback ran over from the one for the other score.

In a key Mid America Conference game, unbeaten and 15th-rated Miami of Ohio topped last year's MAC champ Kent State, 20-10, behind two touchdowns by fullback Chuck Varner. In addition, the Redskins benefited by two long field goals—44 and 52 yards—from David Draudt.

In other games, Kentucky topped Vanderbilt 27-17, Miami of Florida downed winless Army 19-7, Florida edged Georgia 11-10, Auburn belted Mississippi State 31-17, Minnesota routed Purdue 34-7, 12th-ranked Texas trounced Baylor 42-6, 14th-rated Texas Tech topped TCU 24-10, Southern Cal nipped Stanford 27-26, UCLA whipped Oregon 27-7 and Syracuse finally won one for Ben Schwartzwalder in his final year as coach, 5-3, over Holy Cross.

EYE TO EYE — Pomona-Pitzer's Anthony Soter and La Verne's Greg Brown have an eye-to-eye meeting as running back Soter goes for short yardage. Leopards won Saturday's contest easily, routing the Sagehens 55-16 in a game played at Pomona-Pitzer's Alumni Field.

La Verne rips Sagehens

By FRED CLAIRE
P-B Correspondent

CLAREMONT — The pattern of the game between La Verne College and Pomona-Pitzer was consistent Saturday afternoon at Alumni Field.

The Sagehens kept fumbling the ball away and the Leopards made a habit of converting the recoveries into touchdowns.

When it was all over the Leopards had posted a 55-16 victory in the SCIAC contest.

The game ended on a play that was typical of the afternoon's activity. La Verne's Ronald Kimball fell on a losse football to give the Leopards possession on the Sagehen 20. Fortunately for all concerned the gun sounded and the scoreboard operator received a deserved rest.

The Sagehens were guilty of losing five fumbles and the Leopards turned all five recoveries into TDs.

Another La Verne touchdown came when Jack Gilberg intercepted a pass by Sagehen quarterback Larry Cenotto in the end zone after the pass had been deflected by Scott Bowser.

On Pomona's second play from scrimmage, running back Anthony Soter gained 13 yards but then fumbled and Gus Newson recovered for the Leopards on the Sagehens' 26.

It took La Verne just one play to score as quarterback Marty Mercurio threw a touchdown pass to end Joe Edmonds. A bad pass from center deprived John Karns of an attempt for the PAT, but Karns was to get in plenty of leg work during the afternoon and connected after the next seven Leopard TDs.

The next time the Leopards had the ball, taking over at their own 20 after a Cenotto punt they scored on one play as halfback Paul Larson swept to his left and then shot down the sideline on 80-yard TD run.

The Leopards put the game out of reach with three touchdowns in the second quarter, two of the TDs coming after fumble recoveries at the Sagehens' 18 (George Hardgrow recovering) and six. (Bill Keilty recovering). La Verne's other TD of the second quarter came on a 44-yard drive after a fine punt return by Jeff O'Connor.

The Sagehens' only two touchdowns of the game came in the second quarter on passes by Cenotto. The Sagehen quarterback hooked up on a 48-yard scoring pass with Wayne Sherman early in the second quarter to cut the Leopard lead to 13-7. And then with time running out in the first half Cenotto hit Gary O'Neill with a seven-yard TD pass. At the time of the second Sagehen TD the Leopards already had built a 34-7 advantage.

The second half started just the way the first half had opened. The Sagehens fumbled on their fourth play and Chris Hawks recovered for the Leopards on their own 40. It took the Leopards only four plays to score with Mercurio

Dahlia captures D.C. International

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Dahlia, displaying the form that made her the darling of Europe in midsummer, unleashed a powerful rush down the stretch at Laurel Saturday to win the 22nd running of the $150,000 Washington D.C. International by three and one-quarter lengths to become the first filly ever to win the global classic.

Just as she was the first member of her sex ever to win the King George and Queen Elizabeth stakes at Ascot in July, Dahlia was the first distaff runner ever to make it to the winner's circle in this mile and half classic.

Dahlia's victory gave France its sixth triumph in the race. Big Spruce from Elmendorf Farms finished second in the field of eight thoroughbreds from four countries. Scottish Rifle from England was third with Card King, another French entry, fourth.

Tentam, the 3-5 favorite and America's biggest hope for victory, finished fifth.

With jockey William Pyers of Australia in the saddle, Dahlia dropped to the tail-end of the field right from the very start and there the stretch running daughter of Vaguely Noble stayed while Tentam set the early pace.

Rounding the final turn into the homestretch, Dahlia still was last and there was a wall of horses in front of her. But she responded gallantly to Pyers' urging and threaded her way through the horses to finally break into the clear with only about a sixteenth of a mile to go.

Carrying 118 pounds since Pyers' could not make the assigned 117, Dahlia finished the mile and a half in 2:31 4-5. That was far off the stakes record of 2:23 4-5 set by mighty Kelso when he won the event in 1964.

Raiders set for Steelers in rematch

You remember it. The ball went flying completely out of the TV picture—and then suddenly No. 32 came storming into the picture with the ball in his hands heading straight to the end zone.

No. 32, of course, was Franco Harris and the Pittsburgh Steelers' running back caught a deflected pass in one of the strangest finishes in pro football history to give the Pittsburgh Steelers their celebrated playoff victory over the Oakland Raiders.

The two clubs will meet for the first time since that game on Sunday in Oakland and the NFL officials, who rarely miss a chance to publicize a dramatic moment will televise the game to most of the nation as a part of a doubleheader.

Naturally, it's a key game— especially for the Raiders. Oakland is 5-2-1 in the AFC West with a one game lead over Kansas City, which meets Chicago on Monday night. Pittsburgh is 7-1 and has a 2½-game lead in the Central Division.

The Raiders, with the home field advantage, are rated a touchdown favorite over the Steelers, who have a shaky quarterback situation with Terry Bradshaw injured and Terry Hanratty nursing sore ribs.

The Steeler-Raider game has the spotlight on what isn't supposed to be one of the more exciting weekends of the season. Seven teams—Miami, Los Angeles, Dallas, Denver, Cleveland, Minnesota and Washington—are favored by more than seven points.

The details of the Harris catch are still vivid in the minds of most fans. The Steelers trailed Oakland 7-6 had a fourth-and-10 on their own 40 with just 36 seconds left. Oakland had taken the lead with just 1:13 left on Ken Stabler's touchdown.

Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw planned to pass to Barry Pearson but he was covered so he fired to John Fuqua at the Oakland 35. Fuqua, Oakland's Jack Tatum and the ball all arrived at the same time and in the ensuing collision — the ball bounced away completely out of the TV picture.

But it bounced right towards Harris, who snared it just before it hit the ground on the 42 and raced into the end zone. The play went into the books as a 60-yard pass because Pittsburgh started on its own 40— and it was legal only because Tatum apparently touched the ball in the collision with Fuqua although the Raiders still argue that point.

Harris, who capped a brilliant rookie season with that play, was as surprised as everyone else by the play.

"I just happened to be there at the right time. It happened so fast that I didn't have time to think about it. It's like somebody throwing a ball at you when you don't expect it.

"I just reacted. As soon as I caught it, there must have been a thousand things that flashed through my mind. I knew it was fourth down and I knew there were only seconds left by know and I knew we had to score. I just started running and I just wanted to score," he says.

But Harris says that play shouldn't affect this game. "I guess they'll be waiting for us but it's just another game for me," he says.

Obviously, for the Raiders, it's more than that. It always is in Al Davis' "Pride and Poise Country." After all that loss knocked the Raiders out of the playoffs.

Stabler, who came off the bench in that game to relieve Daryle Lamonica, is now the Raider starter.

In the other games Sunday, Minnesota hosts Detroit, San Francisco is at Washington, New Orleans is at Los Angeles, Baltimore is at Miami, Atlanta is at Philadelphia, Dallas meets the New York Giants at New Haven, San Diego is at Denver, Cincinnati is at Buffalo, Cleveland is at Houston, St. Louis is at Green Bay and New England is at the New York Jets.

Archie likes being with a winner again

NEW YORK (UPI)—Archie Manning is finding out what it's like to be a winner again and he couldn't be enjoying it more.

Manning, who was a star quarterback at the University of Mississippi before the New Orleans Saints made him a first round draft choice before the 1971 season, managed to be on the winning side in only six of his first 31 professional games.

"I was used to winning in college. We didn't win any championships but we had a good team and we went to bowl games. But things have been different in the pros. My first year wasn't that bad because we had a 4-8-2 mark and we were showing some promise but last year we really hit the skids," he remembers.

"We were 2-11-1 and we were worse than the record sounds, if that's possible. We got the heck beat out of us in seven or eight games. We'd be behind 35-0 at halftime and I'd have to play catchup and throw every down. It wasn't any fun."

Besides throwing 448 times, Manning was also running for his life much of the time. "Going into the last game of the season, I was the leading rusher on the team and I didn't want to be," he says, "I didn't want to be a Bobby Douglass. I like to scramble a bit but I like to throw from the pocket, too."

When the Saints were clobbered 62-7 and 40-3 in their first two games this season, it seemed as if nothing had changed. The Saints seemed headed for another disaster of a season.

But suddenly, everything changed.

After the losing streak reached three straight, the Saints suddenly turned around and posted four wins in their last five games.

They've reached the .500 mark with a 4-4 mark and they're only two games behind Los Angeles in the NFC West. They'll find out if they're for real in the next three weeks when they play Los Angeles twice. The oddsmakers list the Rams a two-touchdown favorite but that doesn't bother the Saints.

"There's no pressure on us," he says, "anything could happen. We're a real loose group and we're going to stay that way. After we won our first two games, we got a little too tense when we went out to play San Francisco. And we got clobbered 40-0. So now we're gone back to our old way and we're going to stay that way. And now it's been fun again. We've been playing a good brand of football and the fans have appreciated it."

Manning admits even the Saints aren't sure how they turned things around. "We can't put our finger on it. We haven't done that much differently. But I think one thing could be that we didn't get discouraged when we were 0-3. Sometimes players can start bickering but we hung together."

In the last two games the Saints have beaten Washington and Buffalo while their defense has handcuffed Larry Brown and O.J. Simpson.

"The defense has really done an excellent job," Manning says, "they've been the difference. We only scored one touchdown but they stayed in control of the game."

Manning, though, also did his share as he passed for 188 yards and the only touchdown on a nine-yard toss to Bob Newland.

Manning also noted that new coach John North has been adding players all during the season and they've helped. Kicker Bill McClard, John Beasley and Joe Profit have been with the team only two games but they've been valuable additions.

He also has kind words for departed coach J.D. Roberts, who was fired during training camp. "It was a difficult situation for all of us. The players liked J.D., nobody had anything against him. But there was a lot of fan pressure against him."

Admittedly things won't be easy for the Saints Sunday since the Rams have lost two straight. "They're as sound as team as there is in football and they'll have fire in their eyes after those two losses," Manning says.

But Manning and the Saints hope to keep pulling a few more surprises.

TODAY'S Women

Early detection

Saved life of Pomonan

By MARY REMILLARD
P-B Women's Editor

Joanne Krebs was stunned and disbelieving!

The 25-year-old, attractive young matron had just come from a physician's office where she had received the disturbing diagnosis — CANCER!

There was no reason for her to have any question about cancer. There were no symptoms. She and her husband, who were living in San Diego, had read an article about the Pap test for cervical cancer, and she decided to have the test.

"I kept saying to myself that the test was wrong. I couldn't have cancer. Young people don't get it. It is a disease of the elderly. How wrong I was," she said as she sat in the Progress-Bulletin newsroom the other day.

Now, five years later, Joanne is the picture of health and is one of the women who followed her instinct and went to a doctor's office for a test in time. She's ready to talk of her experience and she is an almost full-time volunteer for the Northeast Los Angeles County unit of the American Cancer Society. As a matter of fact, in addition to being on the unit's board, she heads up the area driver program which provides rides for treatment at no cost to cancer patients recommended to the unit by their doctors.

"I went through some trying weeks while I waited for an appointment with another doctor, a cancer specialist, but I was sure that it couldn't happen to me. It was a jarring experience to hear him confirm the first doctor's diagnosis.

"Well, I had the surgery, and then because the surgeon was not absolutely sure he had removed all the cancerous tissue, my husband and I had a gigantic decision to make.

"We have only been married for a year. We had no children. The surgeon was recommending a hysterectomy. We had to make a decision. Fortunately, I have a very understanding husband. We opted for the next surgery.

"In the first year after surgery," she says, "There were times when I was obsessed by fear and at times there were periods of depression. Gradually that lessened.'

Five years have gone by since Joanne's surgery and she says "I don't worry any more. I have become more familiar with cancer statistics, and I am sure I'm one of the lucky ones."

A little over three years ago Joanne and her husband, Fred, moved to Pomona. Once again she read a story in the paper about cancer. The Progress-Bulletin had published a request for men and women drivers to transport patients for treatment.

"I thought that was something I could really do. From then on I became very active. I direct the 25 volunteer drivers who take patients into Los Angeles or to other areas in addition to local hospitals.

"We need more drivers right now. The more we have the easier it will be for the current drivers."

There isn't a semblance of depression about the tall, auburn-haired young matron who followed her own advice to others.

"Don't sit home and brood. Fill your time up. Keep busy."

Today, Joanne is available through the Cancer Society locally as a speaker for club programs.

"My volunteer work is not at all depressing, as some would think," she says.

"It is so full of hope — hope engendered by the great strides scientists are making today — and thanksgiving for the opportunity to help others who walk the same road I once traveled."

EBELL PERFORMERS

Schedules concert

A concert group composed by Mrs. Kathreen Prout, pianist, Dr. James Mooney, clarinetist, and Alice Corbeil, violinist, will present the program for the Ebell Club luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Friday in the Ebell clubhouse.

Mrs. Prout holds a master of music degree from Indiana University and taught there before coming to the Pomona area. She has been heard locally as soloist with Pomona Community band and Pomona Valley Symphony orchestra and was accompanist for the annual performance of "The Messiah" at Chaffey High School for more than 10 years. Presently she is teaching at Cal Poly and is organist for Pomona Valley Church of Religious Science in Claremont.

Dr. Mooney is acting head of the Cal Poly Music department this term. He holds a bachelor's degree from Arizona State University and the Ph. D. from Brigham Young University. He was solo clarinetist with the Phoenix Symphony orchestra for 18 years and has taught at Cal Poly for over five years where he is conductor of the university orchestra.

Alice Corbeil holds bachelor's and master's degrees and came to Claremont as director of elementary music in the Claremont schools. She has been a member of the Pasadena Civic Symphony and the Claremont Symphony orchestra. For years she was the director of Our Lady of the Assumption Church choir. She is currently instructor in violin and string fundamental classes at Cal Poly.

Curators for the Ebell Sections will be honored during the afternoon.

Welcoming guests will be Mrs. Richard Leezer, Mrs. Ansel S. Smith, Mrs. L. L. Gronewick and Mrs. Rufus Knight.

Resolve to move forward

Today marks the first day of an intensive American Cancer Society effort to alert local women to the value of the Pap test for early detection of cancer of the uterus.

During the week the emphasis will be on getting women to have the Pap test, a simple, painless test.

The American Cancer Society feels that if every woman would have the Pap test every year as part of her annual health checkup, she could be sure she is taking the most effective known way of protecting herself from the disease.

Lifetime nestegg

Getting cracks in it

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hardest hit by the skyrocketing cost of living are those persons on fixed incomes —the retired, the ones depending on social security for their keep, those who see the nestegg of a lifetime being cracked into pieces like a Humpty Dumpty.

The monetary philosophy of a friend of mine —"If you have to spend more, just earn more" —doesn't work for a lot of our citizens. How to get maximum money's worth becomes a daily assignment in penny-pinching.

Increasingly, however, help comes from consumer groups, fiscal experts, and the banks. More and more the banks are pushing consumer newsletters offering advice on everything from supermarket shopping to buying a home.

Some guidelines for all of us, and especially valuable to senior citizens, come from The Bowery, which calls itself the largest savings bank in America.

One step—don't be victimized by any business operating outside the law. When buying major items, get conditions in writing on sales slips, such as delivery date, guarantee and the right to exchange or return the merchandise.

Before signing a contract, read it carefully, "sleep" on it, and talk it over with someone you trust. Oral understandings of a contract are not binding.

Don't order merchandise by mail if the advertisement gives no legal address. A post office box is not sufficient.

An agreement to buy or sell real estate is a contract. Since such a contract may involve a great deal of money make sure it states precisely what you want it to state. Also, stay away from commitments to buy property sight unseen. Otherwise, you could end up in a swamp.

Make yourself familiar with exactly what your health insurance covers. Don't wait until you have a claim to find what you're entitled to. If you don't understand your policy, get an insurance agent to explain it.

Get a written estimate before you have anything repaired. Some states now require repairmen to give an estimate and the final cost must not exceed 20 per cent of the estimate.

Try a tool of American business —the budget. Write the plan. it cuts inefficient spending, stiffens resistance to impulse buying, prepares you better for peak spending periods, and serves as a control of overextended credit.

In budgeting, make room for the irregular requirements such as seasonal fuel, medical checkups, school supplies, and major purchases such as cars, washing machines and the like.

Set your goals —and review them from time to time. For some, the long term goal may be a debt free home and a healthy savings account. For some, the education of children. And for others, the focus may be more squarely on retirement plans as the children grow out of the nest.

Cancer Ed. Week now in effect

This year's Cancer Education Week is for women only, according to H. William Fister, M. D., Pasadena, who is president of the American Cancer Society's Northeast Los Angeles County unit. The unit includes Pomona Valley.

Dr. Fister said the annual educational effort by the society is focusing on the life-saving Pap test for early detection of cancer of the uterine cervix.

"If every American woman would have an annual Pap test this type of cancer would be a thing of the past. Yet, sadly, about 12,000 women will die of this disease in 1973," he pointed out.

The American Cancer Society thinks so highly of this test that it has as one of its major goals to have every American woman have the Pap test by 1976.

The Pap test is more than 95 per cent accurate in detecting cancer of the uterine cervix and about 60 per cent accurate in cancer of the uterine corpus, he explained.

Pomona physician

Views statistics

During the American Cancer Society's Cancer Education Week which begins Monday, the Northeast Los Angeles County unit will be trying to reach in particular the less-advantaged, minority groups and special high risk groups with the message about the life-saving Pap test.

William E. Lubke, M. D., currently chief, Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, says "The Pap test has the potential of saving thousands of American women each year.

"Approximately four out of every 100 women in the United States will develop breast cancer and about another four will develop uterine cancer, both cervical and fundal. With most cancers of the body we cannot detect them until they have actually become large enough to be felt or seen or cause bleeding or pain and by then it is often too late.

"The marvelous thing about the Pap smear is in its use to detect cancer of the cervix before it actually becomes invading cancer. Since we think it takes several years for pre-invasive cancer to invade and cause death, if every woman were to receive yearly Pap smears we should be able almost completely to eliminate death from cancer of the cervix.

"Dr. Lubke invites valley women to contact the local American Cancer Society office at 111 W. Center St., Pomona, for more information on Cancer Education Week.

Weekly stocks

Energy crisis hits market, wildest loss in 11 years

NEW YORK (UPI) —The New York Stock Exchange suffered its second consecutive week of sharp declines in an atmosphere of almost total confusion over the nation's energy crisis.

The decline was capped Friday by the sixth largest one day drop in the history of the Dow Jones industrial average— 24.24 points. This widest loss in more than eleven years for the popular market indicator reflected serious uncertainty, always anathema in Wall Street.

All other considerations—Watergate, the possible resignation or impeachment of President Nixon, the Federal Reserve's tight money policies, and inflation — were overshadowd as investors tried to determine which industries will be affected most adversely by the energy crisis.

The result was widespread selling. For the week, the Dow Jones industrial average lost 26.87 to 908.41, this added to a drop the previous week of 51.78 points—one of the worst one week slides in Exchange history.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index declined 1.77 to 105.30. The NYSE index dropped 1.10 to 56.51.

There were 1,346 declines, only 429 advances among the 1,976 issues traded.

Turnover was moderate most of the week, with sales totaling 87,111,633 shares, compared with 86,714,378 the week before and with 87,376,070 a year before.

President Nixon's energy message delivered Wednesday night promptly became the week's major market factor, according to many observers. Initially, the effect of the speech was positive, as investors felt a major uncertainty had been removed: at least Wall Street now knew what the federal government intended to do in response to the energy emergency.

Among the actions proposed were a step-up in the priority given to the development of atomic energy power plants, and the increased use of coal as an energy alternative to oil. Stocks of railroad companies, which had languished on the Bog Board for years, suddenly came to life since many rail concerns either transport coal or actually mine it. Union Pacific rose 7 ¾, Norfolk ⅞ Western 6½, Chessie System 4 ⅞.

Even financially - troubled Penn Central advanced 1¼ as rails also were helped by legislation passed by Congress assigning $1.4 billion in aid to the nation's lines.

For that matter, the entire market received a big if shortlived, lift Thursday from the Nixon speech. The Dow Jones industrial average climbed nearly 20 points in the first hour of trading, fell back in profit-taking, but got a second wind around noon when investors learned of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's apparent success in bringing Israel and Egypt a few steps closer to the bargaining table. The Dow ended Thursday with a hefty 12.57-point gain.

By Friday, however, industry analysts, institutions and smaller investors had taken a harder look at the meaning of an energy crisis, and Nixon's warning the nation's energy needs may have to be pared in the months and years to come.

QUINTESSENCE

by Florence Minto

Following weeks will give a brief synopsis of our group's experiences and reactions on the 22 day safari to South Africa, Rhodesia, Kenya, and Tanzania which departed from Pomona on Oct. 12 with 15 members of the total group of 26 being from Pomona, Covina, and surrounding vicinities.

First stopover was Rio which is now the popular gateway to South Africa mainly to give a break in the long flights and to catch up with the "jet lag" which is 4 hours. Lax to Rio and an actual flying time of 14 hours via New York. Weather when we arrived in Rio at 6:00 AM on Saturday was cool and light rain. But Sunday morning arrived sparkling and sunny the way Rio was meant to be so that its jewels, Copacabana, Ipenema, and many other beaches, were soon filled with week-end bikinis and their followers. Hurried to catch Sugar Loaf and Corcovado with Christ The Redeemer Statue before clouds obscured the panorama. Shopping and feasting for two nights and we're fortified to fly on to Capetown, South Afria, to a whole new world and way of life we think we are familiar with but find surprisingly foreign. Languid 72 degrees in day and breezy seacoast evenings. Seasons are reversed and brilliant crocus, sweetpeas, and numerous other spring Flora are abundant now as we travel countryside. A sudden patch of color and we are introduced to the national Flower of South Africa, the Protea. A Cable car ride 3005 feet to crest of TABLE MOUNTAIN for a panoramic view of Capetown flanked by Indian and Atlantic Oceans. Next day we enter Cape of Good Hope Nature Reserve and are met by bold baboons arrogantly inspecting each car by hopping on hoods peering into hasitly-closed windows. Ostriches are now in nesting season and gentle Bontelbok are forerunners of thrilling moments yet to come in Safari. After much camera clicking, Mel and Vivian Hull climb contendely on board bus back to Heerengracht Hotel in time for the sumptuous banquet planned for tonight.

Johannesburg next week.

What's new? how about a peace course

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) —A 63-year-old Quaker is teaching peace at Cabrillo College.

The purpose of the course, taught by Dr. Earle Reynolds, is to teach that conflicts need not be settled by war.

"Conflict will always be with us," said Reynolds, "but the means we use to settle our conflict need not always be the same."

About 20 students are enrolled in the course, which explores such topics as "peace as a science," "peace and conflict," "peace action" and "peace as a profession."

Reynolds, in an interview, said he spent the past 12 years lecturing all over the United States, trying to sell the idea of teaching peace.

He succeeded in establishing the first peace course on the Cabrillo College campus after two professors there heard of Reynolds' interest and asked him to establish the class.

Reynolds supplies the class with his own private library of 80 books covering the entire range of peace topics. Students also go on field trips such as a recent trip to San Jose where they heard a talk by an editor of a national peace newspaper, Between the Lines.

They also participate in simulation games simulating an actual problem situation, then analyzing it.

In one game, Reynolds explained, the class divided into two groups. One group represented community leaders and the other those who wanted to make a change in the community. The groups analyzed the conflict by performing a charade.

Although the idea of peace courses is relatively new, Reynolds said Peace as an applied science is catching on at many schools, with programs leading to doctorate and professorship peace degrees in some colleges.

Reynolds' efforts for peace have included taking medical supplies to North and South Vietnam with a crew of other Quakers. He traveled on the boat Phoenix to these and other places, including a trip to Russia in the 1950s to protest nuclear testing there.

Reynolds' interest in peace goes back to the 1940s when he was an anthropologist serving on the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission. The commission studied the effects of the bomb on Hiroshima; his studies centered around the effect of radiation on the body, especially in children.

The anthropologist then spent six years sailing around the world. While docked in Hawaii, his Phoenix was next to a Quaker boat, the Golden Rule.

Chess

Not plagiarism, just research

It is only a slight exaggeration to say that most players will never play the exact same game twice in their lives. With the exception of trivial instances of recurring opening traps, which force an immediate resignation or mate, the possibilities in chess are sufficiently inexhaustible that exact replication is a freak outcome.

When Capablanca in the 1930s complained that chess was being exhausted and suggested that the bishops and knights be interchanged in the initial position to provide new possibilities, he was perhaps revealing the sterility of his own opening ideas. With the further exploration of chess openings, more and more possibilities have become available, albeit later and later in the game. The identical phenomenon is well know from all fields of knowledge, especially natural science.

A recent enumeration of several remarkably similar games by Bernard Cafferty in the British magazine "Chess" is instructive. The games show a striking repetition of moves and themes up to a point but then they take off on unique paths.

(Diagram 1)

What is Fischer's 12th move?

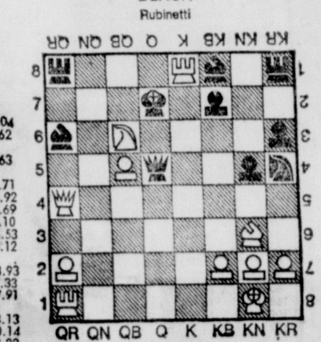
Here's an example, with Bobby Fischer winning via a well known thematic sacrifice that exploits the rook vs. king situation on the king file. Look at diagram one.

What is Fischer's move (the acrifice!)? Consult and play over the score of the game to see fully how he proceeds.

It is true that the variation is derived from the game Honfi vs. Tatai, Monaco, 1968, as Cafferty informs us. It is also true that the latter game goes back to another game played in 1955. But although the key ideas and execution are remarkably similar, the exact play in each game is unique.

(Diagram 2)

BLACK
Rubinetti



Fischer
WHITE

Rubinetti resigned.

As you play over Fischer's game, you will see how his pieces swarm over the black queenside where the black king is an easy target. The final position of Fischer-Rubinetti (diagram two) is similar encugh to the final position of another game cited, Tal-Mukhin (diagram three), to have caught Cafferty's attention.

(Diagram 3)

BLACK Mukhin

Tal
WHITE

White will play PxN; black will resign.

Cafferty has emphasized the similarity of these positions because the move sequences are close and the outcomes are immediate and identical. I.e. black resigns!

But most "similar" positions reached after 20 or so moves are only taking-off points for future play. They are subjectively experienced as "unique" and certainly become such as play unfolds further.

Long overdue, but she paid

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —An elderly Tucson woman apparently had misplaced a bill from a local hospital and when she discovered it she scurried over to make payment.

The original bill was $19, but the woman reached into her purse and placed $250 on the counter.

"When were you in the hospital?" the cashier asked.

"In 1936," replied the woman.

Faking of Bordeaux wine angers French vintners

BORDEAUX, France (UPI) — Disclosure that some dealers were "mixing" some of their most precious Bordeaux wines with lesser vintages has made French vintners fighting mad— and got them fighting back.

What has come to be known as the "Bordeaux wine scandal" broke into headlines in late August. Official secrecy surrounded the criminal and tax investigations of the affair but French press reports said it centered on some two million bottles of common, inexpensive wine—found in the warehouse of a dealer—that was to be sold as expensive Bordeaux, from a designated Bordeaux vineyard.

The case was still in the courts as the 1973 harvest ended in late October, with both criminal and revenue charges pending. Meantime the vintners are taking their own action. Their answer: a campaign to spread the practice of bottling the rich ruby-colored or White bordeaux "at the chateau" — which means not in the warehouses of the wine merchants but at the vineyards themselves.

"We call just about every vineyard estate a chateau even if it's only a house surrounded by three hectars (7.5 acres) of grapevines," Count Led De Malet Roquefort explained.

De Malet directs the annual fall harvest and wine production at Chateau La Gaffeliere, his family's home for four centuries and the name for one of the St. Emilion district's 12 top-rated wines.

"We've been doing our own bottling here for some years now," the count said, "but many Chateaux do not."

By far the greatest quantity of bordeaux is sold by winemakers in 55-gallon casks to merchants who bottle it and then wheel and deal the wine in France and aboard. Almost a third of the 500 million bottles of bordeaux wine produced annually is sold abroad.

Thierry Manoncourt, the owner of Chateau Figeac, another top rated St. Emilion now bottled at the chateau, gave an insight into the bottling and labeling questions.

"It sometimes occurred," he said, "that a merchant who purchased from me let's say the equivalent of 500 bottles asked for 600 of my Chateau Figeac labels. I always asked him why, and if he said he intended to make 200 halfbottles, I'd tell him well, look I've got special smaller labels for half-bottles."

Jean Capdemourlin, president of the St. Emilion District Wine Makers Association, representing 13,000 vineyard acres, said "the label on one of our bottles is like a check. It must be unquestionable. Bottling at the chateau puts the responsibility for what's in the bottle directly on us—where we want it."

Chateau bottling

The history of Bordeaux wine begins in pre-Roman empire times, but commercial bottling at the chateau dates from only the last 20 or 30 years. Before that chateau-bottling was limited to small quantities that the family of the winegrower would consume during a year.

This summer, Capdemourlin and his association voted unanimously to require the 84 highest rated St. Emilion "growths" or wines to be corked in the ink-green cylindrical Bordeaux bottles at the chateau. There are also 900 "unrated" St. Emilions.

Penalty for not complying—loss of the all-important "rating."

The consumer can spot homebottled wines because "mise en bouteille au chateau" or "bottled at the chateau" is splashed in red letters across the label and even imprinted in the cork.

For now at least, it is the better known and more expensive Bordeaux that are making or have made the switch to chateau bottling and these wines are not cheap.

Bus drivers may refuse to stop at problem areas

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bus service to certain schools could be discontinued if there are any more attacks on drivers by youth gangs, the United Transportation Union said this week.

UTU general chairman Earl Clark said bus drivers will refuse to make stops at the "problem schools" if security measures are not improved. On Tuesday two drivers were chased from their buses by Horace Mann Junior High School students armed with chains and clubs.

"If a similar incident occurs where there is no security coverage, we will advise our members serving the problem schools not to pick up or discharge passengers at the school," Clark said.

The Southern California Rapid Transit District has ordered radios and flashing lights installed in some buses which can be triggered by a driver under attack. The move came in response to a wildcat "sick-in" strike by some 600 drivers.

"We know it would be virtually impossible to eliminate every single incident on the buses," Clark said, "but when a major incident takes place at a school where we have had repeated problems in the past, then it's obvious that some people aren't doing their jobs."

More wage-price controls predicted

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Price Commission chairman C. Jackson Grayson says he expects more wage and price controls two years after Phase 4 ends, unless an answer to inflation can be found.

Grayson said controls will not work well in the future because the business community will learn how to get around them better.

Paintings by Olitski to be shown

PASADENA — A retrospective exhibition of the paintings of Jules Olitski will open Nov. 27 at the Pasadena Museum of Modern Art.

The show was arranged by Kenworth Moffett of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Olitski has used color in a number of ways — through impasto, direct stain and the spray technique which he developed. In an abstract painting, in which the materials themselves become the expressive agents, the discovery of a new technique of application brings a whole new style and feeling. Moffett says in his catalogue essay, "This was true for example, of Jackson Pollock's drip technique, Morris Louis' stainings and more recently of Larry Poon's pourings; and it is true of Olitski's spraying."

Faculty art show will start today

WALNUT — "Eight Artists from the Faculty" will be the opening exhibition of the 1973-74 season in the newly remodeled Mt. San Antonio College art gallery.

The opening reception will be held from 5 to 9 p.m. today. Community residents are invited. The artists will be on hand to discuss many facets of art with visitors.

Art department faculty works will include oils, watercolors, prints, graphics and sculpture by Thomas Herberg, James Hueter, Carl Knitig, John Lees, Ronald Ownbey, Robert Ronketty, Dwight Ryerson and Martha Villegas.

Two gallery rooms have been remodeled during the summer allowing greater flexibility for exhibitions. Air conditioning, new walls and floors, and additional lighting will give gallery director Jessica Jacobs much wider arrangement possibilities for the five major shows this year.

Regular gallery hours will be Mondays through Fridays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. "Eight Artists From the Faculty" will run to Nov. 30.

Six nationally known artists, representing fields of painting, graphics, sculpture, ceramics, crafts and art history, will be brought to campus at intervals to lecture and meet with students. The activities of these artists will be recorded on film with sound tracks by the Scripps film arts program, headed by Paul Darrow, professor of art, and Ted Kerzie, assistant professor of art and coordinator of the program.

POMONA — An exhibition of oils and watercolors by Claremont artist Elfrieda Jaeger is now on display at Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave.

Seascapes, landscapes, and still lifes are represented in the group. The landscapes are of Southern California areas, especially those around Claremont, as seen by Mrs. Jaeger in weekly explorations.

Mrs. Jaeger, who signs her work Freda, is a graduate of Pomona College. In her year at Claremont Graduate School her instructors included Jean Goodwin Ames and Walter Gashin. She has also studied with Milford Zornes.

Mrs. Jaeger has taught art and crafts in adult education at Claremont High School and for seven years taught art crafts at the high school level. She was an elementary teacher for 13 years. After her retirement she resumed her own activities in art and music. Her late afternoons now are occupied with teaching a children's class in piano study.

National Home Builders:

More local involvement asked in flood measures

WASHINGTON — The National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has urged Congress to provide for more decision making by the people most affected by governmental treatment of flood control areas.

John C. Hart, NAHB vice president, told the Senate's Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee that landowners and local communities should be given the opportunity to participate in the process of identifying flood-prone communities and of establishing land use controls to prevent future hazards.

Certain safeguards are lacking in the proposed Disaster Protection Act of 1973, particularly with respect to administration of the program, he added.

"It needs flexibility and reasonableness in setting land use control criteria. It also needs to eliminate penalties against landowners who improve their land in good faith.

"Communities and landowners have a great deal at stake in the outcome of studies and investigations of flood hazards and the establishment of land use controls," said Hart.

"They also have much to offer in the way of data relating to past flooding experience, the individual characteristics of their areas, planned or existing projects to avoid damage, and economic and social impacts of proposed regulations.

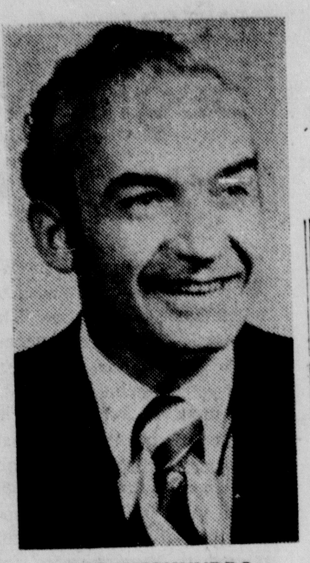
"They should have an ample opportunity to bring to the attention of Federal officials administering the program all pertinent information that bears on the course and outcome of these studies."

Arbitary determinations by the Federal Government of hazardous areas and the establishment of unreasonable local land use controls could prove to be disastrous. Also, it is imperative that a constant check be made on the methods and procedures employed in forecasting the possibility of future floods to assure that the very best and latest methods and procedures are employed, he noted.

Hart also said that the 100-year storm standard for land use controls is too stringent and works a hardship on communities and landowners. He urged that the standard be reduced to 50 years.

Hart said the proposed legislation would prohibit lenders under federal supervision from making loans secured by real estate located in areas having special flood hazards if the community is not participating in the National Flood Insurance Program.

"It is obvious that the intent of this provision is to force communities to adopt the program and to accept the mandates of the Federal Government with respect to the program. We believe that such a severe penalty is unneccessarily harsh on the landowner who has improved his land in good faith before flood levels have been set in his area."



BOB OMOHUNDRO

Hawkins Co. opens office in Claremont

CLAREMONT — Bob Omohundro has been named manager of the new Claremont branch office of Herbert Hawkins Realtors, which opens Thursday.

The new office will be located in the Regis-Foothill Shopping Center, 1011 W. Foothill Blvd. Ample parking is provided.

The Foothill Boulevard location is ideally situated to serve the communities of La Verne, Claremont and north Pomona, he said.

Omohundro has been active in real estate sales for the past two years, with most of that time associated with the Hawkins office in Upland. He had previously served as a newspaper circulation manager. The officer manager has been a member of the Upland-Ontario-Chino Board of Realtors and will soon become active with the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

The Claremont office is the 27th operated by Herbert Hawkins Realtors. This includes franchised locations in Orange County. Another new office is scheduled to open soon in Chino. Other local offices are in Pomona, Ontario, and Upland.

The company, with headquarters in Temple City, also provides escrow, mortgage, insurance, termite and consumer protection services.

Evolution info revised

CHICAGO (UPI) — New studies have revised the evolutionary timetable.

There now appears to have been about 70 million years available for the development of modern mammals instead of only 5 million as formerly estimated, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica. The revision followed new studies of radioactive rocks.

The 60 persons employed at the San Onofre Nuclear Generating Station have not registered a single industrial lost-time injury accident since the plant opened five years ago.

The facility is 80 per cent owned by the Southern California Edison Co. and 20 per cent by the San Diego Gas and Electric Co. It has been providing needed energy to the growing demand of people and business since 1968.

"When you consider the plant has generated nearly 16 billion kilowatt hours of electricity in such a short time, the benefits of nuclear power really come into focus," said Hans Ottoson, superintendent.

"It's hard to explain how much power that is, but that five and a half year output would equal more than enough power to satisfy all of Edison's industrial customers for one year."

No one has ever been killed—or even injured—from nuclear causes resulting from operating commercial power plants in the United States, industry leaders point out.

The extraordinary safety of the nuclear industry has been recognized again this year by a premium refund of nearly $1.4 million by the two American nuclear liability insurance pools. This brings to more than $5 million the total of premium refunds paid in the past seven years by the two pools, Nuclear Energy Liability Insurance Association, and Mutual Atomic Energy Liability Underwriters.

Neither pool has ever received a claim arising from the operation of a nuclear power reactor—and the pools have been in operation since 1957, about the time the first commercial nuclear power plant started producing electricity.

A spokesman for the pools recently stated that "the exceptionally good safety record of the entire nuclear field for which the pools provide liability coverage is without parallel in other industries."

The experience, he said, confirms the effectiveness of the safety measures taken to protect the public and suggests that other industries may have much to learn from the nuclear field regarding safety.

People, not fabrics, cause of fires

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "People, not fabrics, cause fires," says Chairman Robert W. Blanchard of the Textile Industry Product Safety Committee. "We will give a high priority to improving retardant fabrics but the public should not be lulled into a false sense of security by these fabrics. People must not subject garments or drapery to undue fire hazards."

Farm surplus now a minus

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Victory Compton, a Freeland Township farmer, went to check his farm surplus Tuesday and found he didn't have any.

The Saginaw County sheriff's department said someone apparently stole Compton's 4,500 pounds of navy beans, worth an estimated $1,500, with the help of a big truck and a bean elevator.

It was the fourth such incident in a month.

His topic will be "Affirmative Fair Housing Marketing Pursuant to Title VIII, 1968 Civil Rights Act." The public is invited.

Vic Tessier, association attorney, will also conduct the regular "problem clinic" at the meeting.

Hearings begin Monday on new housing costs

SAN DIEGO — There may be real possibilities of bringing new housing within the reach of many who now are unable to obtain financing, said Assemblyman Peter R. Chacon, D-San Diego.

Chacon, chairman of the Assembly's Urban Development and Housing Committee, said the group will conduct two days of hearing here starting Monday. Members will hear testimony on all the factors involved in the costs of new housing.

"Over 750,000 people in California are in over-crowded or substandard housing now," he reported. "Each time interest rates go up, thousands more can't get financing.

"I think we can lower the amount of the mortgage loan required to purchase a home. New homes usually include $2,000 to $3,000 in costs and fees for public improvements related to housing, said the legislator.

The builder pays these costs now and passes them to the buyer, he explained. Financing of these public improvements could be done with low interest municipal revenue bonds and then collected from the homeowner in the form of taxes.

"Shifting these costs to taxes will also lower the assessed value of the homes and help lower his neighbors' taxes also," said Chacon.

Development offers $100 move in costs

FONTANA — Buyers can move into a new home at the La Linda Homes development here with only a $100 down payment.

Other than the $100 down payment, buyers pay no closing costs since they are paid by La Linda Estates, builder of the project, said Richard Hall president.

Buyers have their choice of three floor plans with two, three and four bedrooms and one or two bathrooms.

One home plan offered is the Granada Plan which won a National Association of Home Builder's "gold nugget" award in a previous La Linda Homes community.

The La Linda sales office is located in the model home at 7812 Blanchard Ave. Eight homes are on Blanchard, with the other six on Fairview Road.

Persons can reach the site from the San Bernardino Freeway by going north on Sierra Avenue, east on Foothill Boulevard, north on Palmetto Avenue, west on Reed Street and north on Blanchard to Fairview.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — A small amount of sticky transparent tape will help clean a smudgy eraser. And typists will find it very handy to keep an emery board close by the typewriter. Rubbing the eraser over the board will quickly clean it. — MARGO.

●

DEAR POLLY — To keep my sewing machine bobbins that are filled with polyester thread separate from those filled with cotton thread, I put a dot of red nail polish on the polyester-filled ones. — K. L. L.

DEAR POLLY — A cup of vinegar in your dishwasher now and then will clean out the built-up residue from detergents. — L. F.

(DEAR GIRLS — I am sure none of you use anything but a detergent made for automatic dishwashing, never the sudsing type used for hand dishwashing. Hard water can cause lime deposits in the machine. Two cups of vinegar put in the empty dishwasher (detergent omitted) and then operated on "rinse and hold" also is recommended. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My daughter disliked carrying her kindergarten papers in the usual flat bags. I made her a pretty one that is easier to carry. Here's how: Cut a roll from tissue paper so it is about 1-inch longer than the papers. Tape a circle of cardboard over one open end. Cover the holder with bright-colored adhesive-backed paper. Make a hole near the top of the open end. Attach a length of small chain or heavy cord as a handle. — JOY.

DEAR POLLY — To cut down on losing or misplacing scarves and gloves, keep a medium-size safety pin fastened to the lining seam of any coat. Even if the coat has a pocket this is a safer way to keep from losing such articles. This is particularly good for children's wear. — MRS. B. W. H.

DEAR POLLY — Thumbtack a short strip of adhesive tape, sticky-side-out, to the wall behind your washing machine. When a button, hook or snap comes off in the wash it can be easily pressed against the tape. On mending day there are no fruitless searches for matching "findings." — MRS. W.

●

DEAR POLLY — Slice pine cones with a sharp knife and make "flowers" for some new shapes to add to cones piled in a bowl for decoration. To make unbreakable and gay decorations for a festive occasion yarn can be tied to cones, which have been dipped into thin glue and then into glitter or confetti. — MRS. W. D. S.

The Wreath
You can make this handsome wreath trimmed with daisies made on your Crazy Daisy Winder and pretty pincushions! No. 5588 has full directions for making wreath.

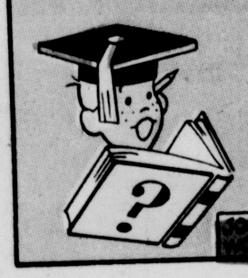
ALASKAN BEARS...

THE LARGEST BEARS OF ALL ARE THE BIG BROWN BEARS OF ALASKA. THESE GIANTS MAY WEIGH MORE THAN 1,500 POUNDS, AND CAN BE OVER NINE FEET TALL WHEN STANDING ON THEIR HIND FEET.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

SUSAN NUTTER OF POUGHKEEPSIE, NY, ASKS:

"WHY DOES HAIR TURN GRAY?"



THE COLOR IN OUR HAIR COMES FROM TINY BITS OF COLORING MATTER, OR PIGMENTS, THAT ARE ADDED TO OUR HAIR BEFORE IT GROWS OUT OF THE SKIN. THIS IS THE SAME COLORING MATTER THAT HELPS COLOR OUR SKIN. AS PEOPLE GROW OLDER, THE BODY LOSES ITS POWER TO ADD THE COLORING MATTERS TO THE NEWLY GROWING HAIR, AND THE HAIR GRADUALLY BECOMES ALMOST COLORLESS, OR GRAY.

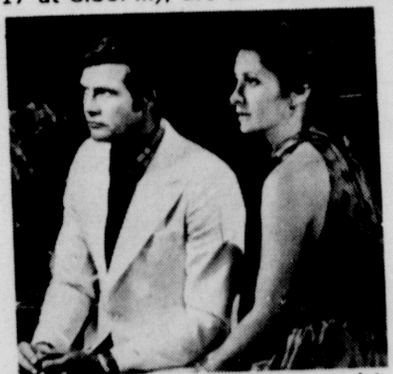
RUSS MAYBERRY: GENTLE GIANT

A man running for his life . . . An explosion . . . A daring rescue by helicopter . . . These elements which contribute to the visual impact of "The Billion Dollar Diplomat," airing on ABC's Lee Majors starrer, "The Six Million Dollar Man" (Saturday, Nov. 17 at 8:30PM), are all in a day's work to director Russ Mayberry.



Lee Majors as Steve Austin, a special government agent and Elizabeth Ashley as Dr. Erica Bergner, work together to develop a plan to discover the whereabouts of a kidnapped presidential advisor.

A soft-voiced gentle giant (6–3 and 200 lbs.), Mayberry can be counted on not to get rattled in the hectic atmosphere of filming a 90-minute movie on a 12-day shooting schedule. "Feature films have the luxury of spending a full day on two pages of action. We have learned to do the same in an hour and a half," Mayberry said. "But I really enjoy the pace of television."

Russ has directed over 200 television films after getting his start on commercials and in live television production. He puts in two hours each morning on the set, preparing for the day's shooting, before his crew arrives to begin a 12-hour filming day. Weekends, Mayberry spends four to six hours planning his next production. 'I write myself voluminous notes," he said with a grin.

Even when a truck breaks down, or it rains on location, Russ doesn't get rattled. He attributes his low-pressure attitude to his early days on a farm near Duluth, Minn., where he grew up with two brothers.

A graduate of Northwestern University where he majored in theater arts, Mayberry began his career as a stage manager at a Chicago TV station. He later directed live television there. To learn about film, Mayberry went to New York and began directing commercials. It was here he learned some of the innovations, opticals and editing that he uses in directing today. "You can't wait for inspiration in television. You have to work within the framework of the time available," he said. That constant challenge of speed is carried over into Russ' personal life. His favorite hobby is racing and he has driven Formula B cars in competition.

'SAMMY OPPOSITE SAMMY'

One of the highlights of a uniquely highlighted special, "General Electric Presents Sammy," airing on NBC, Friday at 8:30PM, is a split-screen sequence in which Sammy Davis, Jr. plays opposite himself in the dual roles of Sportin' Life and Porgy in a special segment taken from "Porgy and Bess."

The dual roles, totally different in every aspect, serve only to underline the remarkable versatility of Sammy Davis, Jr. as perhaps the most gifted and dynamic performer in show business history.

Other musical highlights include "Mr. Bojangles," a tribute to the late Bill Robinson; a lavish production number, "Get It On"; Sammy's arresting version of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow"; and an in-the-round performance by Sammy with George Rhodes conducting the Jack Parnell orchestra for "For Once In My Life," "Birth of The Blues" and "I'm Not Anyone."

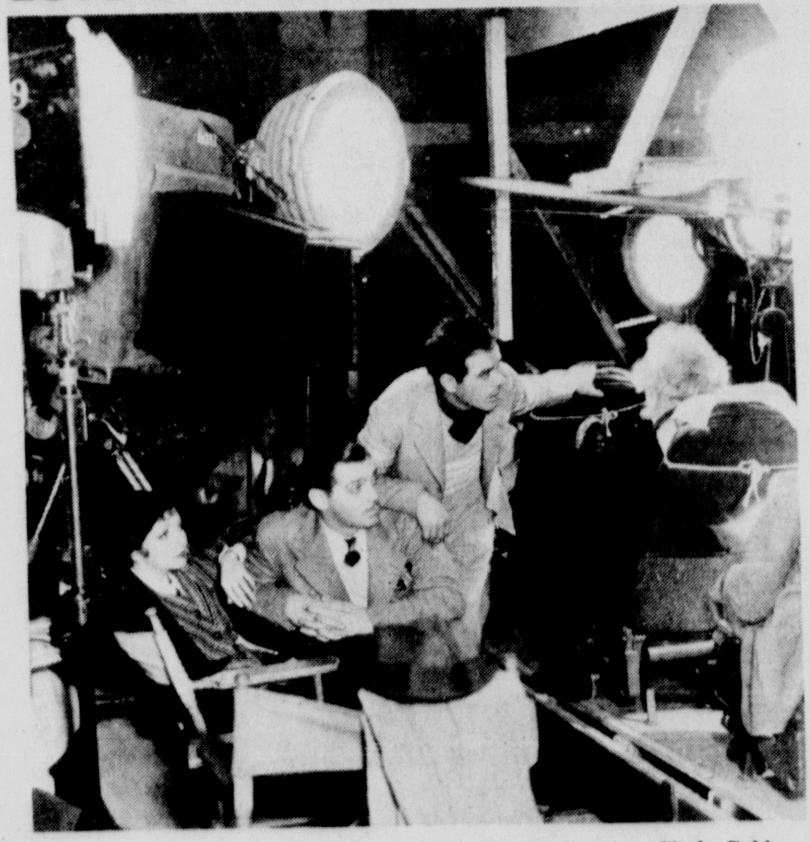
FRANK CAPRA: LOVE OF THE COMMON MAN



Frank Capra (leaning over in center) is shown directing Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert in a scene for "It Happened One Night."

Probably no director in the history of the American motion picture industry has been more successful in capturing the very essence of the common man on film than Frank Capra, a three-time Academy Award winner for best direction.

And no wonder! For Capra himself springs from common stock, and his success story typifies the fulfillment of the American dream. Born into poverty, Capra lifted himself from obscurity to emerge as one of the great film directors of all time.

Capra discusses his childhood and his eventual rise to power and fame as a Hollywood film maker in the second program of KCET's new series, The Men Who Made the Movies, airing on Channel 28, Sunday at 7:30PM.

Interviewed for the telecast by noted film critic Richard Schickel, who has produced, written and directed the series Capra says:

"I fell in love with Americans when I was a young kid. I was born into an extremely poor family and when I was old enough to see some of the poverty around me, I didn't like it at all. What I didn't like most, and I remember this quite vividly," he adds, "was that none of my family—not my mother, my father, my sisters or my brothers—could read or write. And this struck me as something I just wouldn't stand for. I wanted to get an education more than anything in the world," Capra recalls. "I may have been born a peasant, but I wasn't going to die one."

Capra's love of America and his admiration and respect for the dignity of the common man has stayed with him throughout his life and is evident in many of his films, especially such classics as "Meet John Doe," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "Mr. Deeds Comes to Town" and "It's A Wonderful Life."

"It epitomized everything I ever wanted to achieve in past films," he explains. "It says that everyman is an important individual and that no one is ever really a failure as a human being."

COVER CLOSE-UP

'A NEW VIEW'

After 14 working years on the Ponderosa, Lorne Greene is viewing series life through 20th Century glasses. He stars as distinguished private investigator Wade Griffin in ABC's contemporary one-hour Griff series which also stars Ben Murphy as his colleague Mike Murdoch, airing Saturdays at 10PM.

"We are certainly dealing with 'now' themes in this series," the tanned, silver-haired star commented during location filming at a bank in the town of San Fernando for the episode, "Countdown to Terror." Ricardo Montalban was guesting as the mentally deranged man who, with dynamite attached to his body, holds terrified hostages in a bank vault. Wes Stern guests as medical student Elliot Shakman, one of the victims being held.

"This is a good and interesting script," said Greene. "Griff is in great danger in this story as he tries to save the hostages after Montalban has him summoned to the vault."

Lorne Greene (seated) is starred as Griff, Ben Murphy stars as his colleague, Mike Murdoch, and Patricia Stich is co-starred as their secretary, Gracie Newcombe.

Griff operates Wade Griffin Investigations from a suite of tastefully decorated offices in a Spanish-style court in Westwood Village near the sprawling UCLA campus where he is a familiar figure on the tennis courts. The actor views Griff, a veteran of 30 years in the police department who achieved the rank of captain, as a "brilliant member of the force who had one hang up—that all are innocent until proved guilty. He quit the department because of it." Griff, with important contacts throughout the city, prefers his present investigative work which brings worthwhile people in trouble to him in cases frequently involving homicide.

"It's the actors and actresses who have to make a series more than just a western or just a detective show," Greene said. "We wanted four good series characters and I'm happy that Ben Murphy plays my younger partner. He has developed into a fine young actor. Patricia Stich, who co-stars as our secretary Gracie Newcombe adds a bright, warm dimension to the series. Vic Tayback is competent and believable in his co-star role as Capt. Barney Marcus, whom Griff suggested as his replacement when he left the department.

"I would like to see three interesting characters added to the series on an irregular basis, persons whom Griff had rehabilitated and with whom he has established friendships. If Griff needs a locksmith or a man with a boat, for instance, he goes to them and through these characters the audience could get to know who Griff is and more about his background."

When Greene is not filming or involved in benefit appearances, he takes unusual pleasure in his home, secluded in a rustic canyon in the Pacific Palisades, and family. "When I am at the house, I don't want to leave. It is so peaceful and relaxed," he commented. "The only times we don't live here is when we go to Long Island. We bought a modest home there, right on the sound, so that our daughter Gillian, 4½ years old, will be able to get to know my wife Nancy's family and this is not possible on the basis of simply visiting there."

The Big Scandal In Our Pensions— By Sen. Jacob Javits

Beatrice Arthur

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SID CAESAR

Who was the most unusual person you ever met?—P. F., Montclair, N.J.

● I think it was someone I never met. In 1955 I was giving a series of lectures on humor at Columbia University. One day I was stopped by J. Robert Oppenheimer. "Albert would like to talk to you," he said. I said, "Albert who?" "Albert Einstein," he said. "He solved the physical equation of MC^2 but now he wants your opinion of the human equation." I was so flabbergasted I didn't know how to answer! Unfortunately, before we had a chance to get together, Mr. Einstein died.

FOR BARBARA EDEN

I read that you were a naïve "small town" girl when you came to Hollywood. How did you ever become a successful actress?—P. Pearson, Gainesville, Fla.

● The beginning was hard, not because I was so naïve, but because I couldn't get people to listen to me. The hardest part was learning to face the fact that I was a product. Before I came to Hollywood I'd studied and trained myself creatively. But when I hit Hollywood I discovered I was just something to be marketed.

FOR GARY PLAYER

The PGA has been talking about making golfers play 12 of 15 required tournaments. This is to help tournament sponsors who sometimes get stuck without you, Nicklaus, Palmer or Trevino. How do you feel about this?—David Lane, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● I'd have to give up the American tour. I couldn't spend all that time away from my family in South Africa.

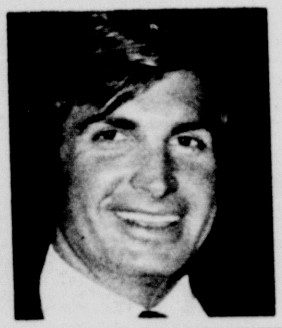
● That depends on the person. But today, craftsmen are much more in demand and they get good pay. I haven't gone to college, and I may never go. If I wasn't on TV, I'd probably be in college and be frustrated and unhappy. Instead I am here, I am learning, and I am happy.



FOR GEORGE HAMILTON

● I've been an actor for 15 years, and I'm not sure that anyone has taken me seriously yet! My image as a playboy didn't help. That sort of thing was fine when I was 18, but at 34 it's kind of insipid.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON of the Buffalo Bills

You were the leading ground gainer last season while playing for one of the worst teams in the NFL. Did you ever consider switching teams?—J. M., Niagara Falls, N.N.Y.

● Yes, after the 1971 season. I had known little but frustration with a team that was always playing catch-up football and having to pass. Then, Coach Lou Saban took me aside and said he'd get me blockers and give me the ball a lot. I believed him and signed a new contract. He's kept his word.

FOR AMANDA JONES, Miss U.S.A.

In the bathing-suit competition of beauty pageants, why don't the girls wear bikinis?—S. P., Austin, Texas

● In some beauty pageants, bikinis are used for the bathing-suit competition, but not in the Miss U.S.A. or the Miss Universe pageants. The reason, with which I happen to agree, is that if all girls wear the same style of bathing suit, figures can be judged from an equal starting point. Furthermore, I feel that one-piece suits are in better taste. It can get very cold in those dressing rooms, you know!

FOR JULIA CHILD, the French Chef

● Yes, the alcohol in wine evaporates almost immediately, leaving just the flavor. That's why you should always use good wine. Cheap stuff just tastes worse than ever when heated.

FOR ROCK HUDSON of "McMillan & Wife"

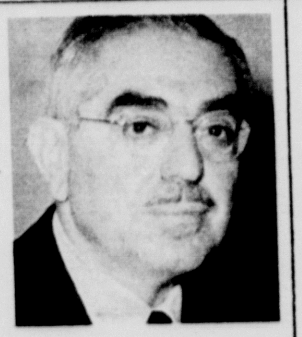
● Rock Hudson is the name my agent, who launched my acting career, picked for me. My real name is Roy Fitzgerald.



FOR SEN. JOHN O. PASTORE (D-R.I.), chairman of the Senate communications subcommittee and sponsor of the law to lift TV blackouts of home games in pro sports

The NFL griped so much about televising home games that you'd think all their money came from ticket sales. How much did they make from TV during the blackout years?—E. B. S., Albany, N.Y.

● When we gave them an exemption from the antitrust laws in 1961, the revenue for each NFL team went from $332,000 in 1961 to $1.5 million in 1972. Recent figures show that the three networks have paid the NFL a total of $47 million for the 1973 rights.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SID CAESAR

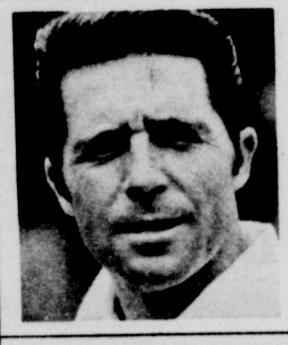
Who was the most unusual person you ever met?—P. F., Montclair, N.J.

● I think it was someone I never met. In 1955 I was giving a series of lectures on humor at Columbia University. One day I was stopped by J. Robert Oppenheimer. "Albert would like to talk to you," he said. I said, "Albert who?" "Albert Einstein," he said. "He solved the physical equation of MC^2 but now he wants your opinion of the human equation." I was so flabbergasted I didn't know how to answer! Unfortunately, before we had a chance to get together, Mr. Einstein died.

FOR BARBARA EDEN

I read that you were a naïve "small town" girl when you came to Hollywood. How did you ever become a successful actress?—P. Pearson, Gainesville, Fla.

● The beginning was hard, not because I was so naïve, but because I couldn't get people to listen to me. The hardest part was learning to face the fact that I was a product. Before I came to Hollywood I'd studied and trained myself creatively. But when I hit Hollywood I discovered I was just something to be marketed.



FOR GARY PLAYER

The PGA has been talking about making golfers play 12 of 15 required tournaments. This is to help tournament sponsors who sometimes get stuck without you, Nicklaus, Palmer or Trevino. How do you feel about this?—David Lane, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● I'd have to give up the American tour. I couldn't spend all that time away from my family in South Africa.

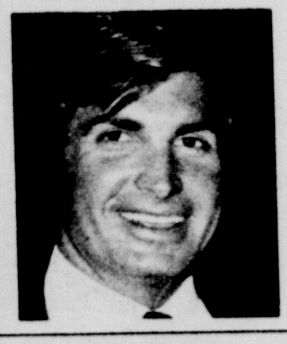
● That depends on the person. But today, craftsmen are much more in demand and they get good pay. I haven't gone to college, and I may never go. If I wasn't on TV, I'd probably be in college and be frustrated and unhappy. Instead I am here, I am learning, and I am happy.



FOR GEORGE HAMILTON

Is it difficult for anyone as good looking as you are to be taken seriously as an actor?—M. E., Kingston, N.Y.

● I've been an actor for 15 years, and I'm not sure that anyone has taken me seriously yet! My image as a playboy didn't help. That sort of thing was fine when I was 18, but at 34 it's kind of insipid.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON of the Buffalo Bills

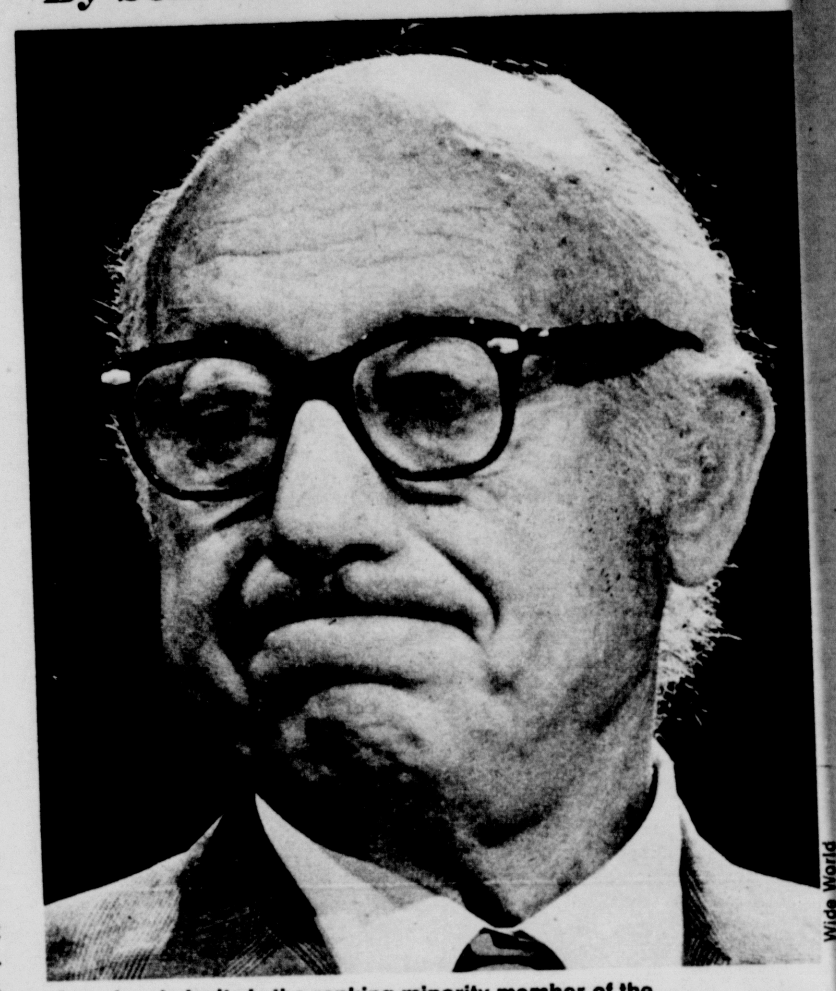
By Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.)

The Scandal of Our Pension Plans:

What's Wrong, What We Can Do About It

It is estimated that between one-third and one-half of the 35 million workers covered by pension plans will never collect a cent. Are you one of them?



Wide World

Sen. Jacob Javits is the ranking minority member of the Senate Labor Subcommittee. A senator since 1957, he is also author of "A Proposal to Amend Anti-Trust Laws" and "Discrimination USA."

● Charles N. Evelyn worked 41 years for a New Jersey chemical factory. As part of his compensation, he was promised a pension of $100 a month when he retired at 65. At 63, he was laid off when the factory was bought by a bigger company. The result: He was ineligible for the pension he had counted on for 41 years.

● Mrs. Iris Kwek was laid off by the Anaconda American Brass Company for economy reasons after 30 years of service in Detroit. Result: She lost all rights to her pension benefits. She had started at the company in 1941 after she finished high school. Then she went on to earn a college degree at night. But even with her degree she stayed on at her old job because of the pension rights she thought she had already earned.

● Robert E. Pratt of Hudson, N.Y., found out after working for the Gifford Wood Company for 47 years that he would receive no pension. Why? Because the company had been sold and the pension plan was terminated three months before Mr. Pratt reached age 65. The new company, Greer Industries of Wilmington, Mass., claimed there were only funds available to pay those who had retired three months before Mr. Pratt's birthday.

These three people and thousands like them have complained bitterly over the fact that their long-expected pensions have evaporated into thin air. And these complaints continue to pour in despite the fact that private pension plans now cover an estimated 35 million American workers and have assets in excess of $150 billion—growing at the rate of $10 to $12 billion annually.

It seems clear that there are major flaws in this country's system of private pension plans —flaws that are the basis for the estimate that between one-third and one-half of the 35 million workers covered will never collect a cent from the plans on which they rely, and to which they probably have contributed.

The Senate Labor Subcommittee, of which I am a member, made an analysis in 1971 of 51 plans that failed to provide for any kind of vesting (entitlement to pension benefits) before retirement age, or that provided for vesting only after the employee had worked 11 years or more, had attained a specified age, or both. Since 1950, these plans had covered seven million employees and had accumulated some $10 billion in assets.

The analysis showed that since 1950 only four percent of those seven million participants received any kind of vested retirement benefit. It also showed that 5.2 million participants had left the coverage of the 51 plans since 1950 before reaching retirement age, and of that number 92 percent had forfeited any right to receive pension benefits. Substantial numbers of those who lost out had put in long years of service—but it wasn't enough to keep their pension benefits.

And then there were 36 plans that were the subject of yet another study. These plans covered about three million participants since 1950 and had accumulated assets of $6 billion. Vesting was provided after ten years of service or less. The analysis showed that since 1950, 242,510 employees had received normal, early or deferred vested retirement benefits, or eight percent of the total three million employees who participated in these plans. Approximately 1.5 million employees—half the total—had left these plans before they reached retirement age. And 73 percent of that 1.5 million forfeited their right to obtain any kind of pension benefit.

These figures tell the story in overwhelming terms. The enormous mobility of our working population plays havoc with the assumptions on which most private pension plans are built.

WHAT THE SENATE'S PENSION-REFORM BILL WOULD DO

1. Require minimum vesting standards, to make sure that no pension plan would deny rights to most employees.

2. Require minimum funding standards to assure that pensions will deliver the benefits promised.

3. Establish a federal insurance program to guarantee pension benefits, even if the employer goes out of business.

4. Establish a fund that can operate on a central-clearinghouse basis for people who transfer from one employer to another.

5. Require that employees be told all about their pension plans.

6. Establish rules to prevent mishandling of funds and other unethical practices.

7. Establish a new section of the Department of Labor to look after employee pension rights.

8. Provide effective judicial enforcement of all these requirements.

Here's real relief from constipation

If you've been taking magnesia, salts, oils or harsh chemical laxatives once a week or more and you're still not satisfied—here's a better way to end constipation worries. Take gentle, effective Serutan. It's different!

Unlike other laxatives that may cause irritation or griping, Serutan, taken daily, forms a soft gel which moistens food wastes and shapes them into a well-formed stool. Serutan produces the proper amount of bulk needed to help bring peristaltic stimulation to your sluggish colon. This is utterly different than forcing your system with harsh chemical laxatives which may dry you out. You can take gentle Serutan every day because it is a pure vegetable hydrogel and contains no harsh roughage, no chemical laxatives. Take Serutan every day to get regular—and keep regular.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What's Really Behind It All When People Blow Their Tops?

True or False: When older people are angered, they tend to stay mad longer and are the champion grudge-holders. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The more self-confident a person is, the less likely he is to give vent to his anger.

2. Most of the time it's the "little things" that cause a person to blow his top.

3. In an angry confrontation with another person, the best way to keep him from exploding is to avoid looking him steadily in the eye.

4. When older people are angered, they tend to stay mad longer and to hold grudges.

5. When a person gets mad and fights back, it's easy to tell whether his aggression is normal or the neurotic variety.

ANSWERS

1. False. Psychological studies show that the reverse is true—that it is the people who are lacking in self-confidence who tend to swallow their anger instead of giving expression to it. Reason: Their lack of self-assurance makes them dependent on the approval of others to maintain their self-esteem. The self-confident person has no such fears. If someone steps on his toes, he's likely to let him know about it.

2. True. Studies show that it's the little things that provoke hostility and resentment. A University of Calgary study classifies as top-ranking anger-producing annoyances: locking your keys in the car; having things spilled on your best clothes; getting halfway to your destination and finding you've forgotten something; running out of gas; getting stuck in traffic.

3. False—as evidenced by psychological experiments at Stanford University, where students were subjected to situations that produced aggressive confrontations. Purpose: To discover whether looking a person steadily in the eye or averting one's glance would be most effective in avoiding an angry confrontation. Findings: Looking the other person squarely in the eye was found to be by far the most effective means of inhibiting his agression.

4. False—according to a psychoanalytic study of grudges, conducted by a University of California specialist, which shows "a tendency for grudges to arise in early adolescence as an almost normal occurrence." It's described as part and parcel of the normal turmoil experienced at that particular time in life.

5. True. An exhaustive study of normal aggression and the neurotic type has shown that the normal aggressive person uses his anger only in self-defense. There are no feelings of guilt. The amount of aggression discharged corresponds to provocation. There is the ability to wait until the adversary is vulnerable. Success is expected. Neurotic aggression, on the other hand, is used indiscriminately and against various persons, ranging from an innocent bystander to an imagined or suspected enemy, or to avenge some slight or fancied grievance. There is no ability to wait for an auspicious time. And defeat is unconsciously expected.

A WORLD TOUR . . . THE HARD WAY
Jack and Paul, and Jack's wife and baby

Long haul on horseback: When Father Time rings out 1973 and most people are still recovering from the night before, Jack Bailey, 28, plans to saddle his horse Jason, kiss his wife and daughter Kim good-bye, and start riding around the world. Accompanied by his friend Paul Grace, 24 (shown here on his horse Herin), Jack plans to leave from his home in Buckinghamshire, England. If the two men complete the trip, they will have traveled 15,000 miles through France, Belgium, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland, the U.S.S.R., Canada and the U.S. They also will have broken the current world's record of 10,000 miles. For his wife Nancy and Kim, now 2½, the trip will mean at least a 3½-year wait. Naturally, Jack and Paul plan to write a book about their travels when they return.

SALLY STRUTHERS
Lost the boy, but got the part

Sally Struthers of "All in the Family" fame had a real-life crush on Rob Reiner before she married him on the show: "I was dating a boy who happened to be Rob's roommate. That's how I met Rob. He was doing 'Evening of Dirty Plays' at the Oxford Theatre and I'd go over to watch him night after night. Even sent him flowers. I guess he felt sorry for me because he finally asked me out. Once. Never again. Ironically, Rob's wife Penny tried out for the part of Gloria, too. That's one of the reasons I got the part. I played it cool. I was so sure she'd get the part, I wasn't the least bit nervous."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

COMPANY, ATTENTION

We've company coming for dinner,
Some people we've hopes of impressing.
My wife has her cookbooks all open—
She's trying a new salad dressing.

She's splurged on the finest of sirloin.
She seems to have lost all her reason.
The fancy dessert is a dilly,
With fruits that are long out of season.

She's working all day in the kitchen
And trying to get things just right. . . .
How I wish we could eat by our lonesome
The way we are eating tonight.

Pension Plans

Moving, and the resultant loss of pension benefits, is the rule rather than the exception. Very few employees work for one employer as long as 30 years—or even 20 years. But despite this undeniable evidence, private pension plans are structured in a way that results in an abnormally high loss of benefits.

Would better pension plans make a difference in people's lives? Yes – undeniably, pensions can make a significant contribution to the economic security of large numbers of old people who need a much more realistic level of living in retirement. Even a substantially liberalized Social Security could not do the job pensions can do.

Right now—even with recent substantial increases in its benefits—Social Security is just barely enough to support people, even at poverty levels. Nor do people save or invest enough money over a lifetime. The result is they can't really cope with soaring food costs or any other forms of inflation. We've even had the spectacle of seeing some retired people turn into shoplifters, just to obtain a decent diet. And that's only one example of what the lack of adequate old-age income can do to people.

And what if people begin to live longer? The medical-research community is concentrating as never before on reaching major breakthroughs against the great killers—cancer and heart disease. If their efforts succeeded, life expectancy could soar to 70 or 90 or more. That would revolutionize the economics of aging and make an improved private pension system even more essential.

Pensions also have a great deal to do with morale—and the erosion of worker morale has become a matter of grave national concern. We need to find ways to give workers a "shot in the arm," to improve their incentives. Judging from their complaints about their pension plans, pension security certainly isn't doing much to help morale at present.

My advice to employees who are covered by pension plans is this: Find out all you can about your coverage. What are the benefits? What does it take to make you eligible for the benefits? Who's contributing how much to the plan? How many years will you have to work to be eligible for normal retirement? For early retirement? For disability retirement? How many years does it take to vest? Who manages the money in your pension fund, and how is the money invested? Keep asking until you get answers.

Many companies have excellent pension plans, and the whole pension system has improved dramatically in the last ten years. From 1960 to 1970, for example, the number of people receiving private pensions more than doubled—from 1.8 million to 4.2 million—and benefit payments tripled, from $1.8 billion to $5.9 billion. But many company (and union) plans are still woefully deficient.

In 1966, I introduced the first comprehensive bill to deal with the defects in the private pension system. Then in 1972, Sen. Harrison Williams (D-N.J.) and I introduced the bipartisan Williams-Javits bill based on my 1966 bill.

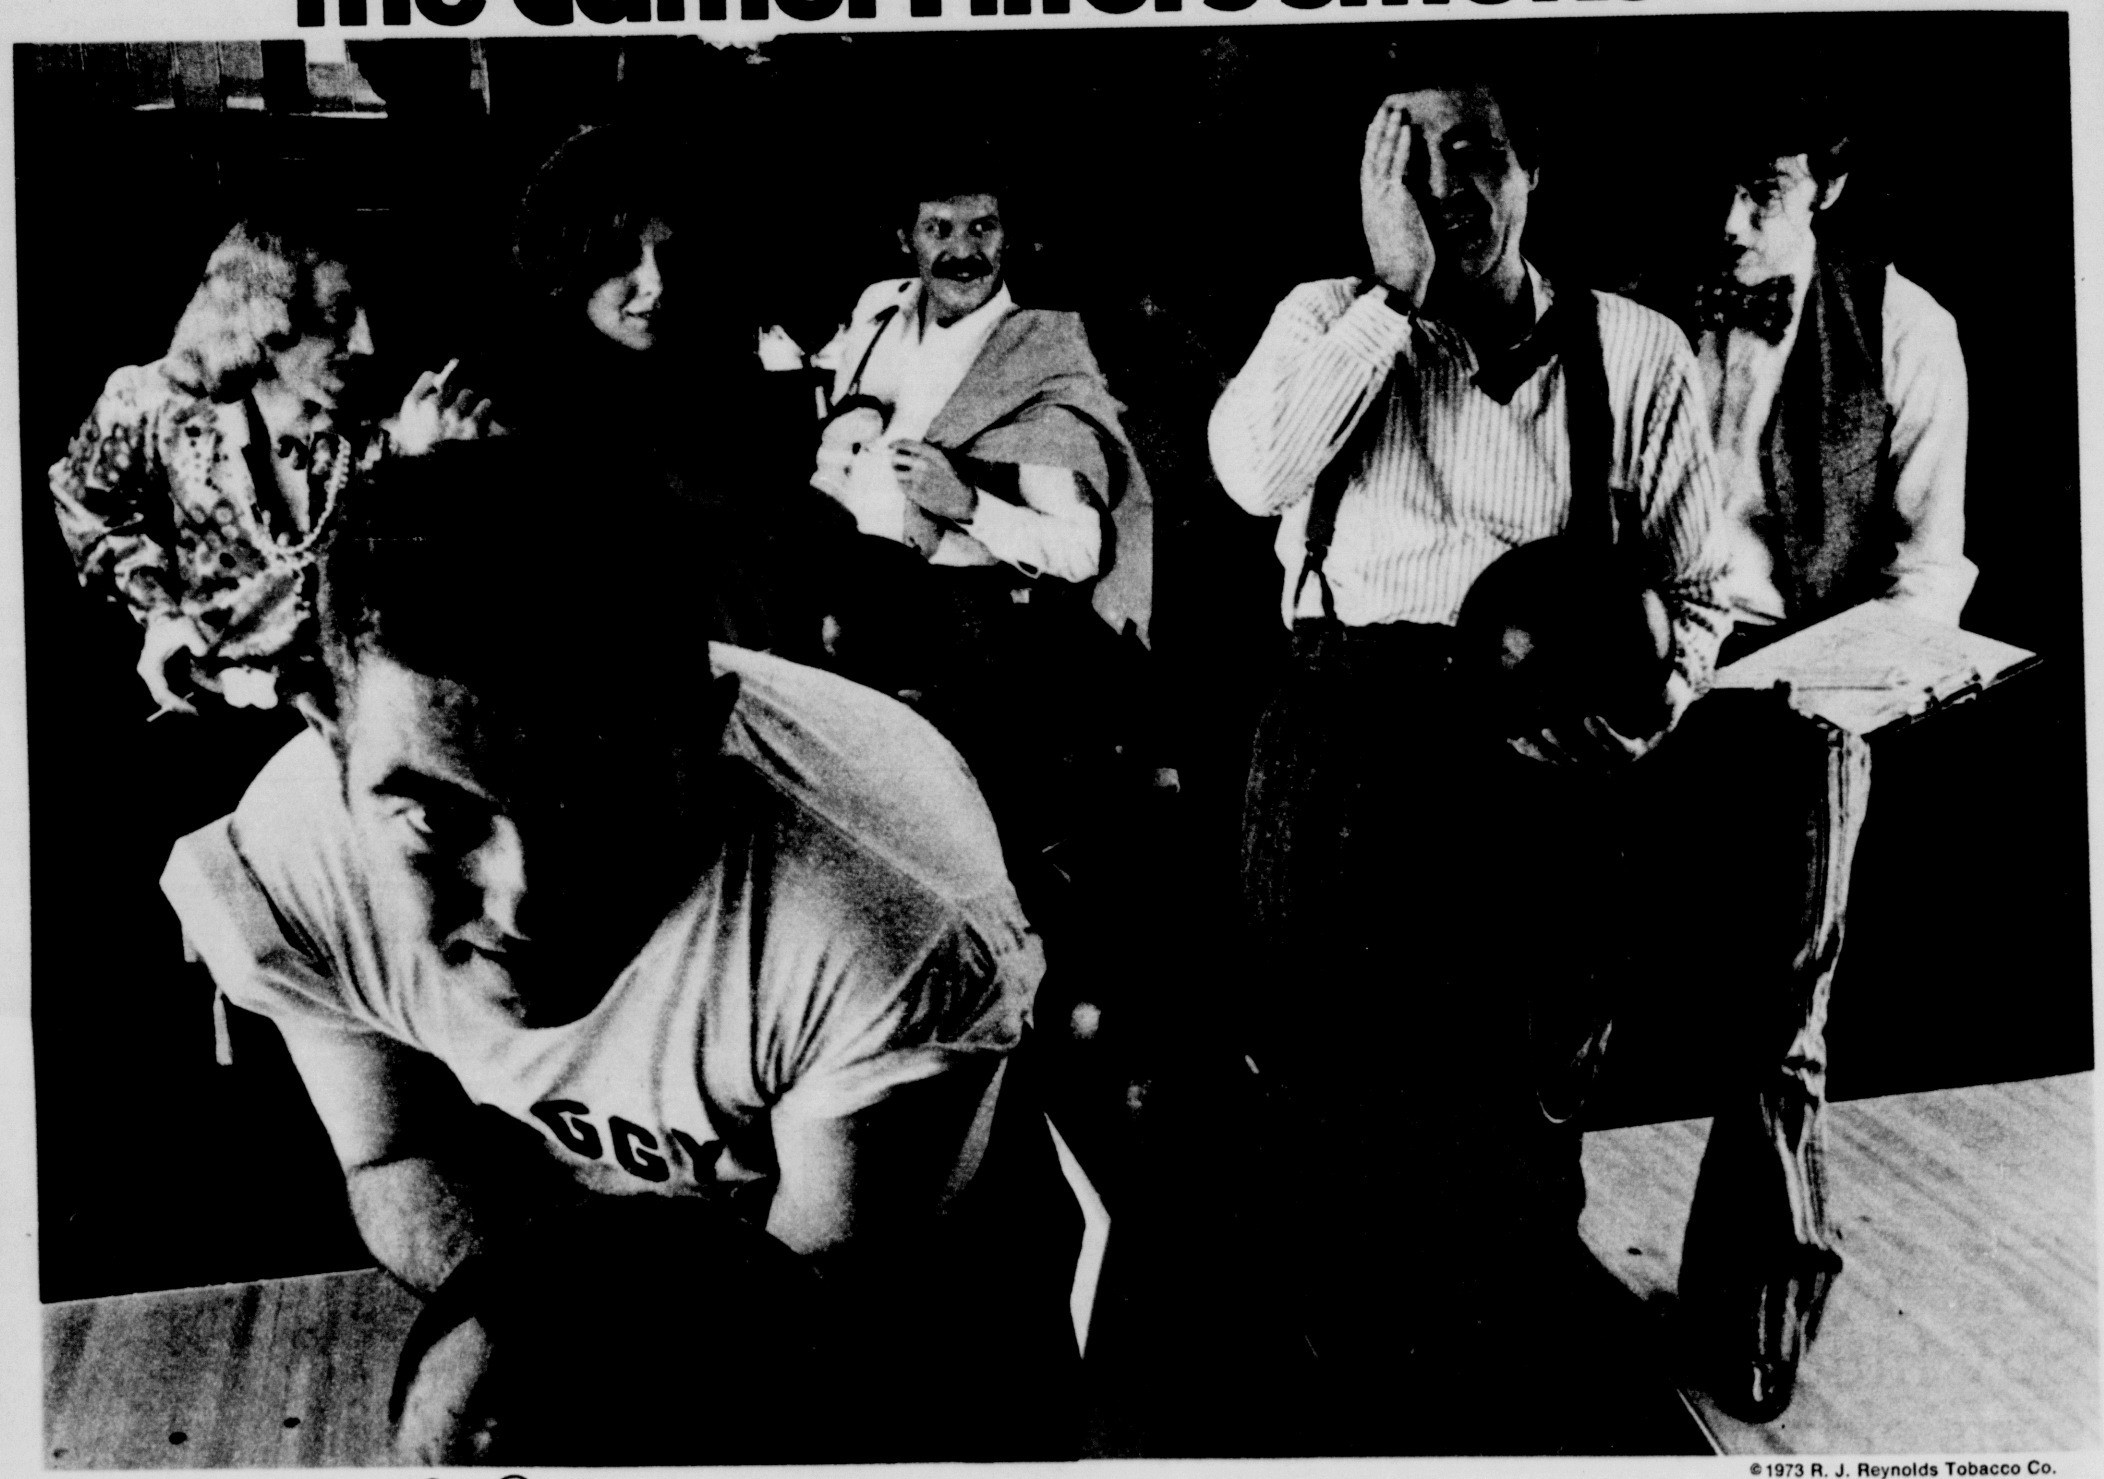
On September 19, the Senate – by a 93-0 vote – passed a meaningful private-pension-reform bill that successfully merged the best provisions of the Williams-Javits bill with a similar bill from the Senate Finance Committee.

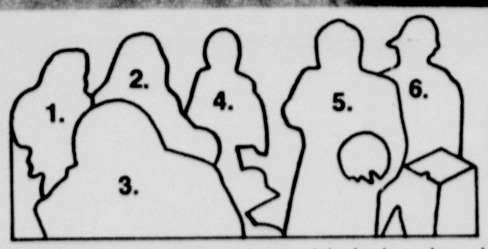
The Senate bill will also provide, as proposed by the Nixon Administration, that individual employees – those not covered by private pension plans – can deduct up to $1,500 annually for contribution to an individual pension plan.

I strongly urge every working man and woman to help us put the pension reforms of the Williams-Javits bill (as it cleared the Senate) on the U.S. statute books. I hope you will write and ask your congressman to support our bill.

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?



© 1973 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.



In this picture, everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. No way. He's Gerry Atric, over-the-hill hippie. Irons his hair twice daily. Cigarettes taste just as flat. Gimmick: Watching bowling pins "do their own thing, man." 2. Naomi Glowsoul. Gimmick: Uses so much body english that police have raided the place four times. 3. Nope. It's Angie "The Arm" Kugelman. Throws so hard three automatic pinsetting machines have quit. Smokes cigarettes so heavily filtered, he's like a man giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a rock. 4. Right. He just likes bowling, not gimmicks. Likes his cigarette honest and no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. 5. Zooty Smith. Gimmick: Has worn same good luck clothes since he broke 125 in 1942. Smokes war surplus cigarettes and saves the tinfoil. 6. Whiz Kid Pringle. Developed math formula to bowl a perfect strike. Unfortunately releases ball on backswing.

Camel Filters.

(but they could be for you).

A Thanksgiving Dinner Almost Like the Original

This year we prepare a Thanksgiving dinner that borrows from the well-stocked table the Pilgrims and Indians shared at the first Thanksgiving. Bounty from the sea, the forest and the field make this a celebration, not just another big dinner. This is another FAMILY WEEKLY Pull-Out-and-Save Section.

A Spit-Roasted Turkey is done to perfection over a glowing charcoal-briquet fire. On the table are Uncooked Cranberry-Apple Relish, Old-Fashioned Pumpkin Pie, Cornmeal Spoon Bread and a bowl of apples and nuts.

*Recipe given

UNCOOKED CRANBERRY-APPLE RELISH

1 large orange, quartered and seeded
1 lb. (4 cups) fresh or frozen and slightly thawed cranberries
1¼ cups firmly packed light-brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 large apple, finely chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup chopped walnuts

1. Put orange and cranberries through the coarse blade of a food grinder. Or chop orange and cranberries coarsely; mix. Put about ¼ of the mixture at a time in electric blender container; blend until very finely chopped.

2. Stir in all remaining ingredients. Cover and refrigerate. Makes about 1½ qts.

SPIT-ROASTED TURKEY

1 (8-12 lb.) turkey, frozen and thawed or fresh
Salt

Cornmeal Spoon Bread To Complement The Holiday Feast

Walter Storck

Clams and oysters practically cook themselves on the grill. Later, popcorn and maple syrup will tempt the children, and warm Indian Pudding and cream will close the meal.

2. Sprinkle inside of turkey with salt, pepper and thyme leaves.
3. Using heavy cord, truss the turkey in four places: (1) tie the legs and tail together; (2) tie the legs and thighs tightly to the body of the turkey; (3) and (4) tie the wings to the body in 2 places.
4. Thread one spit prong or fork onto spit so that points are away from handle. Insert spit in turkey just below the breastbone and bring out above the tail. Center turkey on spit.
5. Thread second prong onto spit. Push prongs into breast and thigh sections of turkey; fasten securely.
6. Tie another cord lengthwise around the turkey, wrapping the lengthwise cord around each of the crosswise cords.
7. When preparing coals for lighting, arrange them in back half of barbecue. Place a drip pan about 4 inches longer than the turkey in front half of barbecue. If desired, shape a drip pan from heavy-duty foil.
8. When coals have reached a medium temperature, attach spit to motor. Grill, brushing occasionally with butter, until turkey reaches 185°F. internal temperature. (Either insert a meat thermometer in the thickest part of the thigh before starting to grill or use a thermometer that can be inserted periodically for a reading.)
9. The following chart can be used as a guide for barbecuing time:

APPROXIMATE TIMETABLE FOR BARBECUING WHOLE TURKEY

Ready-to-Cook Weight	Approximate Cooking Time
6-8 pounds	3-3½ hours
8-10 pounds	3½-4 hours
10-12 pounds	4-5 hours

10. About 1 hour before turkey is done, wrap stuffing in heavy-duty-foil packet and place on coals. Turn occasionally and cook until heated throughout.
11. Remove turkey from spit and allow to rest 15 minutes before carving.

Makes 6-8 servings

CORNMEAL SPOON BREAD

- ¾ cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 4 eggs, separated

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. Lightly oil a 1½-qt. casserole or soufflé dish.
2. Mix cornmeal, sugar and salt in 3-qt. saucepan. Add milk and butter. Heat mixture to boiling point. Stir constantly until thickened. Remove from heat.
3. Beat egg yolks in small bowl. Gradually stir about ⅓ cup of hot cornmeal mixture into yolks, a tablespoon at a time.
4. Stir egg-yolk mixture into remaining cornmeal mixture; mix thoroughly. Cool to lukewarm.
5. Beat egg whites in large bowl with clean egg beater until stiff peaks form; gradually fold in cornmeal mixture. Pour into prepared casserole.
6. Bake 40 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 6-8 servings

GRILLED CLAMS AND OYSTERS WITH HERB BUTTER

- 32 Little Neck clams, allow 4 per serving
- 16 oysters, allow 2 per serving
- ½ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon thyme or marjoram leaves
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Prepare charcoal grill, light and allow coals to reach hot stage.
2. Scrub outer shells of clams and oysters with stiff brush, rinse.
3. Place clams and oysters on grill, about 6 inches from hot coals. Heat until shells open, about 5-6 minutes for clams and 6-7 minutes for oysters.
4. Prepare herb butter by combining all remaining ingredients. Serve as a dip for hot steamed clams and oysters.

Makes 8 servings

GIBLET GRAVY

- Giblets and neck from turkey
- 1 onion
- 2 stalks celery and leaves
- 1 carrot cut in chunks
- Salt
- Pepper
- 3 cups water
- ⅓ cup turkey drippings
- ⅓ cup all-purpose flour
- 2 cups giblet broth

1. In medium saucepan, combine turkey giblets and neck, onion, celery, carrot, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and water.

How to Judge the Temperature of a Charcoal-Briquet Fire

Different brands of charcoal give off varying degrees of heat. To test the temperature of a charcoal-briquet fire, it is recommended that you cautiously hold your hand, palm side down, just above the grill. Judge temperature by number of seconds hand can be kept in position. For these recipes the following guide should be used:

High or hot	2 seconds
Medium high or hot	3 seconds

This Way, Step by Step, to a Great Fruitcake

By Marilyn Hansen

Right about now our thoughts turn to Christmas and gift planning. As one of your pre-holiday projects this year, why not make some fruitcakes to decorate and present to special friends?

OLD-TIME MOLASSES FRUITCAKE

3 cups (one 15-oz. pkg.) dark raisins or 3 cups chopped dates or pitted prunes
3 cups (one 15-oz. pkg.) golden raisins or 3 cups dried apricots, chopped
2 pkgs. (16-oz. size) mixed candied fruit
¾ cup brandy or rum or apple juice
3 cups butter, margarine or shortening
2½ cups sugar
12 eggs
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
1 bottle (12 ozs.) dark molasses
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 pkg. (2 lbs.) all-purpose flour or 7 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons ground cinnamon
2 tablespoons ground nutmeg
1 tablespoon ground cloves
2 cans (8-oz. size) or 4 cups walnuts, coarsely chopped
½-1 cup brandy or apple juice
½ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons water
Candied cherry halves, citron and walnut halves for garnish

1. In large bowl combine dark raisins, golden raisins and mixed candied fruit. Toss with brandy. Cover with plastic film and allow to soak overnight at room temperature.

2. Next day, preheat oven to 300°F. Tear off four 13x18-inch sheets of heavy-duty foil and line four 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Carefully press foil into corners and smooth out folds; allow some of foil to hang over edges of the pans. Do not grease.

3. In large bowl with electric mixer at medium-high speed, beat butter until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in sugar. Clean side of bowl and beaters.

4. Beat in eggs one at a time; add vanilla extract. Gradually beat in molasses until well-blended. Stir in orange and lemon rinds. Turn into large pot.

5. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt and spices. Add to creamed mixture and beat until well-blended and smooth.

6. Stir in brandy-soaked fruits and walnuts. Spoon batter into foil-lined pans and spread evenly into corners.

7. Bake for 2 hours, or until cake tester poked in center of cakes comes out clean.

8. Remove from oven and cool 10 minutes. Using foil overhang, lift loaves from pans; place on wire racks, cool completely. Remove foil.

9. Cut 4 lengths of cheesecloth to wrap around each cake. Soak cheesecloths in ½ cup brandy and wrap each cake. Overwrap completely and securely with foil or plastic wrap. Store in tightly covered container in cool, approximately 50°F., atmosphere.

10. If stored more than 2 weeks, unwrap and resoak cheesecloth and wrap again. Repeat every 2 weeks. Store fruitcakes up to 4-6 weeks. The fruitcakes may be served immediately after making, but the soaking and storing process gives a mellow, rich flavor to the cakes.

11. After storing time is up, make glaze: Combine corn syrup and water in small saucepan. Bring to roiling boil, cool slightly.

12. Unwrap fruitcakes, brush off surface crumbs, brush with glaze. Decorate with candied cherry halves, bits of citron and walnut halves. Brush with glaze again, allow glaze to set 15 minutes. Cut in thin slices to serve.

13. To present fruitcakes as gifts: Wrap each decorated, glazed fruitcake in plastic wrap. Tie with ribbon, label and decorate with holiday stickers. Place in appropriate tissue-lined box (a decorated shoe box is good). Wrap entire box with gift paper and tie with ribbon, finishing off with a sprig of holly or Christmas evergreens.

It's true, I have been called a gourmet cook—but let's just say I enjoy cooking. I can cook almost anything and everything because I've always been interested in cooking.

I love to explore new cookbooks. I adore Julia Child, and I've just been investigating the "Galloping Gourmet Cookbook," by Graham Kerr. If you ask me about my favorite recipes, I would have to mention leg of lamb with a mustard coating. And my lamb stew is probably one of the best things ever made. I have a thing about fresh dill, and I love to use it as often as I can!

I don't think people want to eat elaborate dinners anymore, so I seldom entertain formally. I hate big parties. The most I do nowadays is have a couple of close friends over for dinner (and I haven't done that since I started working in California). Then we sit down informally, sometimes eating off the coffee table in the living room. Our menus are always simple. We never go through a first or second course, and I never bother with elaborate desserts. I just serve fresh fruit and cheese.

Our Thanksgiving dinners are

family ones, with an occasional friend from out of town who is alone. We always have turkey. I make the dressing by starting out with a good packaged stuffing and add apples, chopped nuts, lots of sage, extra celery, onion and sometimes I throw in a can of mushrooms. But my stuffing is generally made with anything that happens to be lying around the house. Then I use a bottle of port wine to baste and flavor the bird!

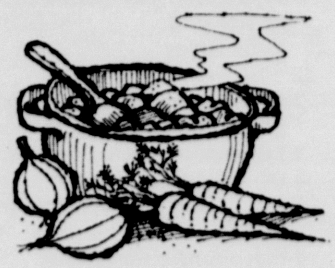
If you ask me about my favorite recipes, I would have to mention leg of lamb with a mustard coating. And my lamb stew is probably one of the best things ever made. I have a thing about fresh dill, and I love to use it as often as I can!

I don't think people want to eat elaborate dinners anymore, so I seldom entertain formally. I hate big parties. The most I do nowadays is have a couple of close friends over for dinner (and I haven't done that since I started working in California). Then we sit down informally, sometimes eating off the coffee table in the living room. Our menus are always simple. We never go through a first or second course, and I never bother with elaborate desserts. I just serve fresh fruit and cheese.

Our Thanksgiving dinners are



family ones, with an occasional friend from out of town who is alone. We always have turkey. I make the dressing by starting out with a good packaged stuffing and add apples, chopped nuts, lots of sage, extra celery, onion and sometimes I throw in a can of mushrooms. But my stuffing is generally made with anything that happens to be lying around the house. Then I use a bottle of port wine to baste and flavor the bird!

My husband [director Gene Saks] thinks I'm a very good cook! And, like most women, I've had my share of disasters in

WONDERFUL GIFTS—FOR COLLECTORS AND INVESTORS, TOO! PRODUCED IN A LIMITED QUANTITY—WHEN THESE ARE GONE, THERE'LL BE NO MORE!

1973 Bing and Grondahl Christmas Plate

BING AND GRONDAHL of Denmark issued the world's first Limited Edition Christmas Plate way back in 1895. Each year since then the plate collecting world has eagerly awaited each new, beautiful hand painted masterpiece. And Christmas Plates traditionally, have been the most desired, and become the most valuable plates of all. This year's plate showing the traditional "Homecoming" has been designed by the noted artist Henry Thelander. We think it is one of the loveliest in years.

WHAT IS A LIMITED EDITION?

After a specific limited amount of these exquisite plates are made, the mold is destroyed and reissue is impossible. Because the demand for these plates usually exceeds the supply, they usually "sell out" and become hard to find. As a result, prices rise and these plates usually increase in value from year to year. That first B. & G. Christmas Plate, by the way, sold for 50¢ and is now worth $2,700.

So why not start your collection today with an order for one or more of these outstanding plates, from Joy's one of America's largest fine plate dealers. More and more Americans are starting to collect Limited Edition Plates not only because they're beautiful to own but because they are good investments. (And don't forget, they are Christmas gifts that will be remembered.) Since quantities are strictly limited, please order early.

SPECIAL BONUS: If you purchase any plate from this ad, Joy's will send you absolutely free a beautiful, full color 1974 Goebel Hummel Calendar (worth $2.50).
